PREFACE

We have reached the end of the third volume and the ninth year of The Pedigree Register, and with it an opportunity to review our position. Of course the Great War has hit us, as it was bound to do; on the one hand by loss of subscribers by death and by economic pressure, and on the other by increase in the cost of production. These must be met by an improvement in our methods—by a tightening-up rather than by a giving-in—because we assume that subscribers do appreciate the work such a periodical as this is attempting to do; we are heartened by the cordial relations we have established with many of them, and can rely upon their doing all they can to extend the circle.

Too much emphasis cannot be laid on the fact that our material is drawn from original sources and from sources that are fast perishing and being lost. That is the chief claim to support of a periodical like this—an appeal to public spirit. In a single number of the magazine we put on record some fact or other about approximately a thousand different people of all classes of society—that is the half-crown's worth we have to offer to the genealogist. Comparison is invited, as regards cost, with any other scheme for original research whatsoever.

The Pedigree Register

JUNE, 1913]

[Vol. III, No. 25.

Harrison.

The family of HARRISON of Branthwaite in the parish of Dean, in Cumberland, held lands there from a very early period as "estatesmen." Their names are found in the earliest parish register of Dean.

From this family, in addition to those members shewn on the following pedigree, it is believed the HARRISONS of Hertfordshire are descended. This branch is now represented by the Marquess TOWNSHEND, Charles, 3rd Viscount TOWNSHEND having married in 1723 Audrey, only daughter and heir of Edward HARRISON Esqre, of Ball's Park, Herts. The second son of this marriage was the Right Honble. Charles TOWNSHEND, the celebrated orator and statesman, who was made Chancellor of the Exchequer in August 1766.

Besides Barbara, wife of Anthony HARRISON of Penrith, her father, John ROBINSON of Watermillock, had two other married daughters, namely Alice, wife of Richard HINDSON of Penrith, and Jane, wife of John RAW of Barnard Castle, Durham. From the last-named daughter my wife is descended; his eldest son, John ROBINSON of Watermillock, was Alderman and Mayor of Appleby in 1770 and High Sheriff of Cumberland in the ninth year of George III. The mother of these children was Elizabeth, daughter of John DOBSON of Watermillock, of an old Cumberland family, by his wife Jane SKILBECKE. I shall be grateful for further information relating to the ROBINSONS.

The husband of Ann HARRISON, Captain William BUCHANAN, R.N., served 30 years in the Navy, from 1780 to 1810, his last service having been as Commander of H.M.S. "Hecate," which sailed to the East Indies. He was Post Captain of H.M.S. "Malacca," but never joined her, as the ship had sailed for England prior to his arrival in India; the date of his discharge was 31st March 1810. By his will he left most of his property, which consisted principally of land, to his wife Ann. He mentions his nieces, Mary WALMESLEY, Elizabeth ADAMSON of Dublin (wife of Lawrence ADAMSON of Liverpool, solicitor, H.M. Seneschal of the Isle of Man, only son of Anthony ADAMSON by his wife Catharine HARRISON, see pedigree) and Elizabeth . . .; his brother, Colonel Robert BUCHANAN, his brother-in-law . . . WILLIAMSON, and his godchildren Charlotte HARRISON and William HARRISON. The witnesses to the will were Jane HARRISON, Henry ADDISON and A. R. HARRISON.

The Countess OSSALINSKY, mother of Mrs. William HARRISON, was the owner of Thirlmere Lake, which was purchased from her by the Manchester Corporation, to supply water to the City. She was awarded the sum of £70,000, after the case had gone to arbitration, although her net income from the property had been but £522. On the receipt of the award, the Corporation took steps in the Queen's Bench to set it aside; a compromise was, however, effected, and the action was not proceeded with.

From John HARRISON's sister Catharine, wife of Anthony ADAMSON, the present Lieut.-Colonel John George ADAMSON, late of the King's Own Yorkshire Light Infantry, of Linden, Longhorsley, Northumberland, and Glenfarne Hall, County Leitrim, J.P., High Sheriff of County Leitrim 1900, is descended, and to whom I am indebted for much valuable information relating to the HARRISON family.

This pedigree probably might be considerably extended by an inspection of the HARRISON wills at Carlisle.

THE ROYALIST COMPOSITION PAPERS, A.D. 1643-57.

On looking up the text-books lately as to these papers, I found (though not with surprise) that the salient facts about them were not easily to be apprehended. They seem to be as follow.

These documents are in the Public Record Office, Chancery Lane, bound up in 274 volumes; official reference "State Papers Domestic, Interregnum, G. 1 to G. 269." They include Scotland. They are referred to by means of very extensive, though very imperfect MS. indexes of names and places, a part of which (an Index Nominum covering surnames from A. to F.) was printed by Mr. PHILLIMORE in 1893, in volume III. of The Index Library. The old MS. indexes refer to a superseded system of numbering the volumes as of "1st Series," and "2nd Series," but the pagination is unchanged. For a table, reconciling the old numbering with the new, application should be made to the officer in charge of the search-room.

In 1889-92, under the title of Calendar of the Proceedings of the Committee for Compounding with Delinquents, an elaborate calendar, in five volumes, which must have cost thousands of pounds, was printed by the Stationery Office. The index to this (486 pages) is probably the largest and most useful lexicographical index to documents of the period ever made—many references are given which do not appear in the old MS. indexes; but, on the other hand, the old ones contain many that are not in this, therefore both should be searched. If you know your parish turn to the original papers for that parish for casual references to persons not given in either of the great indexes. The fact to be remembered is that the papers concern all kinds of people, not Royalists alone, and are full of genealogical detail concerning their transactions and disputes, their ages, who they were and what they did, who fled the country and where they were born, married, and died, Royalists or not. Autograph signatures of people of the day in all conditions of life are to be found on almost every page.

No. 22, HARFORD.

A series of photographs of entries concerning the HARFORD family of Bosbury, co. Hereford, from a bible of 1581, was formerly in possession of Mr. Frederick HARFORD, of Bosbury, Beckenham, who died in 1895.

The title to the New Testament is as follows:—

The New Testament of our Lord Jesus Christ Imprinted at London by Christopher BARKER, Printer to the Queenes Maiestie, 1581. On this title page is twice repeated “Hope Helpeth Heauye Heartes, sayeth Henry HARFORDE.” A blank page has the following registers:

“I Henrye HARFORDE was marryed to Kathrine my wyfe at Stoghton [? Stockton] in thys Countye of Wiltes, upon a mundaye, beinge ye tenthe daye of Januarye in the yeare of our lorde gd’ one thousande, fyue hundred threescore and eyghte, and had by her thease children folowinge

The above entries are repeated again in part in an Elizabethan hand.

Upon the title of Two right profitable and fruitful Concordances, the HARFORD motto, as above, is again twice repeated.

On a last leaf are three entries, two of which are erased; two are as follows:—"My father in law Mr William LOCKIER died Decemb. 7th & was buried y^e 10th of y^t month 1627, B[ridstock] HARFORD."

Other entries in the Bible are:

"Elizabeth HARFORD her boo[ke]."

"Mary HEREFORD her Boock, The Lord in heuen uppone her Loock."

"This is henrye HARFORD's booke."

"Reward [sic] or Received of Jeome [Jerome] GYFFARD and of George GYFFARD and of Johne GYFFARD."

"Bridstocke HARFORDE his booke hand and pen Amen."

"Bradstocke HARFORDE his booke, Amen."

"Bradstocke HARFORD his booke Amen. Imprintet at london."

In a much later hand: "Bridstocke HARFORD his Booke."

Another signature apparently is "John HARF^r."

No. 23. WILMER.

"Nathaniel WILMER, His Bible, August xith, 1686." There has recently come into our possession a family bible, purchased in London by Mr. P. Mordaunt BARNARD, M.A., B.D., of Tunbridge Wells.

This Bible, which is a very large thick folio, was printed at Oxford at The Theatre, in 1685. It contains the Old and New Testaments and the Apocrypha. It weighs some twenty-six pounds and measures 18½ by 12 by 5¼ inches. It is bound in black morocco, tooled gilt, and with gilt edges. There are six large engraved silver corner-pieces (of the eight original ones), two engraved silver catches for the clasps, which are missing, and one silver plate to fix the leather hinge of one of them. In the centre of each cover is a handsome diamond-shaped engraved silver plate, 4 by 5 inches, engraved as the above heading. A fillet of silver runs down the edge of each cover to secure the back. Altogether the Bible is a noble specimen of typography and binding and is remarkably preserved, considering it is over two and a quarter centuries old.

“Fellows’ Interests.”

[As some of the readers of this magazine are aware, one of the attractions offered by the Society of Genealogists to its Fellows is the supplying from time to time of newly-acquired information as to families in which they are interested. I am indebted to a prospective member of the Society for the following suggested letter to the Secretary, as he thinks that it may serve as a model to those intending to take advantage of the aforesaid privilege.—X.]

DEAR DAME. This missive asks you, when time permits the quest,
Some things of doubt I’ve followed up, which you may set at rest.
I understand that those who write themselves with “F.S.Gen.”
Have privilege to send in names—the limit to be ten.
My wants, as by these presents writ, are neither less nor more
Than queries on the family arms, and names—say three or four.
Though anxious as to several folk, a well-nigh good round dozen,
The most there are in present scree’d’s two uncles and a cousin.

(1.) First, What became of grandpa’s son—the eldest—and his history
Has always been to dad and me an unabated mystery.
He might have fought a duel, or gone to sea, or bet,
Nay, done some things for which the Courts incarcerate for debt.
His name? I have a sheet in front, at top the prefix “Jo . . .”,
But (how very aggravating!), a blot’s behind the “o.”

(2.) Where dwelt another relative? I don’t know in the least;
The place I guessed was something like St. George’s-in-the-East.
Though ’prenticed in the City was my great-granduncle Jack,
An extremely tactless person speaks of “trouble” and “the sack.”
When pressed to give the wherefore, and the details, if illicit,
My gossip firmly closed his mouth—he wouldn’t be explicit.

(3.) If the indexes and boxes fail to tell us what the sense is
Of Massachusetts note (enclosed), please pass it to “Cambrensis.”*
For years it’s been a puzzle, and I want to get the pith
Of the doings in America of Zacharias SMITH.
And, if no good, a friendly hint might get it in the series
Of a page devoted solely to the “P.R.’s” “Notes and Queries.”

(4.) One further crux (an extra), but the people here that knows us
Are rather doubtful whether we are pleb. or generosus;
For an awkward point attaches to our usual family crest,
Which someone called a trade-mark, and the motto “. . . wh[isk]y’s be[st].”
Please turn up box “BRI—B-R-O” for “BROWN,” not Yorks. but Lincs.,
And kindly tell, if noted, and the noter what he thinks.
And last, if such a slip declares our scroll is writ at random
Be good enough to say it’s changed to “Nihil desperandum.”
I sign,

JOHN MONTMORENCY BROWN—

Well, if you have the room;
The middle name’s the genuine thing, and not a nom de plume.
P.S.—The ivory knob herewith is borrowed from the bones (Remaining in our family vault) of auntie’s Cousin JONES.
Will you leave it on the table for the members’ kind inspection?
Then send it back to us who view the relic with affection.

* The allusion is to a member of The Society of Genealogists interested in American families.

BURTON.—Can anyone give me any information about Sir William de BURTON, Kt., Standard-bearer to Henry VI., slain at the Battle of Towton, 29 March, 1461. He is mentioned in NICHOLS' Leicestershire, page 635, also in Harl. MS. 1439, fo. 7, in the British Museum.

FREEMAN.—I would be grateful for any new facts as to the identity and ancestry of Mrs. Sybilla FREEMAN (? born STEWART), who, as a widow, of Greenwich, aged forty years, married (? secondly) in 1738, Edmond HALLEY, junior, Surgeon, R.N., a bachelor, also of Greenwich. Did she not have a daughter (? Sarah) other than the one, Mary, who married John PARRY, in 1744? If so, did this supposed daughter, Sarah FREEMAN, marry one DAY, before 1746?

The Pedigree Register

SEPT., 1913]

[VOL. III, No. 26.

Reeves of Harrow School, 1745-1819.

In or about the year 1745 one Henry REEVES became the Writing Master or Usher at Harrow School, and, so far as I can ascertain, he remained in that capacity until his death in December 1763—he was buried in Harrow Churchyard on the 10th December, 1768. Of his parentage and antecedents I have not been able to discover anything, except that his father lived in or near Windsor and possessed a green French snuff-box with gold rims and a silver medal inscribed “Growing Arts adorn Empire.”

He married soon after, if not before, he came to Harrow, and his wife's Christian name was Elizabeth. I have not been able to find her parentage, and though family tradition has for fifty years past asserted that she was one of the three handsome daughters of an Oxford tradesman, named BOSSOM, of whom the eldest, Sarah, married 17th September, 1738, John PRINSEP, B.A., for some time Vicar of Bicester in Oxfordshire, family tradition in this instance appears to be wrong, because an entry in the Register of Marriages at the church of St. Thomas the Martyr in Oxford records that Elizabeth BOSSOM was married there by Licence 16th September, 1748, to one Samuel REEVES of the parish of St. Nicholas, Abingdon, possibly a brother of the Henry REEVES above mentioned.

Elizabeth REEVES, after the death of her husband—an event which apparently reduced the family to penury—appears to have established herself in business in Fleet Street, in partnership with, or at least with the assistance of a married sister, Dinnis WEIR; and with the help and advice of one John THORNE, trading as a wine and spirit merchant at 165 Fleet Street, and of Benjamin BOOTH, also of Fleet Street, who was from 1767 to 1783 a Director of the East India Company, she seems to have carried on her business very profitably for about twenty-seven years: she died in March 1796 and was buried at Harrow 31st March, leaving real estate of some value at Harrow as well as personal property, all accumulated by her business in Fleet Street. Her will, signed 21 October, 1783, and a codicil, added 29 March, 1794, were both proved by John THORNE, sole executor, in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury on 28 April, 1796.

The Harrow Church Registers record that Henry and Elizabeth REEVES had thirteen children: six daughters and seven sons, as here enumerated:—

1. Eliza Dinnis,	Baptized 18 Oct. 1748.	Buried 3 October, 1749.
2. Rebecka Carolina	„ 8 Apl. 1750.	„ 1 September, 1750.
3. Henry,	„ 16 Oct. 1751.
4. Dorothea,	„ 22 Oct. 1752.	„ 8 November, 1752.
5. Anne,	„ 19 Mch. 1754.	„ 26 March, 1754.
6. Eudocia,		„ 23 September, 1755.
7. Sophia Dyonisia,	„ 7 Sept. 1756.	„ 12 April, 1757.

- | | | |
|---------------------|------------------------|--------------------------|
| 8. Charles William, | Baptized 24 Aug. 1758. | Buried 20 October, 1758. |
| 9. Thomas, | „ 9 Dec. 1759. | |
| 10. Robert, | „ 8 Apl. 1761. | |
| 11. Frederick, | „ 8 Oct. 1762. | „ 31 October, 1762. |
| 12. Frederick, | „ 7 Dec. 1763. | |
| 13. James Pearson | „ 2 Aug. 1765. | |

Of the five sons who lived to maturity, one, Thomas REEVES (No. 9) appears to have died unmarried before his mother, and the other four—Henry (No. 3), Robert (No. 10), Frederick (No. 12), and James Pearson (No. 13)—all married and had issue and were living at the date (29 March, 1794) on which their mother signed the Codicil to her will.

The eldest son, Henry REEVES (No. 3), was a little more than seventeen years of age at the date of his father's death, and notwithstanding his youth, was apparently appointed his father's successor in the situation of Writing Master and Usher at Harrow School, as in the School List for 1770—the earliest it is stated, now extant—Henry REEVES appears bracketed with Mr. BENMARDIN as Writing Masters.

This Henry REEVES seems to have retained this situation for nearly fifty years, until the year 1819, as in the School List for that year the name of Henry REEVES disappears and that of Mr. MARILLIER appears for the first time as Writing Master.

Henry REEVES married at Harrow Church, 10 October, 1778, Margaret PEARCE, of the parish of St. Martin's in the Fields, and dying at Harrow in 1826, aged 76, was buried in Harrow Churchyard 14 March. By his wife, who was buried in Harrow Churchyard, 7 March, 1805, he seems to have had one son, Henry Charles REEVES, baptized in Harrow Church, 24 June, 1783, and two daughters, Margaret Elizabeth Frederick REEVES, baptized at Harrow Church, 15 January, 1782, and Mary Eliza REEVES, buried in Harrow Churchyard 5 November, 1788. I cannot myself find out anything about this son and daughter, who seem to have survived their father; but I have been told by Mr. George ESDALE, of the Old Rectory, Platt in Rusholme, Lancashire, that one Henry Charles REEVES, who lived for many years at Harrow and subsequently in London, married the sister of the wife of his uncle William George MEECHAM, namely Mary Ann SHREEVE, who was born 17 May, 1792, and died his widow without children at Albert Villa, New Road, Shepherd's Bush, 18 December, 1870, being buried in Brompton Cemetery. Her will was vicariously executed by an adopted daughter 29 November, 1869, and was admitted to probate 1 February, 1871. She had been for many years in the enjoyment of an annuity settled upon her, whether by will or otherwise is not known, by Henry PAGE, the last of the PAGES of Wembley, Middlesex, who died in 1829.

There was said to have been some degree of relationship between the PAGES of Wembley and Henry REEVES of Harrow. By his will, dated 23 June, 1803, Richard PAGE of Wembley bequeathed to Henry REEVES of Harrow and Charles Henry REEVES his son, the sum of one hundred pounds apiece, but in the PAGE pedigree which I have seen I can find no trace of any relationship with Henry REEVES.

About the sons, Robert (No. 10), and James Pearson (No. 13), I can obtain no information except that both were married, and each had a daughter named after their mother, Elizabeth. Regarding the remaining son, Frederick (No. 12), he was born at Harrow 5 December, and baptized there 7 December 1763; was nominated by his mother's friend, Mr. Benjamin BOOTH, to a writership in the Bombay Civil Service on 11 April, 1781, and served in the Bombay Presidency in several administrative offices, such as Muster Master and Assistant to the Military Paymaster 1791-98. He was Paymaster at Canara 1802-6 and Commercial Resident at Canara 1807-9. He amassed a considerable fortune by the methods usually employed in the 18th century and the commencement of the 19th century by officials of the East India Company, and retired from the service in 1813. He settled at East Sheen in Mortlake, Surrey, having married at St. Martin's in the Fields 8 April, 1797, Catherine HAWKES (second daughter of Jeremiah HAWKES of Cecil Street, Strand, a prosperous coal-merchant at Whitefriars Wharf, by his wife Sarah WALTER, the youngest daughter of Philip WALTER of Moretonhampstead, Devon), became a J.P. for Surrey, and died at East Sheen 30 October 1842, having had three sons and six daughters, one of whom was my mother.

If anyone can give me any further information respecting the descendants, if any, of my grandfather's brothers detailed above, I shall be very greatly obliged.

Why should we grieve as hopeless and forlorn,
The dead are blest, 'tis selfishness to mourn.
Why should we grieve that friends released from woe
Behold the God with whom they walk'd below.

Vain murmurings hush! Lo! Faith with angel pow'r
Scatters the clouds that o'er the death-vault low'r,
And points our view to palaces of peace
Where pain and sin, terrific troubles, cease.
There sons of Heav'n, who yield their strict account,
Drink of pure joys at an unfailing fount,
And RIDDELL thee, thy race of patience run,
Waits the just servant's meed, his Lord's "Well Done."

JOSHUA FLEATHAM had, besides Mrs. THOMAS HOWITT, a daughter, Mrs. STERRY, whose daughter, Mrs. HOARE, was grandmother to the Miss HOARE who married Sir EDWARD PARRY, the well-known Arctic traveller.

HARRIET HOWITT, Mrs. JOHN PAUL BERTHON, was sister to SAMUEL HOWITT, the artist.

In St. Peter and St. Paul's Old Church, Chingford, Essex, the old ruined church, is a mural tablet in the chancel.

In Memory of
 JOHN PAUL BERTHON Esqre of the Chancery Registrar's Office in London who died 24 June 1792
 Aged 33 years.

Also
 ROBERT BRADDYLL LEWIS, son of the Revd. ROBERT LEWIS, Rector of this Parish and HARRIETT his wife, who died March 16, 1794 aged 6 months.
 Likewise ELIZABETH HOWITT, widow,
 (Mother of HARRIETT LEWIS) who died
 11 December 1797 aged 76 years

Also
 AMPHILLIS ELIZA SARAH TWEED widow, daughter of the above named JOHN PAUL BERTHON who died 12 September 1860 aged 67 years.

This tablet is not the original tablet; the original was destroyed by an explosion, and fragments of the stone might be seen before 1892 on the right side of the door into the Chancel on entering, and may still be visible on the floor of the church.

MARY FRANCES BERTHON, Mrs. THOMAS WILLIAMS, had two sisters; the elder one, JANE BERTHON, wife of the Revd. JOHN HINDE, vicar of Ludford in Salop, lived to a great age, being born 25 November, 1788, and died 30 March, 1888, at Ilfracombe, North Devon (see The Times, 3 April, 1888). The younger sister was AMPHILLIS ELIZA SARAH, wife of THOMAS R. TWEED, who died in 1849.

THOMAS WILLIAMS, Esq., of Rushden Hall and Warfield Lodge, was descended from the WILLIAMSES of Bridehead (see BURKE's Landed Gentry). He married a second wife and had a large family also by her.

Mary Frances WILLIAMS, wife of William HINDE, had several brothers, amongst whom were General William Thomas WILLIAMS, 32nd Madras Native Infantry, and John WILLIAMS, who went to Australia. Her sister was Elizabeth, Mrs. Peter PEACHEY.

William HINDE had brothers, Major General John HINDE, C.B., and the Revd. Francis HINDE, Chaplain in the Honourable East India Company's Service and latterly rector of East Lanbrook, Somerset. William HINDE's sisters were, Amelia, married to Edward Serle THOROLD, brother of the Bishop of Winchester, and grandson of Sir John THOROLD, Bart.; Mary, wife of Henry Ashmore EVATT, son of Colonel EVATT; Charlotte, wife of Philip Patten DOWN, eldest son of Admiral DOWN of Ilfracombe, and Sarah, who died unmarried.

John Paul BERTHON was eldest son of Paul BERTHON of London, merchant, and his wife Amphilis LEWIS, and grandson of Paul BERTHON of Lisbon, merchant (died at Lisbon 1765), and his wife Jeanne, born 14 November, 1706; died at Clapton 11 June, 1791 (see The Gentleman's Magazine 1791, page 588, and MUSGRAVE'S Obituary), daughter and eventually sole heir of John SAURET of Stewart Street, London, Elder of The Artillery French Church, London, and his wife Martha MOTET. Paul BERTHON, merchant of Lisbon, was eldest son of "Le Sr. Paul BERTHON de Chatellerault" (see Act Book of the Consistory French Church, Threadneedle Street, 1693-1708, page 439) who was born 1674, and died 1743 (Will P.C.C. 1743), and his first wife Magdalen DAVAL (born 1678, died 1714-16), daughter of Jean DAVAL of Bacqueville, near Dieppe, and Anne SAMSON his wife. Peter DAVAL, Master in Chancery, F.R.S., was nephew of Magdalen DAVAL and son of Peter DAVAL of St. Paul's, Covent Garden, gentleman.

The Peter BERTHON whose family Bible entries were printed in The Pedigree Register of June last (Vol. III, page 19) was the 2nd son of Paul BERTHON of Lisbon, merchant, and Jeanne SAURET his wife.

Hesketh to Radford.

Edmund HESKETH of Ince, parish of Wigan, Lancashire. Buried there 23 April, 1602.

Alice . . . "Alice ye wife of Edmund HESKETH of Ince," bur. 21 July, 1593, at Wigan.

James LOCKER of Ince in Mackerfield. (In Wigan parish), yeoman. (Married 25 April, 1609, at Wigan, "James LOCKER and Margaret HESKINN.") Churchwarden of Wigan, 1645-6. He left a will dated 4 Jan., 1655, in which he mentioned his wife Margt., his grandchildren, the children of Roger PRESCOTT of Shevington, and his son Richard LOCKER; proved P.C.C. 21 May, 1658.

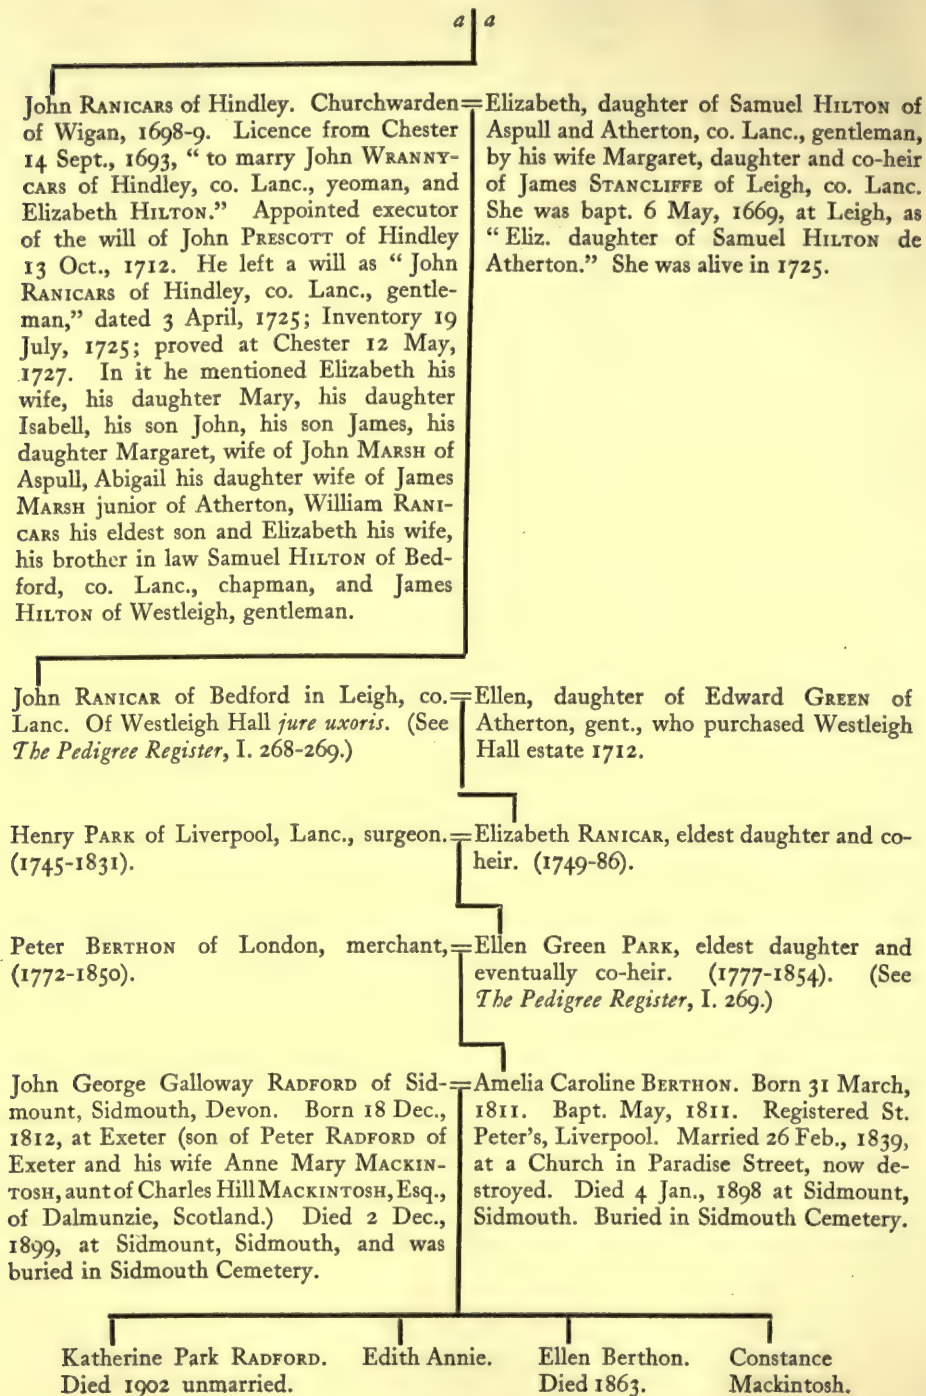

Margaret HESKETH or HESKINN. Bapt. 13 Feb., 1595-6, at Leigh, "Margaret HESKETH f Edmund de Ince." (The only Margaret HESKETH bapt. at Wigan up to 1625; no Margaret HESKINN bapt. there.) Marr. Lic. from Chester for marriage of "James LOCKER and Margaret HESKETH, parish of Wigan, spinster" at Wigan 14 April, 1609. Alive 4 January 1655.

Roger PRESCOTT of Longriding and Whalley House in Shevington, parish of Standish, yeoman. "Of Shevington, yeoman," 4 Dec., 1652, son of John PRESCOTT of Longriding, yeoman, and brother of Ralph PRESCOTT of Hindley, yeoman. Roger PRESCOTT left a will dated 20 Dec., 1698, pr. at Chester 15 May, 1702. Inventory made 16 Feb., 1701.

Elizabeth LOCKER. Bapt. 1 Dec., 1622, at Wigan, "Elizab LOCKER fill James LOCKER de Ince." Married 8 July, 1641, at Standish, "Roger PRESCOTT and Elizabeth LOCKER."

William RANICARS of Hindley, co. Lancs., yeoman and chapman. On 15 July, 1678, Ralph PRESCOTT of Hindley, yeoman, appointed Roger PRESCOTT of Shevington, yeoman, William RANICARS of Hindley, chapman, and Mathew ASTLEY of the same, his trustees. William RANICARS was Churchwarden of Wigan 1675-6. He left a will dated 27 Jan., 1692-3, as "William RANICARS of Hindley, co. Lanc., yeoman," in which he mentions his sons John, Robert, Roger, William and Prescott RANICARS. He made John RANICARS, his son, and John PRESCOTT of Hindley, his executors. Will proved 4 May, 1693, at Chester.

Margaret PRESCOTT, eldest daughter and co-heir. Bapt. 23 Jan., 1642-3, at Standish. "Margaret daughter of Roger and Elizabeth PRESCOTT." Married there 2 Nov., 1663, "William RANICARS and Margaret PRESCOTT." Died before 1692, or if alive not mentioned in her husband's will.

There is some doubt as to the correct maiden name of Margaret, wife of James LOCKER of Ince, as in the Wigan Marriage Register she was called "HESKINN" and in the Marriage Licence issued at Chester a few days before marriage she was called "HESKETH." Also there is doubt as to the identity of the Margaret HESKETH mentioned in the marriage licence of 14 April, 1609, with Margaret, daughter of Edmund HESKETH of Ince, baptized at Wigan 1595-6; and there seems to be no way of deciding the question, as neither Edmund HESKETH nor Alice his wife left wills proved at Chester. However, it is possible that either the will of James INCE or his wife Ellen HESKETH of Ince (married at Wigan 23 January, 1602-3), if they exist, might throw some light on the matter.

Margaret HESKETH, baptized at Wigan 13 February, 1595-6, is the only Margaret HESKETH baptized there before 1609, and there is no baptism of a Margaret HESKINN there before that date. It is possible that Edmund HESKETH of Ince came from the parish of Ormskirk, as on 20 May, 1576, there was the baptism at Ormskirk of "Jaine HESKETH fi: Edmund," no other child of an Edmund HESKETH being baptized there up to 1602; while at Wigan, on the 15 July, 1594, there was buried "Joane ye daught of Edmund HESKETH of Ince." Any person who can throw light on the question of Mrs. LOCKER's parentage would be doing a great favour.

Roger PRESCOTT of Shevington, yeoman, left no son at his decease, but in his will he mentioned his wife Elizabeth, his sons-in-law Thomas JACKSON, William WHALLEY and Henry MAUDSLEY; also his daughter Jane ASHTON (who was baptized at Standish 22 Dec., 1644, and died 1698-1700, leaving issue Joseph, James, Margaret, Ellen and Elizabeth), Ellen his daughter, wife of William GERARD (? parish of Windle), his grandsons John, Robert, Roger, William and Prescott RANICARS, the last mentioned being of Liverpool in 1700; also his grandchild Mary HOLCROFT.

John PRESCOTT of Hindley, yeoman, was eldest son and heir of Ralph PRESCOTT of Hindley, brother of Roger PRESCOTT of Shevington. John PRESCOTT of Hindley was an important witness in the law-suit at the end of the 17th century, which established the claim of the Church party to the parish church of Hindley and released that church from the Nonconformists who claimed it.

John RANICARS of Hindley, called "yeoman" and "gentleman," was one of those who signed the petition to the Bishop of Chester to consecrate Hindley Church, 1698.

Elizabeth HILTON, wife of John RANICARS of Hindley, was sister to James HILTON of Pennington Hall, parish of Leigh, and aunt to Samuel HILTON of Pennington Hall, High Sheriff of Lancashire in 1760, drowned at Leigh, co. Lancaster, 3 April, 1761, from whom descended

Nathaniel WILMER was the second and younger son of Captain Nathaniel WILMER of St. Dionis Backchurch, London, and of Cashel, Ireland, by his wife Constance SHERWOOD, of East Hendred, Berks. His grandfather was the Rev. John WILMER, M.A., of Sherborne, co. Warwick, curate at St. Ann's, Blackfriars, to the famous puritan Dr. William GOUGE, and for some forty-three years incumbent of Northill, Beds., where he died in 1655. By his wife, née Mary (?) HOGGET he had nine sons, and three daughters. Of these, five were clergymen, and three, puritan clergy in Sussex, two of whom, Samuel and Thomas, were ejected for nonconformity in 1662.

Captain Nathaniel WILMER, born in 1621, was sent by Cromwell to Ireland with his regiment in 1650, and died in command at Cashel (under the celebrated Colonel Richard LE HUNTE), in 1654, aged thirty-three. His widow, Constance, joined the Quakers shortly after, and in 1661 printed a Quaker pamphlet addressed to Archbishop FULLER of Cashel.

They had two sons, the first, John WILMER was baptized at St. Dionis Backchurch in 1647; he was a citizen and merchant taylor of London, and a silk merchant of Friday street. He died in 1723 at Ealing, his country residence, and by his third wife, Mary MYERS of Aldingham, Lancs., had a son John WILMER of Stoke Newington, born in 1694, and two daughters. His daughter Grizell, born in 1692, married Jonathan GURNELL of Cartmell Fell, and of London and Ealing, merchant and banker, a friend of and bill-discounter to William PENN. He died in 1753; his wife in 1756.

The second son, Nathaniel WILMER, junior, born probably at Cashel about 1650, and named by his father Captain Nathaniel in his will as 'my young son,' then under the tuition of his mother, was the owner of the Bible. He, like his mother and brother, was a Quaker, and a friend of PENN. He never married. He was a merchant and ship-owner and resided at St. Giles-in-the-Fields, London. An interesting letter addressed to him by his friend Robert TURNER, formerly of Ireland, but then of Philadelphia, in 1690, referring to the settlement of Pennsylvania and enclosing a letter for William PENN, was printed with other letters in 1691.

Nathaniel WILMER was in trouble with the Government of William III. for corresponding with the enemy; he was also the subject of persecution in London for his Quaker principles, but was later disowned by the Society for some breach of their principles or practices. He died just two hundred years ago on the high seas, aboard the merchant ship The Reward, namely in 1711, aged about sixty. His Bible eventually, after two centuries, has come into the possession of his collateral descendant, the present writer, who is directly descended from his brother, John WILMER of Friday street aforesaid.

THE SOCIETY OF GENEALOGISTS OF LONDON.—The first eight Quarterly Reports of this Society having appeared in the pages of The Pedigree Register, it has been arranged, with a view to reaching a new constituency, to have future Quarterly Reports inserted in The Antiquary (Elliot Stock, Paternoster Row). Members of the Society will receive copies of the issues containing these in due course.

DAY and PYKE.—I am seeking to establish the ancestry and identity of Mrs. Sarah DAY, widow, who, as of the parish of St. Leonard's, Shoreditch, Middlesex, married, in 1746, William PYKE. Was her maiden surname FREEMAN?

FREEMAN.—I should be pleased to obtain any new facts about Mrs. Sybilla FREEMAN, widow, of Greenwich, Kent, who, in 1738, married Edmond HALLEY, junior, surgeon, R.N. Can the will of her former husband be found?

PAYNE.—Can anyone give me any information about Captain John PAYNE, a '49 officer, "who served Charles I. before 1649," and was a grantee of some property in Cos. Dublin and Waterford, under the Acts of Settlement?

DUFF (II. 351):—Although I am unable to furnish the precise information required by your correspondent, the following notes may prove of interest.

The "English Consul at Cadiz" referred to in the MS. pedigree was James DUFF who was created a Baronet in 1813. BURKE gives the date of creation as the 12th of November of that year, but according to The Gentleman's Magazine he was gazetted a Baronet on the 25th of September. The entry reads: "Gazette Promotions. Whitehall, Sep. 25. The Prince Regent has been pleased, in the name and on the behalf of his Majesty, to grant the dignity of a Baronet of the United Kingdom to . . . James DUFF, esq., Consul at the port of Cadiz, and his heirs male, with remainder to his nephew, Wm. GORDON of Stanhope-street, and his heirs male." (G.M. 1813, pt. II, p. 394, O&.)

James DUFF was appointed His Majesty's Consul at Cadiz 3 April, 1790 (Foreign Office List, 1912, p. 461), having previously filled the office of Pro-Consul at that place for several years. His name occurs in The Court and City Register for 1785, and again in The Royal Kalendar for 1789, as Pro-Consul. I have not been able to consult a complete series of either of the above-named publications, so that I cannot state the year of his appointment as Pro-Consul. For the benefit of the uninitiated I would explain that a Pro-Consul is a person appointed by the Consul, with the approval of the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, to administer oaths and perform certain other notarial functions. He is not a Consular Officer. At the present day Pro-Consuls are usually clerks in the Consulate Offices.

James DUFF remained as Consul at Cadiz from 1790 to his death in 1815, which is recorded as follows in The Gentleman's Magazine for that year (pt. II, Supplement, p. 641): "Nov. 29. At Port St. Mary's, Spain, in his 82d. year, Sir James DUFF, Bart., H.M. Consul at Cadiz. His remains were interred in the officers' burial-ground, Gibraltar, Dec. 3, Gen. DON, the lieut-governor, chief mourner. The pall was borne by eight of the Foreign Consuls established at Gibraltar, attended by the principal merchants and inhabitants, the officers of the army and navy, those in the public departments, and the general officers and their staff. Minute guns were fired during the march to the grave." In The European Magazine, however, the date of death is given as the 20th November, the entry reading: "Nov. 20. At Port St. Mary, Spain, in his 81st. year, Sir James DUFF, Bart., his Majesty's Consul at Cadiz." The date given in BURKE's Peerage is also 20 November, and is probably correct, as, had he died on 29 November, it is scarcely probable that arrangements could have been made for such an elaborate funeral by the 3rd of December.

According to BURKE—I have unfortunately had no opportunity of consulting "G.E.C."—Sir James DUFF was the only son of William DUFF of Crombie, by Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Robert DALRYMPLE, Knt., of Castleton. He was succeeded by his nephew Sir William DUFF-GORDON, 2nd. Bart. So much for the Consul.

On 8 February, 1800, James Gordon DUFF, aged 12, son of James DUFF, merchant, of Finsbury Square, was admitted to St. Paul's School, London. (GARDNER: Registers St. Paul's School.) He was therefore born in or about 1788.

I find from the Universal British Directory, 1790, that a James DUFF, Merchant, then resided at 9, Salisbury street, Strand; while in HOLDEN's Triennial Directory for 1808, James DUFF, Esq., is mentioned among the private residents as living at 13, Albion street, Blackfriars road. James DUFF died at Banff on 1 April, 1812, according to the following extract from The Gentleman's Magazine of the year in question (pt. I, p. 489, May): "April 1. At Bamff (sic), N.B., Jas. DUFF, Esq., of the House of GORDON, DUFF, and Co. of Madeira."

James Gordon DUFF, the son, married, first, 4 October 1817, Frances, second daughter of James WILLIAMSON, Esq., of Tavistock square. In the entry in The Gentleman's Magazine recording the marriage (1817, pt. II, p. 466, Nov.) he is described as "James Gordon DUFF, Esq., of Madeira, and of Brunswick square, London." She died on 16 October, 1826, as is proved by the following extract from The Gentleman's Magazine for that year (pt. II, p. 379, Oct.); "Oct. 16. In Duchess street, Portland place, aged 33, Frances, wife of James Gordon DUFF, Esq." He apparently married a second time, as I have found the following reference in The Gentleman's Magazine (1838, pt. I, p. 204, Feb.): "Births. Dec. 10 [1837]. In Harley street the wife of James Gordon DUFF, Esq., a dau." He died on 1 Aug. 1845, aged 57—not "about 70" as stated by your correspondent; according to this age he was born in or about 1788, which agrees with the entry in the Admission Register to St. Paul's School. His death is recorded as follows in The Gentleman's Magazine for 1845 (pt. II, p. 321, Sept.) "Aug. 1. Aged 57, James Gordon DUFF, Devonport street, Hyde Park."

With regard to General Patrick DUFF, I would direct your correspondent's attention to the following extracts from the publication that I have already cited so many times: 1803 (pt. I, p. 197, Feb.) "Deaths. Feb. 2. At Edinburgh, Major-General Patrick DUFF, of the East India Company's service; and, on the 6th, his wife." 1817 (pt. I, p. 572, June.) "Deaths. June 3. In Hans Place, Chelsea, in her 22d. year, Margaret SINCLAIR, eldest daughter of the late General Patrick DUFF, of Carnousie, Banffshire."

There seems to be good circumstantial evidence justifying the assumption that James DUFF, the merchant of London and Madeira, was connected with Sir James DUFF, the British Consul at Cadiz.

The greater part of the above information was obtained by a few hours' cursory search through The Gentleman's Magazine, and I would suggest to your correspondent that he should make copies of all the DUFF references therein from 1731 to 1850. They are not excessively numerous and would be certain to yield additional information of value.

CLOKEY.—In the last decade of the 18th century a number of families of the name of CLOKEY were living in the Co. Down, principally in the Ballynahinch district and between that town and Dromore. They were strong Presbyterians and took an active part in the rising of '98. Joseph CLOKEY was second in command of the Downshire men at the Battle of Ballynahinch. His son Joseph was "aide" to General MONRO. Both father and son were captured. The son was executed, but the father escaped from Dublin Castle and took boat for America, where his descendants still live. According to tradition the first to settle in the Co. Down were two brothers, William and Joseph CLOKEY. They were in the army of WILLIAM III., and fought at the Boyne, receiving property in Ballynahinch for their services. A tradition says they joined WILLIAM from Scotland; another that they were originally of a Huguenot family CLOQUET, who were refugees from France during the reign of LOUIS XIV. A number of songs about Joseph CLOKEY (probably the younger) used to be current in the Co. Down. I heard my grandmother sing some of them when I was a boy. The following couplet is all that remains in my memory:

"The Croppies they're fighting at Ballinasloe, Led on by young CLOKEY and General MONRO."

I shall be indebted to anyone who can throw further light on the matter. Can anyone say if copies of the songs are still to be had or if they may be seen anywhere, or if there was a French Huguenot family named CLOQUET? Probably variations of spelling in Great Britain are: CLOKY, CLOKIE, CLOCKIE, and perhaps the English CLOAKE.

A Chancery Romance.

CROUCH, BODDINGTON AND "COX versus COX."

At St. Helen's Place in Bishopsgate Street, an eighteenth century cul de sac not quite spoiled yet by modern improvements, may still be found the brass plate of the firm of "BODDINGTONS," West India merchants.

In the archives of that firm, "in bag, box, trunk, or chest, locked or unlocked," are still preserved musty parchments reciting the names of West Indian slaves, Pompey, Quashie and whatnot, when their corporal bodies were transferable as chattels, belonging, with the rest of the movable stock, to the plantations whence came the old Jamaica rum and Demerara sugar of our forefathers.

The firm was established, in close proximity to its present offices, so far back as 1677, witness the London Directory of that year, "the oldest printed list of the Merchants and Bankers of London, very useful and necessary . . . directing them at the first sight of their name to the place of their abode."

"George BODDINGTON, Great St. Hellen's."

The business was then, old-established and much respected a hundred years later or so, when, in 1780, to be precise, a business correspondent in Antigua wrote to say that he was sending his son to England, in one of Messrs. BODDINGTON'S own ships, without relation or friend to accompany him, to enjoy the advantage of an English education.

The heads of the firm, Benjamin and Thomas BODDINGTON, might well have been astonished to have a responsibility such as this thrust upon them, without notice or suggestion of fee or reward. But they accepted the situation—young Charles CROUCH, aged 6½, on his arrival was taken home to Hackney, where Thomas BODDINGTON had his private house, received into the family, and in due time went to school with his own children.

In the meantime a brief notification was received from Charles CROUCH, senior, the boy's father, and drafts were remitted from time to time to meet the current expenses of clothing and schooling of CROUCH junior, whom the BODDINGTON family had come to regard almost as one of themselves.

Then came the news of the father's death in March, 1783, and the announcement that Messrs. BODDINGTON were appointed executors in trust for the son. The amount of the estate then held in trust for him was £18,511 3s.

Here is a description of the father in his last days:

Mrs. WISSTON of Dark Valley, Antigua, was formerly Miss BOTT, daughter of John BOTT, in whose house Charles CROUCH the elder frequently resided, and with whom the son lived until his departure to England to be placed under the care of Mr. BODDINGTON. This lady states that she remembers both CROUCH, the Father, and the Son, a Child, very well. The elder was a Man of spare figure about 5 feet 7 or 8 inches high rather stooping in the Shoulders, his hair thin and scant, forgets the colour, thin longish nose. The Son was a puny Child, very thin, but not unhealthy, does not remember Mrs. CROUCH, who died before the older CROUCH visited her (Mrs. WISSTON's) Father's House, but heard she had kept a Shop in the Town of St. John's, while she was Mrs. RIDER and had Negroes hired to the King's Dock Yard, which in those days brought her in a considerable income prior to her marriage with Mr. CROUCH the elder, who she conceives was greatly influenced to the match by the prospect of participating in her property—and which she thinks was the origin of Mr. CROUCH's property—prior to his marriage he was in low circumstances filling the situation of a Writing Clerk.—After Mrs. CROUCH's death he placed his Son to reside with Mr. BOTT's Family and left the Island, she believes, concerned in some speculations with a Mr. Charles KERR here (I presume in the St. Lucia Business in the Agent Viciously (sic) Department)—his St. Lucia Speculation must have greatly increased his property, which he had in specie here—on his return he quarrelled with Mr. BOTT for incurring two items of expence for his Son during his absence, viz. 8 Dollars for the Doctor for inoculating him for the Small Pox and a fee for Christening the child, and on that account he himself left Mr. BOTT's House and went and resided with a Mrs. HUGGINS who kept a Boarding House where he died.—Mrs. WISSTON continues that he was parsimonious and while in the Boarding house almost denied himself of the necessaries of life—that he would not occupy a Bed room but slept on a Sofa in the Hall, and on the approach of dissolution was with great difficulty prevailed upon by a friend to make a Will. Dr. BLIZARD his medical Attendant used every endeavour but in vain to induce him to leave his Daughter in Law Miss RIDER even a small portion of the large sum spread before him on the Table near the Sofa on which he was dying and which on the occasion of the making of the Will had been transferred from a Trunk and reckoned; he left her the House in Spring Gardens but nothing else, and kept feeling and passing his fingers over his money until sensation left him.

So, it will be seen, with what a responsibility were Messrs. BODDINGTON invested, uninvited and unsought!

Then followed a supreme test for the quality of their humanity and business acumen; after anxious consultations, nerve-wracking doubt and worry, their charge was discovered to have developed undoubted symptoms of impaired intellect and had to be confined closely under medical supervision.

There is a touching letter of condolence, howbeit in the somewhat stilted fashion of the day, addressed a little before this by the young fellow to the widow of Mr. Benjamin BODDINGTON, who had died in November, 1791.

He writes, from Paris, where he was then with a tutor and one of Mr. BODDINGTON's sons, and conveys his sense of all that had been done for him in England. "I feel myself bound by gratitude and that most affectionate attachment which I owe to your character to express the sensations called forth in my heart by yours and my own misfortune—I have lost my best friend. . . . I have lost a Father who has more than supplied the poverty of my natural connexions," he said.

He had made his will before he was pronounced insane, and after sundry pecuniary legacies, he appointed his remaining benefactor and friend Thomas BODDINGTON his residuary legatee. The BODDINGTONS were the only people who had taken any trouble with the fatherless boy, the only friends he had or who had expressed any interest in him, and Thomas BODDINGTON without expectation of personal benefit had well and truly husbanded the boy's resources, as we shall shortly see.

Now here comes blind circumstance: the young man hopelessly deranged and in confinement, unable to manage his property or alter his will, his benefactor dies, and in consequence the residuary interest of the BODDINGTONS in the estate lapses and then the lunatic himself dies.

Up come the claimants to the property, from all parts of the earth; people of whom the CROUCHES, father and son, never heard, and certainly never thought of endowing. The solicitors write of an experience which must in such cases be common enough:

The Law charges of our House from the time of Messrs. WESTON being first consulted by Messrs. BODDINGTON in the year 1797 including the expense of the Commission and the proceedings under it down to the month of August 1822 have been, from time to time, taxed by the Master, and paid by the Accountant-General, the same amounting in the whole to no more than £617 4s. 10d. and our Bill from 1822 to the death of the Lunatic and our subsequent charges for the Advertisements for next of kin, and consequent upon them, are also inconsiderable as compared with the objects, but these latter it has not been possible to controul as we should have desired in consequence of the innumerable, and continual applications, made to us and which both as to those by Letter and those made personally, and particularly the latter we have had the greatest difficulty in dealing with especially as most of the Applicants have been persons of little or no education, a circumstance which did not however make it less obligatory on us to pay them every attention and afford them every information there being nothing to shew that persons so situated might not prove to be the parties for whom we had so long been anxiously seeking—the next of kin of the Lunatic, and, under this head, we can safely say, that no Bill we could make out would be anything like an adequate compensation to us for the occupation of our time and the trouble we have had in the investigation of the claims, which have been addressed to us, and with regard to which it has been our painful task to have to endeavour to convince those, who could not be satisfied.

The Treasury Solicitor held a watching brief, for it was believed the estate would go to the Crown for want of heirs. However, in the end the claimants were reduced to two people named Cox, namely Samuel Cox and Samuel Brandford Cox, the lunatic's nearest relations through his father's mother, who was a Miss Cox.

Let us now see of what the property consisted and how it was disposed of. It is a lesson showing how, carefully-nursed, a comparatively small sum developed into a respectable fortune, what a fine thing it must have been in those days to be a Proctor of the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, what care should be taken in will-making, especially as to residuary estate, and, finally what entrancing family history lies buried in the records of the Court of Chancery.

The sum placed by the elder CROUCH in Messrs. BODDINGTON'S hands for investment prior to 1783 amounted to £15,727 2s. 2d.

In 1834 it had increased to no less than £164,000, or more than tenfold.

As we have seen, the solicitor's charges (Messrs. TEESDALE, SYMES & WESTON, Fenchurch Street, London), from 1797 to 1834 amounted to no more than £617 4s. 10d., but the Schedule ran up as follows:

Expenses of sending a Commission, proctor, &c., to Antigua, Demerara and Barbados, to take evidence (including the proctor's fee of 500 guineas exclusive of his expenses) ..	£3,154	6	6
Expenses (including duty) attending Administration with the will annexed of Charles CROUCH, junior	2,170	14	4
Treasury Solicitor's expenses (watching on behalf of the Crown)	434	6	8
Other solicitors' bills of costs, which included heavy sums paid to witnesses	2,056	13	4
	<hr/>
Total ..	£7,816	0	10
	<hr/>

Then the balance was paid out to the claimants as follows:

To Samuel Cox	£55,000	0	0	Consols
	6,250	0	0	Bank Stock
	393	15	0	New 3½ p.c. Annuities
	<hr/>
	£61,643	15	0
	<hr/>
To Samuel Brandford Cox ..	£55,000	0	0	Consols
	6,250	0	0	Bank Stock
	393	15	0	New 3½ p.c. Annuities
	<hr/>
	£61,643	15	0

In dealing with large figures a discrepancy is not so particularly noticeable, but what with all the heavy expenses and the other bequests, the amount to be shared between the two lucky claimants, who probably never set eyes upon the owners, is seen to have diminished by more than £40,000. They, no doubt, had many a harassing night of broken repose before they got their handsome fortunes into the custody of their own bankers.

The facts in the case are set out in a statement subsequently drawn up (in 1834, by Messrs. TEESDALE, SYMES & WESTON), for the information of Samuel Brandford Cox, supplemented by the Masters' Reports and Certificates and the Decrees and Orders amongst the records of the Court of Chancery under the title "Cox v. Cox," but particularly should be noticed, in the Chancery Reports and Certificates of Easter, 1836, Master ROUPELL's Report, filling 342 foolscap pages, setting out in full the evidence upon which the claimants' title was based and how it was obtained.

Thomas ENGLISH, alive in 1782. Inherited from his Aunts Damaris FISHER née BROWSE and Grace Ann BROWSE (wills respectively 1782 and 1779, P.C.C.) a house at "Burntwood" in Essex.

Rolfe PETTUS of Bryces in Kelvedon, Essex, Esquire, is said to have been a strong Royalist. He was the son and heir of William PETTUS of London, merchant (whose will was proved 1608, P.C.C.) by his wife Elizabeth, daughter and co-heir of Henry ROLFE of Bryces, gent., citizen and leatherseller of London. From Edmund ROLFE of Narford, a brother of Henry ROLFE's, descended the ROLFES of Heacham Hall, Norfolk; and from Henry ROLFE's sister Elizabeth, wife of Edward BARKHAM of Southacre, descended the great Lord NELSON and the WALPOLES. The grandfather of Rolfe PETTUS, on the father's side, was Thomas PETTUS, Mayor of Norwich, 1591-2, who married at St. Simon and St. Jude's, Norwich 1548, Christian, daughter of Simon DETHICK of North Elmham, Norfolk. BURKE's Extinct Baronetage is quite incorrect in the statement about William, son of Thomas PETTUS, Mayor of Norwich.

Elizabeth ROLFE, the mother of Rolfe PETTUS, after the decease of William PETTUS, married Sir Francis JONES, Knight, Lord Mayor of London, 1620, as his second wife. The family of JONES of Welford, Berks, descended from Susan PETTUS (daughter of William PETTUS and Elizabeth ROLFE), and Abraham JONES, son of Sir Francis JONES by a former wife. Lady JONES (who was born 1573, and died 1634, will P.C.C. 1634) was step-mother-in-law to her own daughter.

The Rev^d. William HICKES, vicar of Edmonton, Middlesex, and then of Stoke Hammond, Bucks, was, in 1616, patron of St. Mary Somerset, in the city of London. He was born c. 1561, and, according to his admission to Brasenose College, Oxford, was from Shropshire and of plebeian origin. He was Chaplain of Magdalen College, Oxford, 1585-9, and appointed vicar of Edmonton, 1589. In 1612 he was Canon of Lincoln. He was inducted to Stoke Hammond 7 December 1625, and died circa 1645. Up to the present time neither the will nor the name of the wife of Canon HICKES has come to light. He certainly had issue, viz^t. (1) John HICKES of the Inner Temple, Esq., admitted 21 April 1631, called to the Bar in 1639. He died leaving a will proved P.C.C. 19 May 1651-2, in which he mentioned his nephew William OKE son of Walter OKE who had married his sister. To the said William he left his "house in Edmonton near the vicarage with the orchards, gardens, yards and outhouses belonging to it, wherein Maister John SMITH livith." He bequeathed also "Butts ffarme" and other lands, etc., in Edmonton, mentioned his sister, Sarah HICKES, Walter OAK that married his sister, also his nieces Damaris PETTUS and Mary PETTUS. (2) Mrs. Walter OAK. (3) Sarah HICKES, unmarried 1651-2. (4) Mary, married before 1623 to Rolfe PETTUS (see Visitation of Essex, 1634) who appears to have died before 1651-2.

John AYLET of White Roothing, gent., was the 2nd son of Captain John AYLET of Magdalen Laver, by his wife Eleanor (married 1619), widow of Thomas AYLET and daughter of Isaac BARNARD of Stebbing, Essex, yeoman. Captain John AYLET was a celebrated Royalist; some traditions regarding him are to be found in the early editions of BURKE's Landed Gentry and MORANT's History of Essex. In the grant of arms with augmentation dated 20 Nov. 1645, it is stated that he had showed much courage at Hilton Hill and Sunderland against the Scotch, and since served in His Majesty's Troop at the battles of Lostwithiel, Newbury and in other actions.

Damaris AYLET, Mrs. Andrew BRANFILL of Upminster Hall, was mentioned in the Visitation of Essex, 1664, with her sister. In her will, dated 1719; proved P.C.C. 17 April 1722, she mentioned her sisters Mary AYLET, Alice AYLET and Elizabeth HOLEMAN. The will of Alice AYLET, the sister, was proved P.C.C. 5 October 1731, by Champion and Andrew BRANFILL.

Captain Andrew BRANFILL was son of William BRANFIELD of BRANFIELD of Dartmouth, Devon, and Johane FORD, who were married at St. Saviour's, Dartmouth, 1628. According to MORANT's History of Essex, the name was originally BAMFIELD. Captain Andrew BRANFILL had married in 1671 Sarah FOSTER, by whom he had two children, Sarah and Edward. He married secondly Damaris AYLET, and a few years after his second marriage he bought from the Earl of GAINSBOROUGH the manor of Upminster, i.e. in 1685. He is said to have made several successful voyages in a ship called the "Champion" (of which ship there is a picture belonging to the BRANFILL family) and to have named the eldest son of his second marriage, Champion, after the ship. Edward BRANFILL having died in 1701, the Captain was succeeded by his son, Champion, in the Upminster Hall estate, who was the Champion BRANFILL of Upminster Hall, High Sheriff of Essex, 1734.

Elizabeth BROWSE, Mrs. Charles ENGLISH, had no brothers; she had, however, sisters (1) Sarah, (2) Mary, Mrs. JONES, (3) Grace Ann BROWSE of Burntwood, Essex, will P.C.C. 1779, (4) Damaris, Mrs. John FISHER, will P.C.C. 1782, (5) Susannah, Mrs. Charles ENGLISH who had no female issue. In his will Charles ENGLISH bequeathed a ring, which he stated had been three hundred years in his family.

The arms of Captain Andrew BRANFILL are on a memorial to him in Upminster Church.

John CROWCH of Corneybury, Hertfordshire, had a large family of sons and daughters and there is a fine monument to him at Layston, in that county. One of the daughters, Margaret, was third wife of Henry, 1st Earl of MANCHESTER, and of the sons, one, Thomas CROWCH, of Corneybury, married Sarah GALLARD, daughter of Henry GALLARD of the City of Norwich (will P.C.C. 1614) by Margaret BARKHAM, sister of Sir Edward; and another John CROWCH of Alswick Hall, Herts, married Anne, daughter and co-heir of Henry ROLFE of Bryces, Kelvedon, Essex, citizen and leatherseller of London, by his wife, a daughter of Thomas HOWE, citizen and fishmonger. Henry ROLFE was an uncle of Sir Edward BARKHAM, Lord Mayor of London, 1621.

Sir Edward BARKHAM was born 1552-3 and died 15 January 1633-4, aged 83 (will proved P.C.C.). There is a monument to him in Southacre Church, Norfolk, and, according to Payne FISHER's Monuments in London City Churches, 1666, one in St. James', Piccadilly. Sir Edward was son of Edward BARKHAM of Southacre, yeoman (will proved at Norwich 6 June 1600), by his wife Elizabeth, sister of Henry ROLFE of Bryces and daughter of Robert ROLFE of Sporle in Norfolk, husbandman, 1557, and Margaret CROWE his wife, sister of the Rev^d. Nicholas CROWE of Mileham.

Sir Edward BARKHAM had issue:

- (1) Sir Edward BARKHAM, knight, ancestor of the BARKHAMS of Southacre, Baronets.
- (2) Elizabeth, wife of Sir John GARRARD, Baronet, of Lamer, co. Herts.
- (3) Susan, married Robert WALPOLE of Houghton, near Harpley, Norfolk, ancestor of the WALPOLES, Earls of Orford, and Lord NELSON.
- (4) John, baptised 1597.
- (5) Sir Robert BARKHAM, knight, of Wainfleet St. Mary, ancestor of the BARKHAMS of Wainfleet, Baronets.
- (6) Jane, married Sir Charles CÆSAR, knight, Master of the Rolls.
- (7) Margaret, married Sir Anthony IRBY, knight.
- (8) Mary, who most likely died before 1634.

Elizabeth BARKHAM, Lady GARRARD, had only two children, (1) Sir John GARRARD, 2nd Baronet, father of Sir John GARRARD, 3rd Baronet, of Lamer, who married and had a daughter and heiress, Jane GARRARD, who married Montague DRAKE of Shardeloes. The descendants of this union are very numerous. (2) Jane, Lady ISHAM.

Susan, Lady CAREW, had two children, viz., Sir Francis CAREW of Beddington, and Philippa wife of Richard GEE of Orpington.

War Office Records.

Colonel Charles TUDOR, 1750-1830.

This is the story of Charles TUDOR, of the 16th or Queen's Regiment of Light Dragoons, who rose from the humblest position as a raw recruit of twenty-one, to the rank of Colonel. It is drawn from the wonderful series of War Office Records now transferred to the Record Office, and is an example of what can be learned concerning the careers of both officers and men of the late 18th and early 19th centuries.

From the Muster Rolls of his regiment we gather that TUDOR enlisted at Ludlow in Shropshire on 1 March 1771. He was then twenty-one. The places from half-year to half-year where each regiment was stationed can be gathered from this source, as well as the names of all the officers and men. TUDOR's commanding officer was Lieutenant-General, afterwards Major-General John BURGOYNE, dramatist and general, who later held up to public censure the ineptitude of his brother officers, of his superior officer (in Canada), attacked CLIVE, and managed the impeachment of Warren HASTINGS. He it was who, cut off from his base in Canada by a superior force, in October, 1777 capitulated to the rebels at Saratoga with 6,000 men after the victory of Ticonderoga.

TUDOR became successively Corporal and Sergeant in 1776; then in 1777 we find him with the regiment in New Brunswick, for war had broken out with the American Colonies.

In 1778, February and July, "Sergeant Charles TUDOR" is returned in the Muster at Philadelphia as "Prisoner with ye Rebels." Sergeant John FINLOW and eight men also are so described; however, by August of the same year he is found with his troop, under Lieutenant-Colonel the Honble. William HARCOURT, at Long Island, Jamaica, and evidently on the way home. Colonel HARCOURT had distinguished himself two years before by the capture of the rebel General, Charles LEE.

Next year they are back in England, "1779, March 10, Croydon. Serjeant Charles TUDOR, recruiting," and the whole Regiment passes into the command of HARCOURT.

The year 1780 is memorable for the outbreak of the Gordon Riots, when from the 2nd to the 8th of June, London was at the mercy of the mob. Family tradition states that TUDOR distinguished himself in some way on this occasion and that in consequence, many years afterwards, his three sons were given commissions. The rolls tell us that during the summer his Regiment was stationed at Croydon under HARCOURT's command, TUDOR's troop being under Lt.-Col. Sir Robert LAURIE. On the 6th of July he was married (by banns) at St. Andrew's, Holborn, to Miss Sarah FORREST, concerning whose parentage or family we have no details; she could not sign the Register.

During the ensuing eight years, 1781 to 1789, TUDOR apparently served as Sergeant in the same troop, and was stationed successively at Croydon, Lincoln, New Malton, Yorks, Kingston, Lewes, Maidstone, Norwich, Malta, Melton Mowbray, Nottingham, Croydon and Chichester. While at the last place he is marked in 1789 "discharged 24 July." Whatever that may mean he still appears in the rolls 1790-93 of the same troop, but as Quartermaster, stationed at Canterbury, Norwich, Newark and Barnet, and in 1794 at Nottingham he attains the rank of Paymaster and signs the roll.

In 1795 he is still Quartermaster (at Newcastle) though marked as Adjutant from Christmas day 1794; Cornet 29 April 1797 (without purchase); Lieutenant 7 May 1797; "exchange to 47th Foot," June 1799, where, however, I do not find him in the Pay Lists. On 16 August 1799, he was made Captain in the Royal Waggon Train; Major 3 December 1803; Lieutenant-Colonel 25 July 1810, and 6 June 1814; Colonel 12 August 1819, and in November 1819 he is gazetted Lieutenant-Colonel in the 1st Royal Veteran Battalion, being then 69 years of age.

In December 1828 a Return of Officers' Services was compiled by the War Office from information supplied by the officers themselves. TUDOR, then seventy-eight years of age, gives his total years of service as fifty-eight, mentions the date and place of his marriage, and enumerates his children as follows:

Charles, born 10 August 1781.
 Mary Ann, born 27 January 1793.
 Catherine Henrietta, born 16 April 1795.
 Henry Bridger, born 17 November 1797.
 Harriet, born 10 February 1800.
 Frederick Pettigrew, born 24 Jan. 1803.
 William Langley, born 7 Oct. 1805.

He had been, he said, for the past five years resident in Lambeth. Our next record is that of his death (War Office Records, Class 42, T. 227). His widow, Mrs. Sarah TUDOR, produces marriage certificate, medical certificate that "Colonel Charles TUDOR of Doris street, Lambeth, died 6 November, 1830, in his 81st. year, from 'water of the chest,'" (pleurisy), and a certificate of burial at St. Mary's, Lambeth, 13 November. The number of the house in Doris street was 9.

The War Office records (Class 4, volumes 557 and 559) further supply copies of correspondence with the relatives in respect of arrears of pension. On the 11 February 1831, Mrs. S. TUDOR is written to at Doris street; again on the 28 February; on the 23 March, Mrs. WESTBROOK (a daughter) is written to at 9 Doris street, on 31 March, Mrs. Sarah TUDOR, and on the 31 August 1832, Lieutenant TUDOR, 11, Walnut Tree Walk, Lambeth, is written to the same time that the Paymaster General is notified "it is the King's pleasure that you do issue to Lieutenant Charles TUDOR, H.M.'s. 23rd. Dragoons, without the production of Letters of Administration, the pension due to the late Mrs. TUDOR, widow of Lt.-Col. TUDOR, 1st Royal Veteran Battalion, on the 19 April 1832, the date of her decease."

Lieutenant Charles TUDOR (1781-1867), the eldest son, was on the field of Waterloo under the command of the Earl of PORTARLINGTON. He was father of Frederick TUDOR (1814-69), whose only child was Fanny Elizabeth (1842-1913), wife of George Albert SHERWOOD.

Might father and son be descendants of HEARNE the great antiquary, buried in Holywell, Oxford, whose grave, curiously enough, has thrice been restored by loving literary admirers, as Mr. George James DEW told me?

Miss Elizabeth LINDSAY, when she, herself, was probably nine years old, on one of her visits to her great-aunt HOLLYMAN, remembers calling, with Mrs. Elizabeth HOLLYMAN, upon a Mrs. PEARCE (at Aylesbury) who, she understood, was the widow of a Timothy BODDINGTON of Cuddington—and who addressed Mrs. HOLLYMAN as “Betsy” or “Cousin Betsy.”

The nonagenarian (aged 94) had no remembrance in 1912 of a BODDINGTON intermarriage with his branch of the PEARCES—though he seemed to know the Thame Mill family well and respect their memory, perhaps largely because of Timothy BODDINGTON and his accordance in the Wesleyan Methodist religion.

Notes, Queries and Replies.

SOCIETY OF GENEALOGISTS OF LONDON.—(227, Strand, W.C.).—At the November meeting of this Society an important resolution was passed in favour of the appointment, in each County, of Honorary Local Secretaries, to look after the various branches of the Society's activities. Thus it hopes, in each County, to be represented by Members who will attend, as regards that County, to the gifts of:

- Printed books of genealogical, biographical and topographical interest.
- Manuscript collections.
- Single documents, deeds, etc.
- Indexing, by voluntary labour.
- Subject Index, by voluntary labour.
- Heraldry; information as to arms, etc., to be entered on the Society's index-slips.
- Pedigrees, to be catalogued on the Society's index-slips.
- Monumental Inscriptions, to be copied on the Society's index-slips.
- Parish Registers and Marriage Licences, entries to be copied on the Society's index-slips.
- School and College Registers; entries to be copied on the Society's index-slips.
- Fly-leaf Inscriptions in Family Bibles to be copied for the Society's collection.
- Records of Migration and Change of Residence to be copied on the Society's index-slips.

In short, the business of a Local Secretary for each particular county, will be to feed the Society's Collections in any of the branches above enumerated, and to interest others in that county in the work of the Society.

It was further resolved that, until further notice, Members and Associates, paying a subscription of a guinea a year should have quarterly reports of material accrued as to any three families in which they may be interested; and Corresponding Associates paying half-a-guinea, should have quarterly reports as to any one such family.

This will be extremely advantageous to those whose annual subscription is on the lower basis, and should have the effect of inducing many new members and Associates to join. This Society, it may be pointed out, does for its Members what no other organization can claim to do: in the same way that a News-cutting Agency supplies information about living people from the current newspapers of the day, the Society of Genealogists collects and reports upon all that concerns people of yesterday and the day before; not only as to their genealogies, but as to any matter of biographical interest. Will readers particularly notice that?

A "Gathering Index," of indexes on the Society's shelves, and of other existing indexes, is proposed. In this, for purposes of facilitating reference, the mere surnames will be entered on the Society's index-slips, so that one can ascertain at once what indexed books contain references to any special surname. Such work can be undertaken at home, from the books already on one's shelves, and will be of great assistance to searchers. Small indexes can be finished off in the course of an evening's work and be accompanied by a feeling of making progress which is often absent when more ambitious schemes are undertaken. Non-Members are invited to assist the work of the Society in any of the directions above indicated, but, it should be pointed out, under its constitution it is impossible to give them access to the Library or collections. The subscription of a Corresponding Associate is, however, very small, and surely not above the means of anyone genuinely interested in the Society's work.

The Librarian-Secretary will be pleased to send copies of the Annual Report, Quarterly Reports, and full particulars of the Society to any address on receipt of a postcard. These are quite distinct from the written "Reports" sent quarterly to individual Members.

BRADLEY of Yorkshire.—Sometime between 1404 and 1460 an action in Chancery was brought by one Conrad FITZ HENRY against William BRADLEY and another, the executors of Patrick BRADLEY, a butcher of York, concerning the dowry of Cecily his daughter. In 1654 Elizabeth DALE of the city of York, widow, made her will. She leaves ten shillings to John BRADLEY.

In 1691 Thomas BRADLEY and Robert CLARK, Esq., sheriffs of York, receive an acquittance from the Exchequer for the issues of their bailiwick.

William BRADLEY in 1701 is one of the plaintiffs in a suit in the Exchequer concerning the town of Fishlake and Sykehouse, in Yorkshire, and the "Great Levell or Dykes Marsh on the south and east sides of the said town, drained or improved by Sir Cornelius VERMUDEN." These notes may assist a correspondent interested in this family.

DESCENTS FROM MOTHER TO DAUGHTER, FLEETHAM TO HINDE (III. 45.)

Joshua FLEETHAM's daughter, Mary, married, as his second wife, Henry STERRY, of Hatton street, London, citizen and currier. Their son, Henry STERRY, of Crutched Friars and Finsbury Square, London, wine-merchant, married in 1795, Beatrice, third daughter of John HARMAN of London, merchant, and of Woodford, by his wife Elizabeth HARFORD. The said John HARMAN was a first cousin of Samuel HOARE of Lombard street, banker, of Stoke Newington and Heath House, Hampstead, who married, as his second wife, in 1688, Hannah STERRY, daughter of the said Henry of Hatton Garden, London, but by her he had no issue. Samuel HOARE's grandson Samuel HOARE, born 1807, married in 1831, Catherine Edwards HANKINSON, daughter of the Rev. Robert HANKINSON, vicar of Walpole, Norfolk, and dying in 1833, his widow re-married with Rear-Admiral Sir William Edward PARRY, K.C.B., etc., etc., and had issue by both husbands. Mr. J. C. BULL, F.S.G., sends Part IV., of Miscellaneous Notes, Pedigrees, etc., Relating to Persons of the Surname of BULL (St. Catherine Press, Norfolk street, Strand, 1913), consisting of pages 193 to 256 of this valuable work. It is devoted almost wholly to abstracts of Wills and Deeds of the 16th, 17th, and 18th centuries, of persons of this surname in various parts of the kingdom, and is, of course, useful for the information, first-hand information, it gives as to other people associated with them.

We have received also the Hon. Secretary's Report for 1913 of the Bucks Architectural and Archæological Society (County Museum, Aylesbury). The Society issues The Records of Bucks, and has done so for near sixty years. It maintains a Museum and Library, organizes lectures and arranges excursions of historic interest.

The Pedigree of the Family of SMITHETT (pp. 18), reprinted from Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica, extends and amplifies the details given in The Pedigree Register of September 1908 (I. 149-153).

A Calendar of Chancery Proceedings, Elizabeth, being those suits omitted from the printed Calendar published in 1827-30 by the Record Commission, compiled by Richard HOLWORTHY, F.S.G. (Society of Genealogists of London, 1913). This valuable list, issued to Members only, begins as an instalment of 24 pp. folio, and at last, after nearly ninety years, completes the listing in print of Chancery pleadings for this particular reign. It is sold to non-members of the Society at five shillings per part, the last of which will consist of the Index. The work is the generous gift to the Society of the compiler. G. S.

The Pedigree Register

MAR. 1914]

[VOL. III, No. 28.

May.

This pedigree is compiled, for the most part, from the registers of the Society of Friends. Edward MAY of Drayton Mill was a Minister of that Society, of which also many of his descendants have been and are prominent members. The senior branch of the family, which emigrated to South Australia in 1839, was among the pioneers of that Faith in the Antipodes.

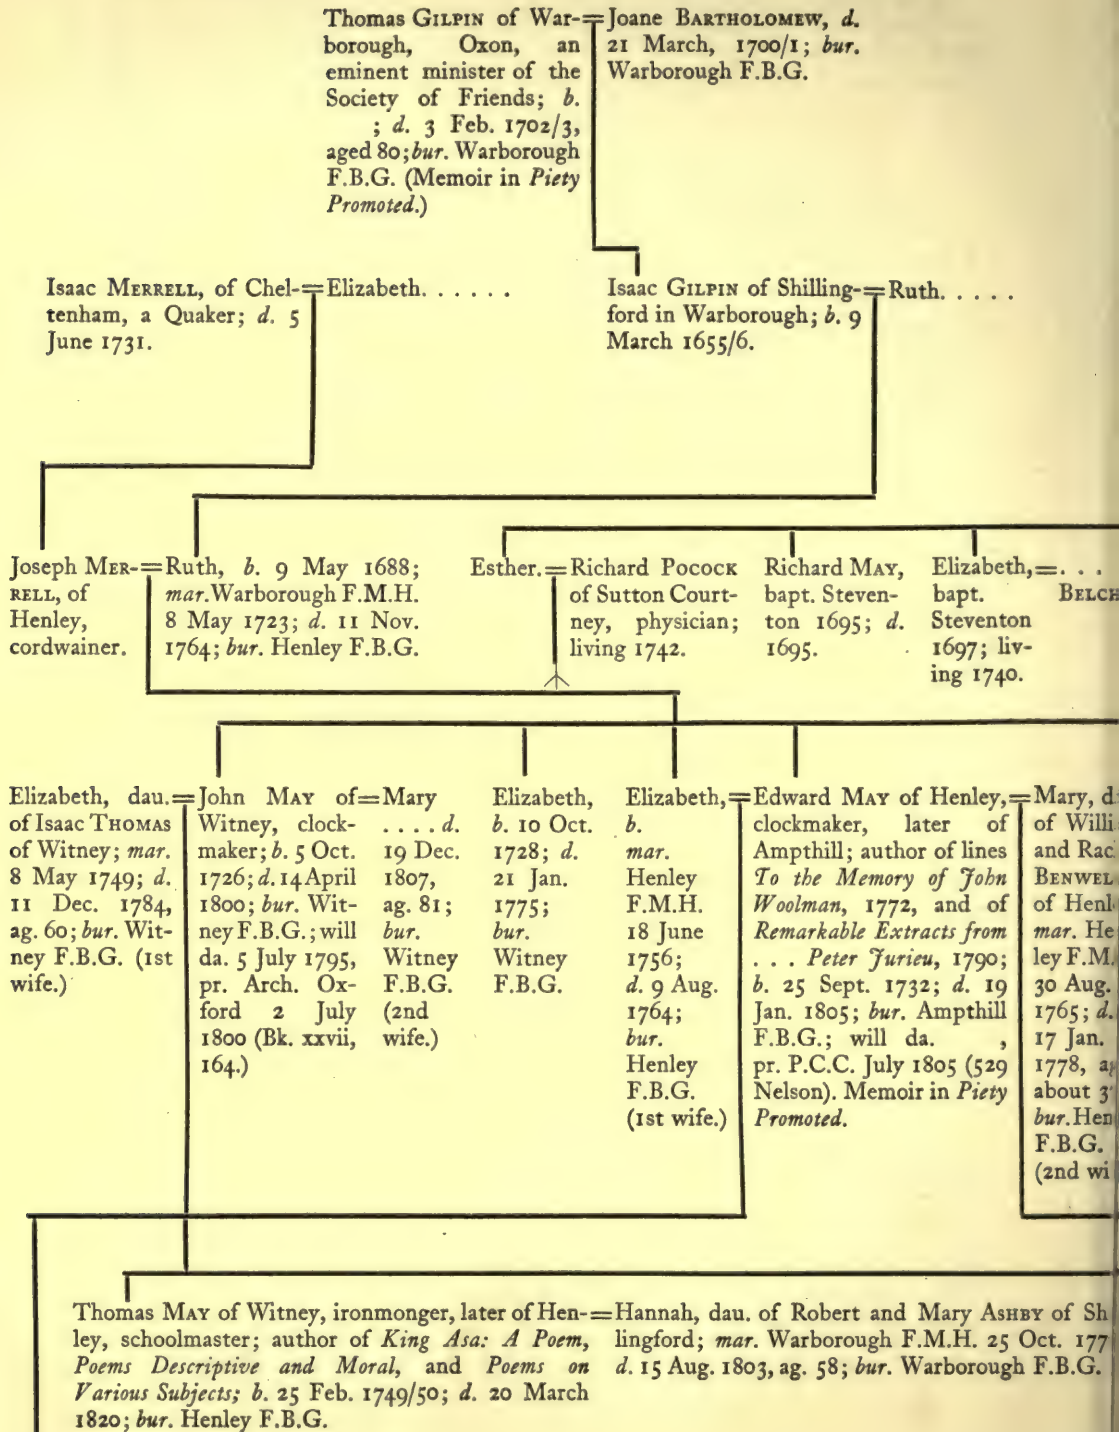

A large amount of research has failed to decide the parentage of Edward MAY of Drayton Mill. The leading theory on the subject is based on the connection of the family with the clockmaking industry. Mr. Walter MAY of Woodford, who has made a collection of clocks and watches by makers of the name, suggests that one John MAY, a clockmaker in London, towards the end of the seventeenth century, may have been the father or grandfather of Edward MAY. He is described by BRITTEN as of Dutch origin, but may have fled to Holland owing to persecution, returning to this country about 1680.

"I have a very fine lantern clock made by him," writes Mr. MAY, "The pendulum is in the form of an anchor, the movement being on the old verge principle, the dial beautifully carved and chased, and the fret of the dolphin type; this clock is signed 'John MAY, London.' I have also a very old 'primitive father' clock, signed 'John MAY,' and three extremely fine watch movements, two signed 'John MAY, London' (one of them found at Leyden), and the other 'Joseph MAY, London' (found at Breda). The next oldest clock I have was made by Edward MAY of Henley, but it is certainly much earlier than any work of Edward MAY of Henley (1732-1805), [placed in the following pedigree]. I have two grandfather clocks and one bracket clock by John MAY of Witney, who was presumably a brother, or possibly father, of Edward MAY of Drayton Mill, and to whom one may reasonably suppose Edward MAY of Witney (1701-?) was apprenticed. I have two grandfather clocks of the said Edward MAY of Witney, one of them a very fine eight-day clock."

The Anglo-Dutch theory mentioned above is borne out by the fact that the seal (bearing the leopard's head crest of the Sussex family of MAY), which appears with the signature of Edward MAY of Drayton Mill in his will, is probably of Dutch, and certainly of early seventeenth century, workmanship.

Livesey of Eastchurch.

The following quaint inscriptions appear upon the tomb of Gabriel LIVESEY, and his wife Anne SONDES, in the parish church of Eastchurch, in Sheppey. Represented upon the tomb are the recumbent figures of Gabriel and Anne, and their dead son Robert. A kneeling figure is that of Michael, their elder son, afterwards Sir Michael LIVESEY, who received a baronetcy in 1627. Siding with the Parliament in the Rebellion, he became one of King Charles's judges and signed his death warrant. At the Restoration he was attainted and fled the country, and is supposed to have died abroad. His estates, which were extensive, were forfeited, and granted to the King's brother James, Duke of York.

Upon a shield above the tomb are the LIVESEY arms—Argent a lion rampant gules between three trefoils slipped vert—quartered with BERKELEY, HAMELIN, DE LA LAUNDE, WELLES, D'ENGAYNE, and WATERTON. The LIVESEY crest—a lion's paw gules holding a bunch of trefoils—surmounts the shield, and below is a Moor's head, the crest of the SONDES family. The crests formerly were placed at the feet of Gabriel and his wife.

We thinke not that true fame doth rest upon
 Each costly monument of carved stone
 Or that well polish'd rance* or marble can Add honor to the name of any man
 & though y^e fashion of y^s world we borrow
 To build y^e dead these complements of sorrow
 We raise them not because it is conceived
 Death had y^e fame of LIVESEY els bereaved
 But rather we this monument provide
 To show our love is living though he did

* Rance is the name of the river in Normandy upon which stands the town of Caen, celebrated for its stone. It would seem that the stone is familiarly known as Rance.

INSCRIPTION ON LOWER TABLET

Stay passenger & marke before thou passe
 Thine own condition in deathis looking glass
 Thow y^t dost read these lines shalt lye among Wormes bones & roten carkesses er long
 Tenn thousands y^t are full of life to day

 Let therefor these dead lynes remember thee

 So thow shalt gaine by looking on y^s tombe
 A better life then from thy mother's womb

Gabriel LIVESEY's principal residence was at Hollingbourne Hill in Kent, where he kept his Shrievalty in 1618, but he owned an estate at Minster in Sheppey, and at the time of his death (1622) was living at a house called the Parsonage at Eastchurch.

This old Parsonage farmhouse, which still stands about one-eighth of a mile South of the church, bears traces of Gabriel LIVESEY's hand. He probably rebuilt it. Upon one of the mantelpieces are carved the arms of Gabriel LIVESEY (as above) impaling those of his wife, Anne SONDES: Arg; between two chevrons three Moors heads sable. Gabriel LIVESEY was the second, but only surviving, son of Robert LIVESEY of Tooting Bec, Surrey, who served the office of High Sheriff for Sussex in 1592, and Surrey in 1602, and who came of a junior branch of the Lancashire family LIVESEY of Livesey, settled at Little Markham, Notts. Robert's first wife (Gabriel's mother) was Elizabeth, daughter of Maurice BERKELEY, Esquire, and sister and heir of John BERKELEY of Wymondham, Norfolk, Esquire. Her Inq^a p.m., taken at Boston, Lincs. 18 Jan^y 16 Elizth (1574-5), shows that she was possessed of large estates in Norfolk, Lincoln, Notts, and other counties, the bulk of which, however, passed by settlement to Robert PAKENHAM, her son by a previous marriage. In Burke's Extinct and Dormant Baronetcies, Elizabeth BERKELEY is incorrectly described as the second wife of Robert LIVESEY. Robert's second wife (who survived him and died in 1618) was Amy, daughter of John BROOKE of London, and widow of William HOBBS, by whom she had a son, Thomas HOBBS. Robert and Amy had issue a daughter Martha, who became the wife of Sir Edward PEYTON of Isleham. There are mural tablets in the parish church of Streatham, Surrey, to Robert and Amy LIVESEY and Gabriel's first wife, Anne CROMPTON.

For much of the information above given we are indebted to the Rev. R. H. DICKSON, Rector of Eastchurch.

Genealogical Letters.

FOTHERGILL

The following letter, printed in full with many others, in The Fothergills of Ravenstonedale (Heinemann, 1905) gives with humour and insight some character sketches, as rare as they are delightful, written by a born genealogist of the eighteenth century. It is by Thomas FOTHERGILL (1715-96), Provost of Queen's College, Oxford, and one of the seven sons of Henry FOTHERGILL of Lockholme, to his stay-at-home brother Richard (1708-85), of Wharton Hall, after his brother James's death in 1739, and before his brother George became, in 1751, Principal of St. Edmund's Hall. It is undated, and there seems to be no signature to it, but it was addressed from Oxford, and runs as follows:

“ Dear Brother,

“ I cannot tell what sort of an entertainment I shall furnish out for you by this carrier; but I intend we shall make a visit to people not yet raised into being. The novelty of the subject must make amends for the poverty of the performance. I remember, Richy, we have often pleased ourselves with inquiries after our forefathers, and have been mightily entertained with but very imperfect accounts of what such men they were, and what characters they bore, in the time they lived. Some of our posterity may, perhaps, be as inquisitive as we have been, and think it (a hundred years hence) no unpleasing employment to guess at the tempers and characters of us, who have the present period of time allotted to act in.

“ I sometimes, consider myself as bearing a part in the conversation of this future assembly, and shall, therefore, send you what guesses we may suppose can be made, what traces will remain of our family at that distant period of time.

“ About that time, perhaps, it will be said, lived Henry FOTHERGILL. He was accounted a very pious, honest man, one that did not much concern himself in parish affairs, though he did not wholly withdraw himself from them; for we find, he had been several times of the grand jury, and they say 'tis he that's mentioned in the copy of the brief for rebuilding the church—and, indeed, I am apt to believe it, for the church and steeple were certainly both rebuilt in the latter part of his time, and there was no other Harry FOTHERGILL remarkable in the parish at this time besides.

“ His wife (we are not assured where she came from) ” [this must be intended for a humorous hit at his mother, for her parentage and early home were perfectly well known in the dale], “ but she was an exceeding wise and discreet woman, of an uncommon tenderness towards her children, and universally esteemed for her prudence and care in the management of her family. These two lived a long time very happily together, and were man and wife between forty and fifty years.

“Reach hither that old NELSON’s *Fasts and Festivals and you’ll see that they had nine children. Here, you see, two died very young, and so we have not heard much of them. George was the eldest son, a man of great abilities, and uncommon prudence and discernment in his actions. Something of a cautious, reserved, serious disposition, though very cheerful and entertaining betimes, especially with two or three cordial friends by whom he knew himself to be much esteemed.

“He was perceived, almost in his childhood, to have so strong a bent for learning, that his father was persuaded (though, indeed, he always had a mind to breed up some of his sons scholars) to send him to Oxford.

“It was said he made great progress in learning, and was highly esteemed by the most distinguished men there, which is not at all unlikely. For here are still some of his sermons remaining, which seem to be wrote with great strength of reason, and good sense, and were, I’ll warrant you, accounted fine sermons in those times. In short, he passed through the world with a great character for learning and piety, and died possessed of good preferments in the Church.

“Their second son, Richard, was of quite a different turn. He was of a cheerful, lively disposition, and loved mirth and good humour. He was very affable and human, loved to see all around him happy, much given to reading, which brought him in such stores of good sense, and so much assisted his natural elocution, that he had soon the advantage over those of his own rank, and was admitted into the conversation of men far his superior in age and fortune. He was very happy in a cheerful, good-natured wife, who loved him most tenderly, and no couple ever enjoyed more domestic comfort than they.

“He had a strange art of pleasing people, especially those below him, nor, indeed, did he ever fail in winning the esteem and favour of any he regarded. But, then, he was not always so careful in keeping alive the good opinion of others as he was in gaining it. For the first and common restraints of a new friendship being over, a certain vivacity and openness of temper would betray him into some levities, which, however diverting and innocent, are not the greatest recommendations to a lasting esteem. He had a very generous and noble turn of mind, was greatly beloved in his lifetime, and much lamented and talked of at his death, and was said never to have lost a sensible friend.

“Henry, the next son, was a very ingenious man, and educated at Oxford. He was of a timid and tender disposition, though not without some mixture of peevishness in it. He lived rather in good understanding with all, than intimacy with any. He was accounted by all a man of good breeding and much politeness, and was seldom, if ever, known to give offence. He passed very peaceably through the world, and left a fair character behind him.

“Willy was the fourth son, a man who was endowed with a generous and good temper, to a very high degree. He had no very entertaining or witty turn in conversation, yet the known goodness of his heart made him acceptable everywhere. And sure, never man was possessed of a greater share of general goodwill than he, and perhaps few ever deserved it better, for he was the truest friend, with the least show imaginable; nor was it possible for any man to be oppressed if his endeavours could be of service, for he was always most ready and willing to do a kindness, out of the pure goodness of his heart, without any design or expectation of a return.

* Evidently used for entries of Births and Baptisms instead of the Family Bible.

"He was a great support to his father, and much beloved by him. He's spoke of, to this day, as a very honest man, and all the old people bless his descendants.

"Tom* was a man of a very different character to all intents and purposes, for he did not care how great a name and sway he had, and how little real service he did to deserve them. He had little to commend him but a volatile tongue, some humour, and a good share of resolution; and yet, I don't know how it was, he was generally of more consideration than his elder brother. He was a strange mixture of jollity and gravity. We have heard some old people say, that, in conversation, he was apt to give too great a liberty both to his tongue and fancy; others, that he was too stiff and reserved. But, I fancy, this might be owing to his being among strangers, or among his intimate acquaintances, by whom he knew himself to be pretty well esteemed. Though he was very ambitious, we never hear that he made much out. They say he died in some part of the south country, and left a great family behind him.

"James was next, a youth of rare endowments for virtue and goodness. He was indefatigable on the improvement of his mind, by reading the best authors, which, well digested, gave him such a noble and generous way of thinking as raised him far above the common rank. Yet, far from being anyways proud or assuming, he was always full of condescension and humanity, and was of such an inimitable sweetness, fancy, and delight in conversation as mightily endeared him to all acquaintance. His wit was very bright and sparkling, but then, so happily tempered by innocence and good-nature, that no one had ever cause to wish it less. He was a great lover of open, innocent, and improving conversation, and was in such high delight upon these occasions that his whole heart, sentiments, and soul were his friends. He had a great abhorrence of vice and meanness, even so far as not to be able to disguise his sentiments before the persons despised. These were virtues which gave his friends mighty hopes of his, one day or other, making a great name.

"But Heaven saw fit to dispose of him otherwise. He was cut off in the pride and flower of his youth, just before he had finished his twentieth year. His death caused a universal sorrow, and was a very sore affliction to his aged parents, and brought inexpressible grief into the whole family, which was always remarkable for their tender affection for one another.

"Joseph was the youngest child. He was of a very cautious, but, withal, soft and tender disposition, which unfitted him very much for bearing hard usage. His notions were not so elevated as most of his brothers were, for he could be content to place his highest ambition in getting money, though he was not covetous.

"He served his time to a trade in Kendal, and at last died possessed of a very competent fortune, which was acquired rather by constant attendance upon business, than by any bold or uncommon adventures in it." G. F.

Records of the Court of Arches.

We are enabled to give the following account of Sir Lewis DIBDIN's work upon these records, as described by him at a meeting of the Authors' Club. Sir Lewis treated with all the skill of a master of fiction, bringing out the human and humorous side, the discovery of some "2,000 stories of real life," which repaid his efforts to put into order miscellaneous masses of records of the Court of Arches extending over some 200 years.

After describing the history, constitution and jurisdiction of the Court over thirteen parishes in the City of London, the chief of which is represented by Bow Church—St. Mary de Arcubus—St. Mary of the Arches—Sir Lewis DIBDIN went on to say that where the old records of the Court were preserved, until after the Fire of London, is unknown. But from the time when Doctors' Commons was rebuilt until the earlier part of the nineteenth century they seem to have had their home in that neighbourhood. In 1865, the Arches Records were taken to Lambeth Palace. They were regarded as too fragile to be handled or dusted, and there they remained for nearly forty years, getting dry, but also getting embedded in a deep stratum of London soot and dust.

I became the Dean of Arches in 1903, and as soon as I could (said Sir Lewis) I set to work to explore the room where the records were kept. The soot and the gloom were appalling. You almost needed a spade to dig the papers out of the dirt in which they were buried. But after a good deal of work we removed the worst of the dust, and got to know in a general sort of way the contents of the room. Omitting comparatively modern papers in boxes, they may be divided into three classes, although, unfortunately, no such division existed in fact. The documents were in absolute chaos.

The first of these classes consists of four distinct series of volumes, each series devoted to a different section of business (Acts of Court, Sentences, Depositions, "Appeals"). These represented the official records, or registers, of the court. Each series has many volumes, and begins about the time of the Restoration. The volumes are chronological, but many are gone, and those that remain were scattered, one here and another there, mixed up with other documents. The second class, which comprises the chief portion of the muniments, consists of "processes," mostly unbound, some 2,200 in number. A "process" is a complete record of everything that has happened in an ecclesiastical suit (i.e., pleadings, orders, evidence, sentence) from the inception in the court below until it arrives in the Court of Arches.

These processes vary in length from a single sheet to (in one instance) six or seven volumes containing thousands of pages. The third class consists of bundles, tied up long ago, of miscellaneous parchments and papers—the rubbish of the registry—amid which, nevertheless, it may be that important and really ancient documents lie concealed. I found it impossible in 1903 to do more than separate the documents into these three classes. In the summer of 1913 the Rev. Claude JENKINS, the learned and energetic librarian of Lambeth, came to the rescue. All through the summer he and I spent most of our spare time, and I fear a great deal more than we could spare, in the muniment room. We waded steadily through the 2,200 processes, pigeon-holing them in a rough alphabetical order. My registrar, Mr. MUNRO, gave valuable help at the outset, but has ever since, I am sorry to say, been laid aside by illness.

It is commonly said that the Arches Records perished in the Great Fire. I venture, however, to doubt whether it was so. I rather think their destruction took place during the Commonwealth, when CROMWELL's soldiers were especially busy in the neighbourhood of St. Paul's. I hope to be able to trace, in many cases, what happened in the Arches to the suits the previous history of which is preserved in these Processes. When that has been done this series will form what in ecclesiastical law is most lacking, a set of precedents, about 2,000 in number, decided in the principal ecclesiastical court in England, and covering a period of 200 years (1660-1856).

I want to lay stress on the human rather than on the technical interest of these 2,000 tales of real life, told often with a particularity which not even the modern newspaper could safely achieve. When you consider that they relate to people of every class—there is the fashionable divorce case at the top and the defamation of one village virago by another at the bottom—and that they are contemporary accounts of the sayings and doings of the parties, it is surely difficult to exaggerate their historical value as pictures of English life and manners in former times. It must be remembered that we are dealing with what are largely the annals of a criminal court. As we should expect, these processes show us the seamy side of life in every class. We see also the influence of politics and of popular prejudice on the action of the Ecclesiastical Courts.

There are many cases in the seventeenth century where a clergyman is accused of Roman tendencies, which seem to have shown themselves in various ways, such as "calumniating the Church of England in relation to Henry VIII.," "Ill affection to present Government." Puritan tendencies were, of course, jealously watched after the Restoration, and, where possible, joined with more tangible offences as grounds for prosecution. In 1666, the Vicar of Alderminster was charged with a great variety of misdeeds, from desecrating church ornaments and utensils by turning them to domestic purposes, to hunting, smoking, frequenting ale-houses, and playing games on Sunday. But the head and front of his offending was that "he boasted a friendship with Oliver CROMWELL." In 1680, the Parson of Tewkesbury was articted for "preaching against the morals of Charles II." In the years before the Toleration Act Nonconformity is constantly the subject of repressive proceedings. Even at the beginning of the eighteenth century preaching in the open air was deemed objectionable, at any rate without a licence.

Later on in the same century it was a question whether Chelsea Old Parish Church should be allowed an organ, and it was in fact refused. At about the same date the churchwardens at Topsham (Exeter) were cited by the incumbent for disturbing Divine service by the introduction of a novel and unauthorized method of singing the Psalms. There was a suit against an incumbent who neglected his duty and drank too much and threw tobacco pipes out in the churchyard and generally misbehaved himself, but the limit was reached when he insisted on keeping a cheese—I think this happened in Gloucestershire—in the font—and suffering it to remain there all the winter to the great discomfort of the parishioners sitting near by. Cases of defamation—that is false accusation of an offence cognisable in the Church Court—are very frequent, especially from Wales. The objectionable words are then generally given as they had been uttered in Welsh, and, of course, look appalling. Defamation seems also to have been a favourite pursuit in Devonshire and Cornwall.

There are seven or eight processes, all relating to one gigantic quarrel between a certain Rev. Dr. EYRE, who was Chancellor of Bath and Wells some time in the eighteenth century, and the then Archdeacon of Wells. It was a complicated and not very interesting dispute, which originated in the Archdeacon's failure to pay sufficient deference to the Chancellor's jurisdiction, superseding his own, during an episcopal visitation. The Chancellor was himself under excommunication for contempt of his superior, the Court of Arches. So the Chancellor's sentence was revoked, and the Archdeacon was restored to the communion of the faithful, without a stain on his character. But there were endless subsidiary conflicts. While Dr. EYRE had been sitting in his consistory court in Wells Cathedral excommunicating the Archdeacon, certain bystanders—quite as if they were Alsatian citizens of Zabern—had laughed. They were promptly excommunicated. A verger dared to remove a document from the cushion of the Chancellor's desk, over which he was wont to contemplate a stiff-necked and contumacious world. The verger also was excommunicated. And so it went on. In the end, however, Dr. EYRE's excommunications were all revoked by higher authority, and he was ordered to pay everybody's costs.

In concluding his interesting paper, Sir Lewis said that the exact point at which he had arrived in re-discovering, as it were, the contents of the Arches muniment room, was that he had compiled a card index of the 2,200 processes and also a register in which the cases to which the processes related were arranged chronologically, with columns in which the names of the parish concerned, the Court appealed from, the result of the appeal to the Arches, and the further history (if any) of the case might be entered. The filling up of these columns from the Act books and other official records in the muniment room and the proper arrangement of the processes in the shelves would mean a great extension of the work, which he hoped to undertake when the long days of summer returned.

It may be added that the testamentary records of the Bishop of London's Peculiar Deanery of the Arches with the Deaneries of Shoreham (Kent) and Croydon (Surrey), covering respectively 13, 35 and 15 parishes, chapelries, etc. from 1614 to 1841, are quite distinct from the above. The testamentary records are in excellent condition and are kept, with a modern Calendar or Index—not to all the persons mentioned in the documents, but to the testators, intestates and a few others—amongst the ancient records of the Probate Registry at Somerset House. But even these are not thoroughly calendared. Those calendared comprise:

- Filed wills.
- Bonds, warrants and other papers.
- Registers.
- Act Books.
- Caveat Books.
- Court Act Books.
- Account Book 1664-7.

Those not calendared:

- "Vacaciones" Book, 1721-42.
- 3 Assignation Books 1705-59.

It is interesting to note that the Bishop of London's Peculiar Deanery of Croydon had jurisdiction in Harrow-on-the-Hill, Hayes, Norwood and Pinner, Middlesex; and in Barnes, Burstow, Charlwood, Cheam, Croydon, East Horsley, Merstham, Mortlake, St. Mary's, Newington (with St. Peter's, Walworth), Putney and Wimbledon, Surrey.

January 3 1693.

My Children,

At this beginning of the year I pray God that He may heap upon you His Holy blessings, that he may grant you the grace to live together in the sincerest friendship. That he may grant you a long and happy life peaceful as well at home as among your friends and relations, that He may grant to my Grandson perfect health and endue him with his holy spirit that He would grant him the favor of impressing upon his heart holy knowledge, that he may be endowed with good sense and act out the good principles that you will give him. These in short are the prayers and desires that I have addressed to GOD for you and your poor Mother likewise enfeebled as she still is, being in the same state of health as I described to you in my last letter. your sister and all your Brothers wish you a happy year. Abraham would willingly have sent you a letter in his own handwriting which is not so bad, but the postage mounts up so that I have prevented him. Adrian who begins to read very well has been out of health the last two or three months. James is only a thread in body but there is a mental cleverness for his age that could not be more pleasing. Except that he wishes to have no cousins, this is an amusement that we have with him, they take a child 9 months old and bring him to our house, and they make him believe that it is his cousin he wishes otherwise, makes a thousand grimaces, and will not see him. We cannot extinguish his jealousy until we send the child back to England: then he scolds Madame RAISON because she has carried him away in her coach and wishes she would bring him back again, this is an amusement for my poor feeble one.

I have received all the letters you have written me. I do not see how Mr Le GRAND will be able to get hold of my letters; he is always talking of this matter with chagrin that it does not proceed to his mind. Piere ALBERT who should have married the wife of my late brother has married the daughter of Mr Jean MOBREVILLE, a lawyer, a young woman of non discernment and the most injurious under heaven, residing in - - - and paying neither rent nor repairs. Since Mr Le GRAND has been so much embarrassed with that Greek house it has also very much gone to ruin. Esther Maria is married to a quarter master of the Regiment of the Feuillage—a very young man of about 60 years of age, and a thorough Catholic. See the beautiful flower she has found and married with style enough.

The dearness of provisions already commenced has still more increased, wheat is worth 6 to 10 francs the bushel 13 to 15 francs the sack, the gallon 38 to 40 and every thing in proportion, the profit very small; if it is the same with you it is a sad thing. They are beginning to pillage both the houses in the villages and also on the highway.

Give my best wishes to all my relations and friends especially to mrs HAINE and all her family, I pray that GOD may bless them. Let me know the state of your health, and how all the family are.

I remain your Father and good friend

My Daughter

I cannot desire for you anything more than I have in the foregoing which I have written for you both; but looking over your letters again I see that you and your husband complain that my grandson causes you trouble. It grieves me greatly that he has not more gratitude towards YOU than that; but as it respects his father it seems to me that he has good sense, after a fashion, since he pays him out for what he has done to me. For instance, he has made me get up more than 500 times from my bed, winter and summer, to take him a walk along the house and to sing with him songs which did not much please me. However by means of singing the little knave would be appeased sometimes for half an hour, sometimes longer; and then one must begin again. There! see if my little grandson has not a little intelligence in repaying his father the trouble he has caused me: but with regard to you I pity you extremely. However joking apart, if there were any nurses with you at a reasonable charge it would be best to put him with one by all means. for he hinders your working, and I entreat you to do so and I will send you 2 crowns per month French money if at the end of the year you will send me an account; I will send you the whole in one amount; God helping, because it will not cost more for the whole than the half; I will thus disburse this sum for you annually, this is what I entreat you to do. When I shall have found out the most convenient channel I will send it you. AS I hear that he is very delicate a good nurse would be able to nourish him as well as yourself: so it seems to me, and save you so much fatigue, for I know the trouble these little children cause. His father was just the same and I also, who used to fly into a passion with the same obstinacy, so that it is wonderfull now to see me so robust as I am.

I cannot urge you more with reference to my little grandson to do for him what you judge best under present circumstances; but if you would think of taking a nurse and also sending him into the country as is now done even to the strongest children (I think this would be best): They put them with persons who keep cows and make them drink two or three times a day, and even more, of the milk from the cow. This is the advice I give you your good friend and father

J. DESCARRIERES.

Your mother salutes you and my daughter and all your brothers and give the same to Madame your mother and all the family. Mr P. PETIT has married his eldest daughter to Abraham a la VOINE the son of Isaac a la VOINE of bobaim.

[John DESCARRIERES of St. Quentin, to his son and daughter-in-law in London.]

St Quentin. 27 December. 1695.

I know, my dear children, that it was not necessary to send you advice in order for me to marry again as I have done the 20 of this month at Paris with Elizabeth HARLE the daughter of Jacob HARLE, and sister of J my son in law your brother-in-law, 20 years of age and not less; a young woman very much to my liking, and, although so young, in my esteem she is above 40? and, I think that if you saw her you would be satisfied about it, As to myself I am so, I know that I shall be gazetted, but those who are concerned for my good, will not very much blame my conduct. My true counterpart is with you and lodged with my brother Lalant: if he had married in his time an old wife about his own age, how would she be of use to him now? is it not a happy thing that he has married your Aunt who has been so very useful at his present time of life, it is a very good thing, the best thing that could have been done. The time that he has remained a widower has caused much decay in him, by loss of property and what is more trying by death. In short he has been and is to me an example that I have followed out, I have married a very beautiful wife, very cleaver, who knows how to read and write very well, in short is for my calling, well adapted, and by the help of GOD she will be in a little time a great help: and if she has a marriage portion so considerable as 1500 Liveres is it not an insignificant straw ten years more or less? in addition to which she truly fears GOD and loves her Religion which can well be said respecting her since she has refused a Catholic young man who was possessed of more than 4000 Livres, and responded to the offer that I made her though my property is so small.

I think that you ought all to be satisfied about it: I know what I have lost: but two long years of weeping cannot recover her. I know that my widowhood for now nearly two years and a half has not been of much benefit to me. it is not that I have worked as much as ever, but other thoughts have prevailed and I have had to work with grief.

I pray you to fulfil my wishes that the first time that you shall write to me, you would write likewise to her and show her the regard that is her due. She is worth the trouble and you would oblige me truly. I am satisfied with the bargain and am persuaded that if you saw her you would be satisfied likewise: and you may be quite assured that our marriage has not been done otherwise than yours, be persuaded of it: I will say no more to you on this matter.

As to coming to see me I should greatly desire that it might be practicable: as to matters of conscience they say nothing to us, and if no change should be brought about, provided that no assembling together takes place they say nothing to you. You tell me that you have sent me some spectacles, but you do not say by whom they are to arrive: when they come we will receive them and follow the directions of your letter, I do not see that there is much to be made by this merchandise.

your uncle FOUCCOURT salutes you, he is very well pleased with my bargain. Other dear friends salute you, my new wife salutes you, and all her relations and friends: and she is towards you as myself.

Your Father and good friend,

J. DESCARRIERES.

Give my love to Mad. HAINE and all her family. tell her that Jacob HARLE my son-in-law rents his house of the four sons of EMON for forty crowns. and that he has not bought it, his term expires the first of June twelvemonth and Mr LEGRAND says that it cannot be sold to him, which I also think. I pray you to send this letter to his address, and also this enclosure to one of the sisters HARLE and that she send it to all her brothers.

To Monsieur DESCARRIERES

York Street. Bishopsgate Street.

Near Spital Square.

LONDON.

[? From the wife of John DESCARRIERES of St. Quentin to John DESCARRIERES their son in London.]

My dear Child,

The object of this letter is to inform you of the state of our health which is good, thank GOD, as to the body; but as to the spirit and mind I am very ill and afflicted. I can never console myself for the loss we have suffered in being deprived of the word of GOD which is the nourishment of our souls. It seems to us very strange not to be able to understand the language, to be unknown in a place where we understand nothing makes me die with anguish and trouble: yet if it pleased GOD we should have all suffering we should have cause to be very happy in having our poor soul for a prey.

My dear Child I cannot fully know the favour of GOD in having put thy poor soul in repose! What praise ought you to render to Him incessantly, and every day to thank for the benefits he has conferred upon you!—O that you may be happy my dear child! I entreat you not to abuse the goodness of GOD in permitting You so often to hear His HOLY Word—to read it with prayer to him that He would engrave it upon your heart that you may never forget it. I hope that GOD will grant you the blessings of having His fear always before your eyes. His glory for your end. His Will for your guide—so doing GOD will give to you his Holy Blessing. I pray the good GOD to bless you—to give you grace to behave towards us like a Joseph, that you may receive your poor Father and the poor afflicted one together with your brother and sister whom I recommend to you that you may act towards to them as towards your Father in case we should die, as trouble certainly shortens our days. I never expect to see you again, we commend ourselves to your prayers. You will remember me to my cousin MAITAIER, and tell him that I entreat him to pray to GOD for us that he would comfort us in our afflictions. Your brothers and sister are well: Abraham and his sister salute you, He speaks incessantly of you. Your Uncle and Aunt salute you, your Aunt de BARRIM is confined with a daughter. Remember me to all my nephews and nieces, my cousins, and my two godchildren who are Madelon LALAN and Nanet HAINNE: in short remember me to all my friends when they shall ask after my welfare. I entreat you to write to us of the state of your health and of that of our relations; and having now nothing else to tell you adieu my dear child, may GOD bless you. I learn with pleasure that you are with your cousins I hope you will live peaceably with them as I believe you to do with all. Remember me to them, I feel towards them as towards yourself.

Remember me to godfather and godmoyther HAINE, to cousin BAQUE and his wife, to Esther le PINNE, to cousins DALIOU and their children, in short to all our relations and friends.

THE WORD of the ETERNAL was precious in those days.

DAWSON TO SIMPSON DESCENT (II, 338).—Referring to the above, wherein I stated that the surname of Elizabeth, the wife of Jonathan DAWSON, was illegible in the Watermillock Registers, I have received a letter from Mr. C. W. RUSTON-HARRISON, Editor of the Cumberland and Westmoreland Parish Register Society, as follows:

“In the Bishops’ transcripts of Watermillock this particular entry is quite clear and there can be no doubt as to what it is. It reads:

“1744, Jonathan DAWSON and Elizabeth RUMNEY were married by banns, August 30.”

I should think she was the Elizabeth RUMNEY, whose baptism is entered on p. 92 of the printed Registers as follows:

“1722. C. Elizabeth d. of Will^m RUMNEY, Curate, 14 March.”

This information is very welcome and enables me to record another descent of my daughter.

In the Watermillock Registers are the following entries of burials:

“1768, Rev^d M^r RUMNEY, Curate of this Chapel, 20 April.”

“1782. Elizabeth RUMNEY, Relict of the late Rev^d M^r RUMNEY, aged 86 years, 20 January.”

GABRIEL: MAILLARD: STUBBER.—Can anyone give information regarding the marriage of M^{rs} Catherine MAILLARD, widow of Major J. N. MAILLARD of the 18th Royal Irish Regiment and daughter of Rev^d Sewell STUBBER of Moyne, Queen’s County, Ireland? The marriage must have taken place in or before 1818 but it is not known where. Her two sons were Thomas Sewell Stubber GABRIEL of the Royal Navy, born 1819, and Edmund GABRIEL, H.B.M.’s. Commissioner of the mixed Commission for the Court for the suppression of the slave trade in West Africa, who died at his post in 1862.

PEDIGREE WORK. A handbook for the genealogist, with a new date book, 1066 to 1914, by W. P. W. PHILLIMORE, M.A., B.C.L. Second edition, revised by T. M. BLAGG, F.S.A., 1914 (PHILLIMORE & Co., Ltd.). Price 1s. 6d.

Truly, as the author says, there is no royal road to the art of writing a family history or tracing a pedigree, “much patient research is requisite and some natural aptitude for the subject.” This little book gives a very good general idea of the sources of information, but they must be used intelligently, for the desired proof as to whose son so and so happened to be often calls for two or three distinct moves, unintelligible to those who don’t understand the business. There are at least sixteen methods of proving parentage in England of persons born before general registration began in 1837; the skilled genealogist knows them, the novice doesn’t, and no book that we have yet seen ever explained them. Briefly put, the whole art is to discover the occasions in a man’s life or after his death when his parentage would be recorded. If you know these, and can find the record, the problem is solved. This small book gives a very fair idea of where many such records are, and the date-book section is particularly handy.

The Pedigree Register

JUNE 1914]

[Vol. III, No. 29.]

Clarke.

There is a tradition that the family of CLARKE sprang from Ireland and left that country on account of some persecution; it is said that the anniversary of their arrival in Liverpool was for a long time kept as a festival in the family.

The earlier part of the annexed pedigree was compiled from old letters and notes in the possession of my grandmother Isabella YATES (see The Pedigree Register II, 340) god-daughter of Mrs Susanna BUTLER, née CLARKE, her mother's first cousin; my grandmother spent most of her time as a girl with her godmother at Kirkland Hall and was the playmate of Mrs BUTLER's only son, Thomas BUTLER, who was about her own age. He was born 11 November 1795, as recorded in an old book, BURKETT's New Testament, now at Kirkland Hall, and became heir to his great-uncle Alexander BUTLER of Kirkland Hall and Beaumont Côte on condition that he took the additional name of COLE. This he did on the 16 December 1817, by permission of the Prince Regent. At the March Lancaster Assizes, in the year following, the young Squire figured as the defendant in a breach of promise case and had to pay £7,000 damages. He afterwards married Louisa, daughter of John GRIMSHAW of Preston, but died without issue 25 January 1864, having devised his estates in succession to Thomas BUTLER, son of his late uncle Alexander BUTLER of the Isle of Man, surgeon, Major Charles Edmund THORNTON, son of his cousin William Thomas THORNTON, and grandson of his aunt Jane THORNTON, Capt. Henry Rose CLARKE of Etwall in the county of Derby, son of his uncle, Henry CLARKE, and his eldest son, the Revd Henry CLARKE, for their respective lives, with remainder to the Revd Thomas Foster CLARKE, second son of Henry Rose CLARKE, and his sons in tail male, and failing issue to his own right heirs.

The estates are now held by the Revd Henry CLARKE as tenant for life.

The dates of the births of the children of John CLARKE, of whom Mrs BUTLER was one, are taken from entries in the book, BURKETT's New Testament, before mentioned, and the date of the death of Thomas CLARKE, his eldest son, is recorded in the family Bible of the PICKERING family of Walton-le-Dale, now in my possession. This Thomas CLARKE by his will left legacies to his aunt, Mary PICKERING, née BARNS, and her daughters, Jane, wife of James FORSHAW (my great-grandmother) and Ellen PICKERING, afterwards the wife of Hugh BECCONSALL of Ashton on Ribble.

On a tablet in Cockerham Church to the memory of James CLARKE, Recorder of Liverpool, there are the following arms: Az. three escallops in pale or and two flaunches erm., on a chief ar. three lions ramp. of the first, impaling: Erm., on a bend gu. three annulets or, on a chief az. three leopards' heads affrontée erased of the third, for ADDISON. Crest: Out of a ducal coronet or, a demi-bull ramp. erm. horned of the first. Motto: Esperance en Dieu. James CLARKE, in right of his wife Jane, the second of the three daughters of Robert ADDISON, became lord of the Manor of Cockerham and the lordship is still held by his descendants.

John Bridge ASPINALL, by his wife Ann (Nanny) CLARKE, had several children. Of the sons, one, the Revd James ASPINALL, M.A., was incumbent of St Luke's, Liverpool, and wrote Liverpool a few years since, by an old Stager. He afterwards became Rector of Althorpe, Lincolnshire, where he died; he was the father of John Bridge ASPINALL, Q.C., Recorder of Liverpool, Clarke ASPINALL, Coroner of Liverpool, Butler ASPINALL, Q.C., and other children. Of the daughters, one, Betty, was the wife of Richard ADDISON of Liverpool, and from this marriage the BIRLEY family of Bartle Hall and Millbanke Kirkham descends. There is a portrait, half-length, of John Bridge ASPINALL, now at Bartle Hall, presented to him when Mayor of Liverpool by Mr BLUNDELL of Ince of that day; side by side with it is a splendid painting of Prince William Frederick of Gloucester, nephew of King George III, a gift from his Royal Highness to Mr ASPINALL.

Beaulieu, co. Southampton, Parish Clerk's Notes, 1795:6.

In one of the parish register books of Beaulieu is a fasciculus consisting of ten leaves of a note book $7\frac{1}{2}$ by 5 inches. The notes therein were evidently the rough memoranda of the daily work of the parish clerk; they are here printed to preserve many details of interest which are certain to be lost in the form in which they now are. Most of these memoranda relate to baptisms and a few burials which were entered up at irregular intervals in the official register. The register shows unmistakable evidence of the irregularity of the entering up. In the annexed draft all those entries omitted from the register are marked *; of those which do appear in the register many show variations of date and name as well as the omission of minor details recorded in the notebook. Which of these records is the more trustworthy? Would the rough notes be received as evidence: especially when differing from the official register? This is only another instance, if indeed more are required, of the want of care with which so many registers were kept: and of the necessity of exercising a critical judgment before accepting as proven fact any evidence from such a fallible source.

From these notes we learn the distinction between "baptising" and "christening": the first term relates to the naming and immersion (or sprinkling with water) of the infant, a ceremony which so often took place privately, while "christening" relates to the public receiving of the infant at church as a member of Christ's flock. In the register the date of the private baptism is not usually noted, only the date of the christening or receiving at public worship. Where the entry runs "bapt. and christ." it means that there was no previous private ceremony, but the whole rite of naming, immersion or sprinkling and receiving took place in church at one time in conformity with the rubric.

Unless William JORDAN, bur. Feb. 1793 is referred to in the note of 15 Dec. 1795, there is no entry in the register relating to this memorandum.

Two Huguenot Families:

DESCARRIERES, RENVOIZÉ.*

[Abraham DESCARRIERES of S^t. Quentin, to his brother John in London.]

St. Quentin. 8. Jan 1719.

You have done me the pleasure, My dear Brother, to give me the detail of the little youthful trick of my nephew your son. I have reason to believe that he will have by this time made his peace with you. I entreat you to forgive him if you have still to do so, his fault not being sufficiently great to make him lose your friendship, and besides it is only a small accident which has befallen many others besides him. The occasion as they say in this country has made the thief; and certainly the master of his comrade is a thousand times more to blame than the young people in having by his negligence furnished them the occasion for it. Forget then this affair which I venture to treat as a trifle because it has happened to those whose age is not yet ended with reason.

I thank you for the good wishes you express in my favour on this renewal of the year. I assure you that no addition can be made to those that I desire for you and your dear family, praying the Lord that it may please him to bestow on you all those blessings which shall be the most salutary, and load you with favours beyond even your hopes. I think that you have no doubt likewise respecting the very warm desires of my wife and our dear sister HARLE that it may please the Lord to give you many years after this in peace, filled with happiness and prosperity: both the one and the other rely on me to assure you of their complete friendship as well as all our nephews and nieces. I join herein also those of Sedan persuaded that they have the same sentiments: as to myself, my dear Brother, I have already told you and I tell you again that it would not be by reiterated desires that I should wish to prove to you the force of my affection but rather by presents capable of contributing to your need. My establishment gives me reason to hope that GOD will bless my work and put me in circumstances to accomplish my ardent desires: for I cannot withhold from you that my greatest vanity would be to distribute amongst the wants of my family the means with which it shall please the LORD to intrust me with. I would not do with it as the greater part of mankind, who wait until they can no longer serve themselves with it before they dispose it to others. If it be the will of the Merciful Saviour favourably to hear my request I pray him unceasingly that by his grace he would maintain in me these pious sentiments knowing by experience how weak and false we all are, and that both in willing and in doing all is of GOD. I had destined a little present for your New Year's gift but the hope that I have of seeing you this spring has made me suspend the execution of my purpose. My hope is founded on the request that my wife has made to her brother to employ you in this part. If you cannot positively make up your mind to the journey let me know in order that I may be able to put you in possession of it; but as the expences would cause you to lose much tell me if in making an effort to send you goods they would be likely to reach you without fearing the recurrence of what has lately happened to you; inform me of this, and also if you would be able to get them sold, I should imagine that there would be no doubt of that. Merchandise is high in price, choose what sort would suit you best, for as to money, the little that I could give you would result in next to nothing.

Tell I pray you to Mr Antoine HARLE that Miss MAUROY his niece has placed in our hands for him the sum of £59. 4-. French money which we cannot send him on account of the loss there would be for him, however we will attend to what he says to you in reply. My wife has made enquiry at Paris of the daughter of her Aunt respecting her of whom you have asked some intelligence when she has a reply you will be informed about it, My uncle and aunt De JONCOURT are in perfect health: They send you many friendly wishes, make the same on my part to all their children but particularly to my cousin ARMAND and her daughter: tell them also that my wife will never forget them, asking of them always, part in their remembrances. Adieu my very dear brother I cannot give you anything except family news, so I shall remain, praying you accord to me the continuance of your friendship and believe me without reserve

My very dear Brother,
your very humble and affectionate servant and brother

DESCARRIERES.

1719. Abraham DESCARRIERES to his brother John in London.

From St. Quentin.

Mr and Mrs DE BRISSA send you many kind remembrances.

[Abraham DESCARRIERES of St. Quentin, to his brother John in London.]

St. QUENTIN. 16. JAN. 1722.

The good wishes that I continually express towards you, my very dear Brother, are I assure you very sincere: receive then those which I offer you at this renewal of the year, as proceeding from a heart the most sincere and affectionate that you could know. not only for yourself but also for my dear sister your wife and for your dear family desiring for you all perfect happiness and praying the LORD to bestow abundently upon you his precious blessings, heavenly as well as earthly.

My wife and my sister HARLE charge me to assure you that nothing can be added to the warm wishes that they also express for you all, and if that they were favourably heard nothing would be wanting to your happiness. This, my very dear brother, is all we can do in this calamitous time to convince you of our perfect friendship; we ask of you a continuance of that which you have accorded to us: I ask of you the same favour in behalf of my nephews and nieces GOSSEZ and their small family which already amounts to four children, and who also request me to present to you their remembrances as well as those of our two sisters. She who is an unmarried girl is going in a short time to lose this beautiful name, for yesterday I signed the articles of her marriage with one named MALAFAIS, a young man of about 25 years of age, residing at Peronne where he has been established for about a year in the mercery line, The mother of this young man was a daughter of Mr. C. MAUROI who in your time was Master of the Griffin of this town, or perhaps you will understand better if I tell you that she was the beautiful daughter (step) of Mr. PANNIER who married the widow MAUROI of the Griffin: as this genealogy is not much to you, I will only say that he is a young man of a very agreeable figure and respectable descent, without father or mother living; he has property to the amount of 8000 Livres and the young woman has 6000:—You see here are good means in these unhappy times when each one has lost what he had. as to religion it is that in which this young woman has been brought up, that is to say, the Roman.

The Bible of which you speak to us in your last is in the hands of our sister HARLE to whose care it has been committed in order that it might not be put under seal after the death of our dear Mother and thereby be in danger of capture by the authorities; since then they have demanded it of my sister but unavailingly for she will certainly not deliver it up, she offers to pay them its value but they will not take it. Our House has received your three letters under dates of 25 Sept. 19 Oct. and 6 Nov. 1721. to which we have not replied because there was nothing in them that required answer: we have however to inform you that we have received from Messrs. LIMOND and Co. of London £34. sterling which you have paid them which have produced £1004, 6-, Tournois, which we have carried to your account. Notwithstanding the Dutch prohibitions against the importation of French goods we foresee that our cloths will still be dear this year. when you are in want of them we will send you some, but not cambric, except in new white: not having more than one single piece in the warehouse. Adieu, my dear Brother, be persuaded that I shall be all my life Your very affectionate Brother

DESCARRIERES.

Present I entreat you our very sincere wishes to all our cousins, thanking on my behalf Mr. PANTON for his remembrance. My cousin THURATTE participates also very much in our good wishes. . . . TO Mr. Jean DESCARRIERES. Cock Lane in the suburb Bishopsgate near York St.

St. Quentin. 2 March 1748.

Monsieur and Dear Nephew

I have received your welcome letter of the 12 of Jan^r last which informs me not only of your name, surname, and the place of your birth, but more that you are about to marry with the consent of the family Mary DESCARRIERES my grand niece, the daughter of the late John DESCARRIERES, on which account you ask of me to be admitted into the number of my nephews; to which I subscribe so much the more willingly since the testimony that is given me of your good and wise conduct would not permit me to refuse this slight satisfaction.

I pray GOD that he will keep you together in perfect union, this is the course that you should pursue to draw upon yourselves the blessings of Heaven. I desire them for you with ardour and I am from my heart

Monsieur and Dear Nephew

Your very humble and very affectionate

Uncle DESCARRIERES.

I embrace your dear wife assuring her of my friendship.

When occasion presents itself you will do me a pleasure to let me know your profession, it is that which you have omitted to tell me as well as my nephew; however there is no greayt harm
A Monsieur Matthew LE BAILLY. London.

Parentalia.

Under this head we propose from time to time to print collections of strict evidence of parentage, taken from a variety of sources; that is, the parentage, as a rule, of grown people. Entries from Parish Registers, many of which are useless, owing to the excessive infant mortality in past times, and because of the uncertain identity of many of the persons named, will be carefully excluded.

KING'S BENCH ATTORNIES' CLERKSHIPS.

"Of the lawyers' clerks and apprentices, I find it a general complaint that they are under no manner of government; before their times are half out, they set up for gentlemen; they dress, they drink, they game, frequent the playhouses, and intrigue with the women; and it is no uncommon thing with clerks to bully their masters and desert their service for whole days and nights whenever they see fit." GONZALES' London in 1731.

DESCENTS FROM MOTHER TO DAUGHTER.

Daniel MOTET of Leadenhall Street, London, was a Huguenot refugee from Loudun in Poitou. He appears to have come to England via Jersey, as he had temoignage from Jersey to the French Church in Threadneedle Street, London, 29 January 1687, for "Daniel MOTET, Louisse, Marthe, Dorothe." In March 1688, N.S., there was denization for "Daniel MOTET, Louise wife, Martha, Louisa, Jane Dinah, Frances, Daniel, and Gabriel, children—Dorothy." The relationship of Dorothy to Daniel the elder is uncertain, but she was most likely his sister. Daniel MOTET had two children born after he came to England. His whole family was as follows:—

1. Martha. Born 1672. Married by licence from the Vicar-General's Office, 1703, to Jean SAURET of Stewart Street, London, an Elder of the Artillery French Church, London, 1704, whose daughter, and eventually heir, by Martha, viz. Jeanne SAURET, married at St Benet, Paul's Wharf, London, 17 August 1727, Paul BERTHON of St Martin's-in-the-Fields, bachelor, a merchant of Lisbon.
2. Louise. Born 1673. Married, by licence from the Vicar-General's Office, 17 April 1691, Samuel STRINGER, of Ebisham (Epsom), co. Surrey, Doctor in Physic, whose will was proved P.C.C. 1738, and had issue a son, a doctor in Maryland, and three daughters.
3. Jeanne. Born 1676. She was admitted to the Threadneedle Street Congregation 1690; married Peter GAUSSEN of St Helen's the Great, London, Deputy Governor of the French Hospital, and died s.p. 11 January 1748.
4. Dinah. Married Samuel DUFRESNAY of St Peter's, Cornhill, merchant. She had seven children, who all died s.p. before their mother. She died 1757. Will proved P.C.C.
5. Daniel MOTET, of St Andrew's Holborn. Born c. 1679; mentioned in the will of his father, but in none of the later wills of members of the family. He had a licence from the Vicar-General's Office, 19 December 1704, to marry "Mrs" Anne BARRETT, of St Botolph's, Bishopsgate, spinster, and on the 8 March 1734/5, a licence from the Faculty Office to marry Elizabeth WALTER. He appears to have quarrelled with his family and died s.p., for he left a will as of St Andrew's, Holborn, dated 24 February 1760; proved P.C.C. 11 July 1768, in which he left: "To Mrs Jane BERTHON or any other relative on my father's side or on my mother's side who shall prove himself or herself (at their own proper expence) my heir-at-law the sum of one shilling and no more."
6. Gabriel MOTET, mentioned 31 March 1688; but not mentioned in his father's will.
7. Françoise. Born 1684 or 1685. Married Paul VAILLANT. (See table and below.)
8. Judith. Baptised at Threadneedle Street French Church 20 November 1688 as "fille de Daniel MOTET et de Louyse ALOTTE sa femme tem le dit MOTET et Marthe MOTET."
9. Judith. Baptised at Threadneedle Street French Church, 1 October 1693. Married by licence from Vicar-General's Office, 15 September 1714, Isaac MERCIER of St Swithun's, London, later of Queen Street, London, merchant. Adm'on P.C.C. 12 March 1743. He was buried at St Mary-le-Bow, 1743/4. They had six children, but only the three daughters married, viz. 1. Louise, married Paul VAILLANT; 2. Jeanne, married to

Christopher SCANDERETT; 3. Elizabeth, married to Henry Gabriel HILLAIRE, whose only child, Henry HILLAIRE of Water Lane, Fleet Street, London, gentleman, died unmarried 1777-79. Will P.C.C. 1779.

Louise, Mrs MOTET, who was called "Allote" in the will of Peter MOTET of Utrecht, proved P.C.C. 19 March 1744, left a will, dated 8 October, proved 12 October 1731, P.C.C., in which she made her daughter Judith, Mrs MERCIER, her residuary legatee.

Paul VAILLANT, of St Clement Danes, owned property in Leadenhall street, known by the sign of "The Golden Acorn," also property in the Strand, in the parish of St Martin-in-the-Fields, known by the sign of "The Holy Lamb." He left a will proved P.C.C. 6 December 1739.

Paul VAILLANT, of 52, Pall Mall, was the only child by Françoise MOTET, and was Sheriff of London and Middlesex when Lord FERRERS was hanged. The VAILLANT family still owns Earl FERRERS' watch which he presented to Paul VAILLANT on the scaffold at Tyburn on Monday 6 May 1760.

Paul VAILLANT, of 52, Pall Mall, had by his first wife, Louise MERCIER, the following children: (1) Paul VAILLANT of Hexham. Married, but died s.p. 1816. (2) Rear-Admiral Isaac VAILLANT. (3) Mary. Died unmarried 1808. (4) Frances. Born and died 1749. Paul VAILLANT married secondly, in 1760, Theodosia WHICHCOTE, who died in 1827, having had issue: (1) Elizabeth Theodosia. Married Nathaniel GOSTLING, Esq., of Earl's Court House, Old Brompton, Proctor in Doctors' Commons, and had issue. (2) John VAILLANT, a Judge of the Sheriffs' Court. Died s.p. 1827. (3) Letitia. Died 1766 aged one year. (4) Frances. Born 1766; died 1845. (5) Anne. Born January; died March 1769. (6) The Revd Philip VAILLANT, rector of Stoke d'Abernon, married and had issue. (7) Ann. Born 1770; died 1771. (8) Letitia. Married 1801, Sir William HUTCHINSON, knight, K.C.H., Governor of Carrickfergus.

Admiral Isaac VAILLANT had issue, by Catherine WHITFIELD his wife, a son and three daughters: (1) Paul Henry VAILLANT, Lieutenant R.N., died unmarried 1803. (2) Elizabeth Theodosia. (3) Catherine, died 1818, will P.C.C. (4) Harriet, born 1769; died 1835, married 1798, William LEAKE, and had issue, one son and three daughters: (1) William Henry LEAKE, (2) Emily, married William FLEWKER; issue extinct, (3) Harriet, Mrs George Hans BLAKE (see table), (4) Sophia Ellen. Born 1806; died unmarried 1861. Mrs BLAKE, née LEAKE, had issue: (1) George Lascelles BLAKE, married Elizabeth Irwin KERR, great-grand-daughter of the Marquis of Lothian, and had issue. (2) William BLAKE, married Henrietta FITZGERALD and had issue. (3) Emily Frederica, married John Crichton HARRIS and had issue.

Sincere and grateful thanks are due to the Revd Wilfred Bernard VAILLANT, Mr Henry WAGNER, F.S.A., of 13, Half Moon Street, and Mr Arthur HILL of Cadnam, Hants., for details relating to the VAILLANT family.

Anyone who can show the grandparents and place of birth of Theodosia WHICHCOTE, second wife of Paul VAILLANT of Pall Mall, will be giving valuable assistance to those interested in the VAILLANT pedigree.

MILLES.—Can anyone inform me who was the father of the Revd Jeremiah MILLES, D.D., Dean of Exeter? He was son-in-law of Archbishop POTTER of Canterbury and nephew of Thomas MILLS, Bishop of Waterford, and Richard Pocock, Bishop of Meath. He died 13 February 1784 and was buried at St Edmund's, Lombard Street, London. B.N.N.

WHITE.—Susannah WHITE, born 1750, married George FINLAY, at Lucan, Co. Dublin, in 1767. She had a daughter, Susannah, who married William HARVEY of Primetown, or Slane, Co. Meath, in 1809; also an aunt, or cousin, Dorothea WHITE, who married John WRIXON, at Mooretown, about 1768-70. If anyone can give me any further information respecting the dates of birth, marriage and death of above, or their ancestors, I shall be greatly obliged.

The Pedigree Register

SEPT. 1914]

[Vol. III, No. 30.

Wells.

FOSTER's Alumni states that Edward WELLS, the vicar of Croscombe, Somerset, was perhaps vicar of Corsham and perhaps the father of the Rev. Dr. Edward WELLS, divine and geographer, concerning whom the D.N.B. omits hypothetical detail. An examination of the parish registers confirms the "perhaps," and the exact particulars are as set out in the accompanying pedigree.

The Rev. John WHITEBORN is stated in "Foster" to have been the son of Alexander WHITEBORN of Milton Abbott, Devon, "pleb.," and to have matriculated at Christ Church, Oxford, in 1634, age 18. He was rector of Croscombe 1642-62, when he resigned his living because of the Act of Uniformity, but continued living in the village until his death in 1670. His successor, Samuel LANFIRE, died in 1664 and was replaced by Edward WELLS, who lost no time in becoming the son-in-law of the dispossessed incumbent, and in due time father of the Rev. Edward WELLS, M.A., D.D.

John WHITEBORN had a son James, who entered St. Mary Hall, Oxford, in 1670, at the age of 16, and became Vicar of Fifehead, Dorset, in 1675.

Dr. Edward WELLS was a man of the most varied learning and voluminous writings; two of his books had the great distinction of republication more than a century after his death, namely, the Geography of the New Testament, by the S.P.C.K., and The Rich Man's Duty in Church Building, etc., by Cardinal NEWMAN in 1840. The serious enquirer is referred to the D.N.B. for the essential details of his life and the catalogue of his writings, but to the COLE MSS. must the lover of gossip and scandal go; from this last erudite source we extract some of those frivolous minutiae which escape the serious condensation of the D.N.B.

Dr. Browne WILLIS, F.S.A., is said, when at Oxford, to have been a pupil of WELLS, and offered the latter the rectory of Bletchley in a letter, beginning, "Your wearing your own hair is a circumstance so very agreeable to me, that it has determined me to offer you the living," etc. Browne WILLIS wore a wig himself, but would not suffer anyone about him to do so, and WELLS subsequently took to a wig. Patron and Parson appear to have disagreed soon, and the former contrived to persecute the latter in quite practical style. WILLIS having visited WELLS at the latter's other rectory of Cotesbach, was entertained at dinner on bacon and beans, and resented the commonplace fare as unworthy; no doubt thinking, with Dr. JOHNSON, that though the fare might be solid and wholesome it was not a dinner to ask one to. In due time WELLS established himself at Bletchley rectory. The morning after his arrival a messenger called from the Squire to ask after his health, and left a present of beans; the next morning the messenger again called, and left a present of beans with the Squire's compliments, and again on the third morning and so ad nauseam. On another occasion after dining at Whaddon Hall with the Squire, the unhappy rector on his way home at night found all the stiles soiled with fresh cow-dung, as after transpired, by the Squire's order. Residence at Bletchley was made so unpleasant for Wells that he spent most of his time at his other living of Cotesbach, in Leicestershire. Here he died and was buried. There is no monument nor stone to his memory. During his incumbency the parish of Fenny Stratford was taken out of Bletchley and WILLIS extracted a subscription and other "forfeitures" out of the reluctant WELLS. On the armorial ceiling in Fenny Stratford Church, WELLS is represented amongst the heraldic display by a shield with an open book upon it. The device is not armorial as the rector was not heraldically "generosus." In FOSTER's Alumni his father is described as "pleb." At his death Dr. WELLS left his money to his nephews, one of whom, the Rev. Edward WELLS, was curate at Bletchley during his uncle's incumbency. He had a son Edward, who kept a grocer's shop in the parish at Water Eaton. He was also a school-master and churchwarden, and is variously described in the register as farmer and gentleman and sometimes has "Mr" to his name. His wife was the daughter of a local farmer.

The Rev. Edward WELLS laid aside his cassock and turned physician, and his brother John (who married Mary CAWNE) became curate of Bletchley (COLE MS.).

No descendants of the family are to be found now at Bletchley. In Literary Anecdotes of Eighteenth Century, by John NICHOLS, it is stated: "The late Thos. Jas. SELBY of Whaddon left to Mr. FRANKLIN, who married Miss Elizabeth WELLS, £1000: to Miss Nelly WELLS and to Mrs. FRANKLIN (late Catherine WELLS) £100 each; the grandchildren of the Rev. Dr. WELLS." NICHOLS is probably mistaken in supposing the Misses WELLS to be related to Dr. WELLS, who, as a bachelor clergyman, should have left no progeny. His nephew, John, married the daughter of the rector of Wavendon, and she may be the Mrs. Mary WELLS buried at Wavendon 5 August, 1723. If so the legatees of Mr. SELBY must have been his daughters by a second wife: he was moreover said by COLE to have been "curate." The John WELLS of Wavendon is described in the register as "Mr" and "Esq" and his children are buried in a vault. He was a member of the family which owned the manor, and Lionel was a name used by his ancestors, doubtless in reference to the rampant lion of the family arms. Mr. SELBY's legacies were for young ladies of county rank and armigerous family, and not for the daughters of the poor curate of Bletchley.

“DISNEY, DE ISENEY, de ISEGNI, name and line be gentlemen of France” (LELAND). In HUTCHINS' Dorset there is a very long and complicated pedigree of this family, which deals with many branches, including the branch here dealt with. The particulars here presented are not only more numerous, but the details are extracted from the M.I.'s and parish registers of Bradwell, Stoke Hammond and Bletchley, all parishes in Bucks.

The Rev. Thomas DISNEY gave £300 for the living of Bletchley for his son Matthew; the latter was Rector of Bradwell while waiting for Bletchley to fall vacant.

COLE writes (Add. MS. 5830), “My predecessor Mr. Matt. DISNEY, rector of Bletchley, who died 1715 leaving sons, one of which is rector of Cranbrook and has several children, the youngest of which, my Friend, is Fellow of Trinity College, Camb., and Professor of Hebrew, and his elder brother is Fellow of St. John's, Oxford. Tho' the rector of Stoke must be very ancient in 1680 when his wife died, yet he ventured again in the married state, being then near 80 years of age, for I find Faith the widow of M^r Tho^s DISNEY buried in Bletchley in 1706 at the age of 80 years. It is probable that his second wife was daughter to M^r TAYLOR, Rector of Bletchley.” HUTCHINS gives Thomas DISNEY's second wife as, “Faith daut. of NIXON, gent., and relict of Jasper JUSTICE, clerk, d.s.p.”

M^r Matthew DISNEY was one of the guardians, during his minority, of Dr. Browne WILLIS, F.S.A., D.C.L., and was universally esteemed. He died suddenly in his study and was found on his knees, dead, as if at his devotions. His widow lived on a jointure of £130 (from her first husband M^r DARELL) at Bedford with her daughter.

There formerly hung in the chancel at Bletchley this framed record: Arg. on a fess gules three fleur-de-lis or.—Matt. DISNEY, A.M., hujus Eccl. Rector pacificus, residens, et homo antiquæ familiæ, doctrina modestia, caritate, et bonis moribus præditus. Obiit Jan. 23 1715. Aetatis 60.

William BRADBROOK.

Bletchley.

An abstract of the will of the Rev. Matthew DISNEY (P.C.C. 96 Fox) follows.

1713, June 19. In the Name of God, Amen. I, Matthew DISNEY of Bletchley, Bucks., Clarke, make my last Will, &c. To my son Joseph DISNEY and his heirs my 20 acres of land in the parish of Woughton on the Green, Bucks, in tenure of John KILPIN, which were bought by me of William BROWN and Johanna his wife and the daughters of said Johanna by Roger CARDWELL her first husband, and are included in my wife's jointure. To my son Matthew DISNEY and his heirs my messuage in the occupation of Francis LEVENTHROP, apothecary, his undertenant, at Leighton Buzzard, adjoining a great Barn of William WHIPPAM, Innholder, now in the joint tenure of him the said Francis LEVENTHROP and Francis KING of Leighton Buzzard, grocer. Item, to my son Francis DISNEY and his heirs my messuage in Leighton Buzzard in the occupation of Francis KING. To my son Thomas DISNEY and his heirs my messuage in Leighton Buzzard in the occupation of Robert GLENISTER, shoemaker, his undertenant. As these three houses are contiguous and the said Robert GLENISTER hath always had a Cartway through the yard of said Francis LEVENTHROP and Francis KING and a footway from said yard towards the Church, said son Thomas to enjoy benefit of said wayes, &c. To my daughter Mary DISNEY and her heirs, a messuage in Leighton Buzzard known by the sign of The Feathers, now in occupation of Thomas BRICE, and three acres of ground called Woolfords and 2 acres of ley ground called Rowlery Stone belonging to said messuage, &c. To my son Henry DISNEY a tenement in Bradwell, Bucks, in the occupation of Samuel SMITH and a close adjoining the church there in occupation of John COLE, labourer, and lands in the fields of Stanbridge in parish of Leighton Buzzard in the tenure of Daniel ELLINGHAM (lease made by Henry IRONMONGER, gent., to Ralph DOGGET late of Leighton Buzzard and belonging to me as executor of Elizabeth DOGGET of Leighton Buzzard, widow), &c. To the poor of Bletchley £3. 10; poor of Water Eaton £2. 10s.—poor of Fenny Stratford £4. 10s.—“As to my daughters Frances LEMAN, Elizabeth DISNEY and Martha DISNEY I hereby give nothing to them” (having already provided for them, &c.). To my wife Mary DISNEY all household stuff, &c., executrix. (Signed) Mat: DISNEY.

Witnesses, Browne WILLIS, Henry EARLE, John COOKE.

Proved at London 14 May 1716 by the executrix named.

Parentalia.

As this has proved a most highly appreciated feature, we give a longer instalment of strict proofs of parentage; "record evidence" of descent. One word, however, to readers who observe family names in which they are interested: always look up the document itself. Get as near as you can to the original source.

DESCENTS FROM MOTHER TO DAUGHTER.

Christopher CROWE of Mileham, Norfolk, son of Richard CROWE of Longham, 20 Edward IV (1480/1) (see CARTHEW's History of the Hundred of Launditch, in which a full account of the family is given), died 7 December 1527, and there is in St. John the Baptist's Church, Mileham, a brass to him and his wife, a drawing of which is given by CARTHEW in the above mentioned book. Christopher CROWE had issue, certainly a daughter, Rose CROWE, married to Simon DETHICK of North Elmham, and Thomas and Richard CROWE, who are mentioned as overseers in the will of Simon DETHICK.

Simon DETHICK de Northelmham is mentioned as early as 20 November 1527, by CARTHEW (see page 448, Part III, Hundred of Launditch). In his will, dated 10 June 1542, he says, "As touching my body which is but erth and wormes meate I bequeath it to be buried within the Chapell dedicated unto God and in the memoryal of Saynt James standinge uppon the south side of the quere of North Elmham." He, in 23 Henry VIII (1531/2), purchased land in Betell from John TOWNSENDE, Esq., and Helen his wife. He also held lands in North Elmham, Bythering Magna, Erstdenham and Howe. Simon DETHICK and his wife Rose had issue, Christopher, Richard, Thomas, John and Henry, Christian, married Thomas PETTUS (see table); Rose, married William BATCH, and Elizabeth married Richard SWIFT.

Thomas PETTUS, who was Mayor of Norwich, 1590, was son of John PETTUS of Norwich, who was admitted to the Freedom of Norwich Tailors' Company 9 June 1520, by his first wife Jone, and grandson of Thomas PETTUS of London, who was admitted to the Norwich Tailors' Company 21 July 1492. Thomas PETTUS, Mayor of Norwich, purchased the estate of Rackheath in 1591 from William HELMES, Esq. By his wife Christian DETHICK he had issue,

- I. Sir John PETTUS, knight, knighted at Richmond 29 June 1607. M.P. for Norwich 1601, and Mayor of Norwich 1608. He died in 1614, and was ancestor of the Baronets PETTUS, now extinct.
- II. Thomas PETTUS of Norwich, baptized 1552; Mayor of Norwich 1614; died 1620. He married Cicely KING and had many descendants.
- III. William PETTUS, citizen and merchant of London, married Elizabeth, daughter of Henry ROLFE of Kelvedon, Essex, gent., and was ancestor of the ROLFES of Kelvedon. Elizabeth, widow of William PETTUS, married as her second husband Sir Francis JONES, knight, Lord Mayor of London, 1620.
- IV. Alexander PETTUS, alive 1591, of whom nothing more is known.

- V. Elizabeth PETTUS, married at St. Simon & St. Jude's, Norwich, 1573, Augustine WHALL of Catton, Norfolk, and had issue five children: Thomas, Mary, married Martyn MONDEFORD of Wereham, Norfolk, Ann, Elizabeth, and Christian, married before 1613, John FINCHAM of Ostwell, Norfolk, and had issue.
- VI. Isabel PETTUS, baptized at St. Simon and St. Jude's, Norwich, 1557.
- VII. Cicely PETTUS (see table), married to Humphrey CAMDEN.
- VIII. Anne PETTUS, baptized 1564, married (licence dated 25 February 1586) Robert DEBNEY, Alderman of Norwich. She died between 1591 and 1597, having had issue a daughter, Cicely DEBNEY, married — JACOB.

Humphrey CAMDEN of London, who is said to have been a kinsman of William CAMDEN, Clarenceaux, the Historian, had issue by Cicely PETTUS his wife, two children, viz. John CAMDEN, alive in 1613, and Susan CAMDEN, married Henry PENDLETON, of Norwich.

In St. Simon and St. Jude's, Norwich, is a monument with the effigies of Thomas PETTUS, Mayor of Norwich, his wife Christian DETHICK, and their children, also the arms of Thomas PETTUS, Mayor of Norwich, 1590, and the arms of Christian DETHICK his wife, hers being as follows: 1st. and 4th. Argent, a fess vary or & gules, between three water budgets sable. 2nd. and 3rd. Gules, a chevron between three escallops or. This monument would appear to have been erected between the years 1597 and 1614, as Sir John PETTUS died in 1614, and the monument has the following in the inscription thereon: "Johannes PETTUS, Filius et Heres Thomae PETTUS Patris sui charissimi hoc monumentum erexit. Qui Thomas obiit Septimo Die January 1597 A° aet sue 78 cujus Spiritus in coelis carnis re assumption expectat." As John PETTUS was not here called "Knight," it is possible the monument was put up before June 1607.

The Registers of Warcop, Westmorland, 1597-1744. Transcribed by John ABERCROMBIE, M.D., F.R.C.P. Cumberland and Westmorland Parish Register Society. Kendal: Titus WILSON, 1914. 8vo, pp. 174.

Warcop, which adjoins Yorkshire, is near Appleby and Kirkby Stephen. These Registers are completely printed for the period named (they have been copied in full to 1812); they have been compared with the Bishop's Transcripts, and they are fully indexed. No further recommendation need be made. Only, we suggest, to round off and complete the work, that they should be printed to 1837, when general (central) registration began. Another practical suggestion: there is nothing in the book, no list, to show what other Registers have been done by this Society, or what is contemplated, or the subscription. Are no fresh Members wanted?

The Order of Keeping a Court Leet and Court Baron, with the Charges appertaining to the same. A facsimile reproduction of the 1650 edition. The Manorial Society's Publications, No. 8. 1 Mitre Court Buildings, London, E.C. 1914. 8vo. pp. 51.

This little book gives an excellent insight into the scope and authority of the old Manor Courts, and will help the genealogist to a knowledge of the kind of information to be derived from ancient Court Rolls. As the jurymen and other inhabitants of the leet were compelled from the age of twelve to attend the half-yearly Courts Leet and listen to the Steward's charge or exhortation as to their duties and functions, it will be seen how good an opportunity was given to the common people to understand the nature and obligations of local government. At the Court Baron the tenants were bound to appear every three week's end, if required by the lord, unless the lord, "for the tenants' ease (which he esteemeth more than his own profit) suffereth the same to be kept but seldome." The absentees would be duly presented and amerced, unless they were "essoigned," or excused, by reason of lawful impediment.

Genealogists' interests are served by inquiries as to what tenants were dead since the last Court, what land they held and by what service, and who their heirs were; but the mere record of residence is often valuable evidence for family history.

The present writer found that, as late as 1787, two silver candlesticks were paid to the King as a heriot on the death of a relation of his, a tenant of King's manor in East Hendred, Berks.

Public Records.

Second Report of the (1910) Commission on Public Records of England and Wales.
Three parts, folio, 9 $\frac{1}{2}$ d., 1s. 1d. and 2s. 10d. Eyre & Spottiswoode.

One definite conclusion emerges from the welter of facts and opinions contained in these Blue Books, and that is that there are great masses of public records still held up from public use. There is still the same doleing out with one hand and keeping back with the other which characterizes the small person in office: the same unwillingness to understand, when not passively hostile, what the record-searcher wants. What he wants is simple enough. He wants Class Lists or Inventories of all records. He wants ready and easy production of bundles, volumes and rolls. He wants Indexes and more Indexes, and Calendars of the contents of the said bundles, volumes and rolls, but he will often make indexes for himself if only he is allowed access, and can be kept quiet for quite a long time with such simple humouring.

Also, there are three fundamental principles to be observed if record-keeping and record-searching are to be put on an honourable basis: honourable alike to keepers and searchers and devoid of stupid friction.

First, public records should once and for all be distinguished from private collections. The Historical Manuscripts Commission deals with those.

Secondly, all public records, in whatever hands they may happen to be, should automatically become freely accessible when they reach a certain age, say fifty, seventy or a hundred years; but only let the age be definitely laid down.

Thirdly, Class Lists or Inventories of all public records should be made and printed, even as a simple precaution against loss, in moderate-priced Blue Books. In these lists a separate line and number should be given to each bundle, roll, carton or volume, and a separate column should show, in respect of each entry, what "means of reference" exist in the way of Indexes or Calendars to each such bundle, roll, carton or volume. The last suggestion is particularly important and would save enormous waste of time.

Lastly, these Class Lists or Inventories should not be hidden away, but boldly put on open shelves and the public instructed to ask for them as the veritable key, abstract, and brief chronicle, of what may or may not be seen.

These essential preliminaries established, the next thing is to determine under what conditions the public should have access to its own property, so that the best use can be made of it. The Public Record Office, in Chancery Lane, after a vast expenditure of public money, has, in the course of the last hundred years or so, succeeded in bringing into some sort of order and under one roof the scattered records of numerous public offices, has compiled Calendars to certain selected classes of documents, and has made class lists of a kind to all the documents to be found there. It has established a system for the ready production of any bundle, volume, etc., enumerated in these lists, and, on the whole, it works. Nothing could be better than for the same system to be extended to the contents of every other office in the kingdom where public records are kept.

But there is one great difficulty, speaking generally, in reference to these "outside" offices: accommodation for searchers is limited or non-existent, and the expense is not provided for. It would be a small matter for them to prepare Class Lists or Inventories of their records, but it is quite another thing for them to provide the necessary attendance and accommodation for searchers. It seems to us that there is only one way out of this difficulty. In cases where no ready access can be given, public records, directly they reach a certain age, should automatically be transferred to the custody of the Master of the Rolls and deposited in the Public Record Office.

The recommendations of the Commission fall under seven heads:

Adequate provision for safe custody, arrangement, etc.

Certain records to be transferred to the Public Record Office.

Administration.

Structural changes in repositories.

Readjustment and reorganization on the part of Treasury.

Uniform practice in regard to the Public Record Office Acts.

Transmission of documents, and the control of Record Publications.

We hope the recommendations of the Commission will be carried out. It is doing useful work in disclosing where records are, but, after all, that does not carry us very far, if no one is allowed to see them; if we only learn at great expense, for this Commission must be costing a pretty penny, that they are "kept locked up in a room."

We will now mention a few of the discoveries and recommendations of genealogical interest.

At the War Office, personal records concerning individual officers are now accessible to historical students. At the Office of Inland Revenue, it is definitely stated that the early Income Tax records were destroyed by Act of Parliament in 1816; certain Land Tax assessments and copies of wills have been transferred to P.R.O. (Public Record Office). From the National Debt Office records of eighteenth century life annuities and tontine annuities are now transferred to P.R.O. At the Office of Woods and Forests are certain early deeds and plans recommended to be transferred to P.R.O. At the Royal Courts of Justice there are records of considerable antiquity which ought long ago to have been transferred thither. It is recommended that the rest of the records of the Duchy of Lancaster, prior to 1837, and the records of the Duchy of Cornwall, prior to 1837, be transferred to P.R.O. That at the General Register (Registrar-General's) Office an official handbook of the contents be issued, also of the contents of the District Register Offices. It is further recommended that inspection of Registers as well as Indexes be permitted on payment of the search fee and the public allowed to take copies at their own risk. The Registrar-General announces that proper Indexes will now be made to the collection of Non-Parochial Registers, which the dissenting bodies were induced to deposit with him. At the Principal Probate Registry a complete list (i.e., Class List or Inventory) of records should be compiled as in other offices. (An imperfect list is issued with this Report.) All records here, testamentary and non-testamentary, prior to 1858, should be kept in a branch Record Office under the supervision of the P.R.O.; that it be properly equipped and the "excessive and unusual" fee for photographing documents "be entirely remitted." That the Judge Advocate General's records be added to the series of War Office Records in P.R.O. That the Greenwich Hospital Estates and Escheated Estates records might be opened to public inspection, also the mediæval documents of the Ecclesiastic Commissioners, and old documents of the Treasury Solicitor, Office of Works, Office of Woods and Forests, National Debt Office, and Charity Commission.

The Commissioners observe that there are many Registries whose officers clearly possess no experience of the methods now employed through Europe for the safe custody and arrangement of archives, and that their keeping has been tacitly assumed, in many departments, to be one of the minor arts of civilized life which, like reading and writing, come by nature.

They consider that records should be open freely to public inspection when they reach a certain age, say seventy years old, with occasional exceptions, and a time fixed when a departmental record transmitted to the P.R.O. becomes a public record. That the P.R.O. Official Guide should be considerably expanded in its information about Departmental Records. That a collection of regulations as to access in Departmental repositories be issued by the P.R.O., and that a return be printed showing where the archives of all past Royal Commissions have been deposited. Finally, as to the keeping of records, the Commissioners are satisfied that calf is the very worst material for binding; and if it is still in use it should be discontinued. They find at the Home Office that unbound papers are kept in bundles between boards; at the Colonial Office, in bundles with millboards and a strap. Many departments have plain brown paper parcels, tied up with string or tape, and one office of great antiquity keeps them in bundles tied up with string, with no protection from dust or string. The absence of Inventories (Class Lists), they say, often causes records to be mislaid. Consecutive numbers are absolutely necessary to enable records to be checked. How records should be listed is described in the Report (page 57).

As to destruction of documents, the Deputy Keeper intends to print a volume of the Schedules and Rules.

The Commissioners say that historical students should be represented on the Committee of Destruction and that schedules should be available for inspection in the British Museum and the P.R.O., before documents are destroyed.

Last of all, we are told that the cost of the P.R.O., with a staff of 108, is £22,000 per annum; of other scattered record establishments (including local Probate Registries), with a total staff of 901, £119,885 per annum is the cost.

A chapter might be written on the quaint ideas of some of the present record-keepers. One of the most amusing is the contention that the Principal Probate Registry is not a public record office—or, at any rate, that the Literary Research Department there is not. The Probate Registry is the successor of the church porch, where wills used to be read publicly in order to safeguard public right. Of all records, wills are the most public; if it were not so the inheritance of none would be safe. We go further, and say that free public access to public records of any age is a public right under the Constitution, and that if it is withheld that is because nobody with enough public spirit has come forward to contest it in the Courts. After all, what are records but "scraps of paper," binding individuals (or bodies corporate) for the public good? If record-keepers have the power to deny access what becomes of public safety?

One might add that all three parts of this Blue Book are marked, "Second Report . . . vol. II." As a matter of fact, they form the whole of the Second Report with Appendices, etc., not a part of it. A Third Report, and possibly more, will follow.

stone slab laid flat, deeply incised with his name and year of death. He was a schoolmaster, and formerly master of the Academy at Winslow in this County, and subsequently master of Newnham Academy in Northamptonshire. Cooke.

COOKE is a common surname in North Bucks, and during the eighteenth century there were at least two families of that name living in the parish of Bletchley. The scanty commonplace details of the accompanying pedigree have been collected from some epitaphs in the churchyard and the register. The latter record is so well kept that it is quite easy to follow the course of a family through it, as the names of both parents, residence and occupation are recorded in most of the entries. The name is spelled both with and without the final "e," and the occasional form, COOCKE, gives a hint of the vernacular pronunciation.

The family here treated of was, to use county historian language, seated at Water Eaton for several generations, and though of local repute was without illustration. The description used mostly in the register is "farmer"; "yeoman" being used for the first generation or two; the title "Mr" was first applied in 1751 to Thomas COOKE (after his daughter, Sarah, had married, none too soon, the Curate's son), and the family attained its social apogee in the person of Thomas Aldwin COOKE, who is described as "gent." in the baptismal entries of nearly all his brats, and, though dying at the early age of 64, he lived nearly long enough to be a great-grandfather, and to see his two grandsons described as labourers in the baptismal entries of their respective children. Ecclesiastical and civic apotheosis was attained in the offices of churchwarden and constable, held by more than one member of the family.

The large families of the successive heads is noticeable, also the heavy infant mortality. Out of 51 births no less than 15 died under 12 months, an infant mortality of 30 per cent, and several of the survivors died before reaching full age, others in early adult life; probably less than half reached middle life.

The small number of names used is also remarkable. For 60 people appearing in this pedigree, only 17 names are used; viz., John 8 times, Sarah 7, Thomas 6, Jane 6, Anne 5, William 5, Mary 5, etc. Only one double name is used, Thomas Aldwin, baptized in 1738, when it was very rare to depart from the English custom and adopt the "outlandish, foreign and popish practice" of giving a combination of names in baptism.

This record is that of a family of no importance nor distinction; even the notoriety of crime does not seem to have been achieved by any of its members. Mere ordinary, commonplace, village people engaged in agriculture; neither paupers, on the one hand, nor gentry on the other; conforming to the Church of England, and continued residence for generations in one place, the family was a sample of thousands of English rural families of the eighteenth century, who all exhibited the negative characteristics we find in this one.

A study of the pedigree shows that domesticity was a prominent attribute. This quality, with its accompaniment of fecundity and adherence to locality are not so marked in this age of movement, and very few families could now be found to show a similar history.

Dewberry and Jauncey.

This fragmentary pedigree has been compiled from the parish registers of Bletchley and Shenley in Bucks, and Castle Camps in Cambridgeshire and the Cole MSS.

The DEWBERRYS were evidently a family of small farmers and shopkeepers; various members are described in Bletchley register as innkeeper or bucher (sic). The name disappears from the register before the seventeenth century is half over. This family owes such posthumous credit as may fall to its share to the marriage of Mary to John JAUNCEY, who became the ancestors of a family of clergymen of repute.

It is a family tradition that John JAUNCEY was an ex-officer of cavalry and was disinherited by his father, possibly for political reasons; but no evidence is given in support of this tradition. The compiler knows nothing of his ancestry, not having pursued any search or inquiry beyond the sources above mentioned.

COLE states (Add. MS. 5821) that Mr. John JAUNCEY was Bailiff of the Manor to the Duke of Buckingham, and to Dr. Thomas WILLIS, who purchased the Manors of Whaddon, Bletchley, etc. Mr. W. DEWSBURY (sic) kept the Post House at Fenny Stratford. In 1650, Mr. JAUNCEY kept the "Black Bull" Inn, and, in 1681, pulled down the "George," because it hindered the custom of his house, the "Red Lyon."

COLE also records epitaphs at Bletchley which mention seven members of this family. No trace of these epitaphs remains.

In FOSTER's Alumni the Rev. John JAUNCEY is described as the son of John JAUNCEY of Fenny Stratford, gent., and as matriculating at Lincoln Coll. 31 May, 1677, aged 17; he graduated B.A. from S. Mary Hall in 1681, and M.A. from Clare Hall, Cambridge, in 1683. He became rector of Shenley in 1684, and married a daughter of his predecessor, the Rev. Geo. CRESSY. The register contains several entries of this family, including the burial of Rev. G. CRESSEY, 19 Mar. 1683/4. His widow survived until 1707 and was buried 28 November.

It would be interesting to know the reason of the name "FYGE" coming into the family. It is worth noting that a Margaret FYGE was buried at Shenley in 1674. She may have been related to the CRESSEYS.

In Add. MS. 5805, p. 94, COLE records his impressions of the Rev. Fyge JAUNCEY: "I think I remember this person several times at Mr. CARTWRIGHT's at Bletchley, while I was rector there. If he is the same person, he was first admitted at Jesus Coll. Cantab., and after a short stay there removed himself to Oxford, married early a young lady from Lichfield, and was a tutor in a private family in Essex, where he had a living. His father was an officer in some Bishop's Court, and lived in a street near Bloomsbury Square, where my friend, Mr. GRAY, always lodged when in town. His grandfather, if I mistake not, had been rector of Shenley, next parish to Bletchley, where some of the family lie buried, the great-grandfather keeping a public house at Fenny Stratford."

The Rev. Fyge JAUNCEY was admitted to the Charterhouse in 1747 on the nomination of the Bishop of London, and in 1755 was admitted to S. John's Coll. Camb. (not Jesus). He subsequently went to Hertford Coll. Oxon, and in 1764 became B.C.L. He was Rector of Wigsborough 1764, Rector of Shelley, Essex, in 1769, and made Rector of Castle Camps in 1772, by the governors of the Charterhouse. His monument is erected as a tribute of respect by his parishioners. On it is the well-known inscription (attributed indifferently to the old monks and to PORSON):

MORS MORTIS MORTI MORTEM NISI MORTE DEDISSET, ÆTERNÆ VITAE
JANUA CLAUSA FORET.

No attempt has been made to complete this pedigree or to inquire as to details of descendants.

The particulars from Castle Camps have been courteously supplied by the Rev. G. C. CARTER, Rector.

Notes, Queries and Replies.

We hope to continue THE PEDIGREE REGISTER "as usual" during the War. We think that while the War must be the chief preoccupation, it is good to have some relief from it—some other study to which one may turn to ease the strain. Let the past still be kept in view: it will help to balance our outlook on the future. Sanely keeping the old paths, so may we draw strength and encouragement to face the new.

READERS' VOTING.—In the last issue of THE PEDIGREE REGISTER a voting paper was enclosed, with the object of obtaining the views of readers as to the relative interest to them of the articles appearing in its pages. The result is as follows. The "Modern Pedigrees in Tabular Form" were placed first by the majority of the votes.

Next came "The Law's Lumber Room," which tied with "Articles on various classes of records, explaining their nature and scope."

The third in favour was "Pedigrees from Documents in private possession," tying with "Fly-leaf Inscriptions and Family Registers," and "Notes and Queries." The rest came in no order of preference, and Mr. Reginald PEACOCK's was the nearest prediction of the views of the majority.

Genealogical Abstracts of Wills . . . Register "Wootton," 1658, volume VII, by William BRIGG, B.A., quarto, pp. 133. Privately printed for subscribers only. 14 Clifford's Inn, London, E.C., 10s. 6d.

In this volume the editor gives abstracts of 604 more wills, making a total to date of 4,056, or about half of the whole series of wills proved in England and Wales for the year 1658. This excellent work by Mr BRIGG gives a faint idea of the mass of genealogical and family details hidden away in one class of records alone, and points the best method of systematically dealing with it. The editor prints only 150 copies, and modestly asks that this small number be fully subscribed for, so that the remainder of the work, at the rate of one volume a year, may be brought to a successful termination.

PROTESTATION RETURNS.—I should like to be informed as to the whereabouts and the means available for searching the "Protestation Returns"; and especially as to whether those for Hampshire (County Southampton) are extant, and whether they have ever been printed wholly or in part.

Arthur W. STOTE.

ABBOTT of Aleppo, & Mrs. MASEYK being Sponsors—by me Robt. FOSTER, Chapn.

The five children whose Names are underwritten were baptized all together in the English Chapel in the presence of all the Factory (as the above will testify) an evident Mark of the soil of Aleppo being much more fruitful at this Day than it ever has been since the Factory began; for one of my predecessors under the first Baptism that is register'd in this Book, remarks that there had not been a Baptism in the English Chapel before for 30 years, & now there have been seven within the space of eight months, w^h evidently demonstrates the still existing state of the Factory of Aleppo.

¹ The late William BECK, in Family Fragments, gives Thomas BECK, of Croydon, and Elizabeth STUBBS (misprinted SIBBS) as parents of Thomas BECK of Godalming. It seems a safer conjecture that the latter was a son of John BECK, also of Croydon; the birth of a Thomas BECK of that parentage being recorded, and the said John BECK removing to Godalming himself later in life.

² Witnesses present at the BECK-STUBBS marriage: John BECK and Elizabeth BECK, presumably brother and daughter by former marriage.

³ Witnesses present at the BECK-GARTON marriage: Thomas BECK, Thomas BECK and Caleb BECK, presumably father and cousins; the last named possibly of the Bromyard family.

⁴ The deaths of Thomas and Elizabeth (née WOODS) BECK are not recorded in the Surrey registers. No parentage is given in their marriage record, the authority for that of Elizabeth WOODS being the will of her father dated 1720, which mentions his grandsons Thomas and John BECK.

Notes, Queries and Replies.

The Bliss Book. A Romantic History of the Bliss Family from the Time of its Beginning, in England, to its Advent into America, and Illustrating the Conditions of Life of the English Ancestors of many Others of the Founders of New England. By Charles Arthur HOPPIN. Privately printed. Hartford, Connecticut, 1913. Quarto. 150 copies only.

Years ago, in 1881, an American book was written, The Bliss Genealogy, in which the writer, on the resemblance of this surname to that of BLOIS, founded a chapter telling of BLISS progenitors in England: kings, earls, knights, lords and gentlemen; of “ . . . the heroic and the free,

The beautiful, the brave, the lords of earth and sea.”

Now Mr HOPPIN writes another, and a much better one, to prove that the early BLISSES in England were of no higher social rank than cottagers; that, indeed, “no BLISSE in England ever was knighted . . . ever was chosen to be a member of the House of Commons . . . of the House of Lords . . . was a direct paternal descendant of any king, or of any queen, or of a prince, or of an earl, or from the nobility in general. . . . No BLISSE of England had been sheriff of his county or the mayor of his borough.”

On the contrary, such being the case, “It is enough to know that the primitive aristocracy of New England was an aristocracy of intellect consecrated to duty, and not of blood; that her peerage and her knighthood were honors direct from the creative hand of God, and not from the touch of a monarch.”

Well, one can have it both ways, it seems. Perhaps the chief value of many American genealogies lies in the perception they give us of the mental attitude of that democracy. If you are descended (in the male line) from people of high social rank, you are to be congratulated that no such outward label as a title is necessary to the present generation; if from more humble folk, you are to be glad they were not in the ranks of R. W. EMERSON’S “twenty thousand thieves who landed at Hastings, greedy and ferocious dragoons, sons of greedy and ferocious pirates.” In either case the present representatives are very fine fellows and entirely free from major or minor vices.

The book presents an interesting picture of mediæval conditions, it is packed with valuable family records, is readable in the highest degree, but what is one to think of the naïveté of such a statement as this (p. 50), or of the public for whom it is intended? “The author has been asked to omit explanations of records revealing the unfortunate circumstances of some of the mediæval BLISSES; but he feels that such . . . a suggestion is hardly commendable in view of the fact that in an age when illegitimacy was notoriously widespread, when the illegitimate descendants of crowned and coronetted heads were ‘too numerous to be mentioned,’ no record of such a stain upon any Bliss can be found in four hundred years of English Bliss history. What titular honor exceeds that? What worldly wealth can outweigh it? ‘When God sifted four kingdoms wherewith to find the seed to plant a new republic,’ He chose of titled and Midasian personages practically none”! (The italics are not ours.) The author, it is to be presumed, knows his public.

But, apart from this peculiarity, we congratulate the author on the production of a useful and eminently readable record. He claims for it (a little vehemently) that it is the "last word" on early BLISS genealogy in England; he having, as he says, searched practically all early English records for the purpose of its compilation. We cannot quite follow him here, any more than we are inclined to allow his claim on the evidence adduced for the pre-eminent moral superiority of the BLISSES in the matter of conjugal relationship. (He does find, by the way, that one of them (p. 160) took excessive gain in meat and malt, and even attacked his neighbour with a poniard.) He cannot, for example, have exhausted the unindexed Plea Rolls, the Feet of Fines, the unindexed Manorial Court Rolls, or the masses of unindexed records of the Chancery. From any of these sources, as well as from the accumulations of records and papers in local official and private hands, there may issue to the surface, at any moment, documents capable of profoundly modifying his conclusions and adding to his admittedly unequalled knowledge of the family history. There is a good index.

HATTON.—Information wanted concerning the name and residence of the grandfather of Capt. John HATTON, Commodore of the East India Co.'s Fleet, who was born 13 Sept. 1761, and died in 1832 at Gravesend, Kent. His father, Edward HATTON, married Jane WATSON, 27 July, 1760, at Gravesend, and his sister, Sarah, married William BAINS 25 Dec. 1794.—Editor, PEDIGREE REGISTER.

FREDERICK SIMON SNELL, M.A. (1862-1914).—We regret to record the death of F. S. SNELL, who passed away after a long fight with ill-health at The Chestnuts, Colin Deep Lane, The Hyde, N.W., on Tuesday the 3rd November.

He was the sixth son of Henry Saxon SNELL, F.R.I.B.A. (ob. 1904), a descendant of Richard SNELL of Sonning, Berks, (1726-1817); was educated privately at Maidenhead, whence he proceeded to University College, London, and thereafter to Durham University, where he took his M.A. in 1883. He was also a Member of the Middle Temple and a Fellow and one of the Founders of the Society of Genealogists of London.

Of slight physique, but untiring energy, despite attacks of ill-health, SNELL spent his earlier years following the profession of schoolmaster; his malady making residence abroad advisable he had two lengthy sojourns in South Africa, the later one during the Boer War, when he shouldered a rifle and took duty behind wire entanglements with the best. But his inclination was always towards antiquarian studies, and more especially genealogy, so that when, in 1906, some improvement in his circumstances brought him home again, he decided to settle in London, to be near the main sources of information, the Record Office, Somerset House, and the British Museum, whence he could draw the material for his genealogical collections.

His main interest lay in the yeoman families of Berkshire, and it is in his labours towards working out their descents that his best memorial will be found. The present writer often discussed with him his scheme for a comprehensive collection of data from original sources, intended to simplify the task of future inquirers into this by-way of a fascinating study. By his energy and untiring labour he gathered together a very fine and well-arranged mass of facts about by-gone Berkshire people, which, under his will, go to enrich the collections of the Society of Genealogists of London.

He printed little. Two or three articles in THE PEDIGREE REGISTER evince a well-stored mind, and a promise of the pleasure which might have been conferred by his antiquarian humour, had he desired publicity of that kind. He was an occasional contributor to Notes and Queries. To The British Archivist he was contributing at the time of his death a valuable epitome of the Chancery Depositions before 1714. He had also, in an advanced stage, for The British Record Society, a continuation of the excellent Calendar of Wills in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, covering the years 1718 to 1725, which will, it is hoped, form one of their future volumes.

SNELL had no illusions as to the "importance" of his work; his sense of humour always denied that. But he laboured unremittingly and with wonderful speed, early and late, conscientiously, almost, one might say, meticulously, for the nature of his work demanded even that quality, and he rejoiced in the steady growth of his material, the value of which only those who come into this inheritance will appreciate.

In the formation of The Society of Genealogists of London he took an active part and scarcely missed a Committee Meeting during the first four years of its existence. Acting as Honorary Secretary of the Committee on the Consolidated Index, he had the satisfaction of seeing the index-slips reach a total of something like a million in number under his supervision and practical help.

PROTESTATION RETURNS, 1641-2.—The Protestation Returns, among the MSS. of the House of Lords, consist of lists of the names of those persons who made the protestation pursuant to order of the House of Commons of the 30th July, 1641.

They are dated for the most part February or March, 1641-2, and are arranged in Counties, under parishes. For Hampshire only the returns for the town of Southampton seem to have been preserved. The Protestation was described as a "Shibboleth to discover a true Israelite," and was subscribed to by those who "promised to maintain the true Reformed Protestant Religion, expressed in the Doctrine of the Church of England, against all Popery and Popish innovations."

Some of the returns contain the names of any in a parish who refused to subscribe, and in a few cases the minister of the parish certifies that all have subscribed, without giving the names. A list of the parishes will be found in the Appendix to the Fifth Report of the Historical MSS. Commission, 1876.

The Manor of Earl's Court and Kensington Abbots, Middlesex.*

- (38) Kensington: Thomas LYMON, steward. A rental made xjth of May 20th H. 4, by ye Com^{rs} of the right ho^{ble} & mighty Prince Richard Duke of Glouc. (mentions) Brendelmefeild, the farme of Bromfeild, Earlsmeade, "the farme of ye scite of ye mannor wth a grene cont. 2 acres."
- Earle's Courte, 19 Nov. 34 Eliz. William CORNWALLIS Esq., and Ruth his wife.
- (39) 20 Oct., 10 James. It was ordered that the Bishop of London and the lord of the manor repair and mend the bridges in the way called the North highway and also Counters bridg.

The above is all the genealogy from this particular book; it is given as an example of how much actual genealogy can be gathered from this particular class of records, which are often far more valuable and go back far earlier than the Parish Registers. The context will frequently enable one to identify the persons named, which, as is well known, the Parish Registers usually fail to do. Other rolls and books for Kensington are in the Record Office. In making a search at the Record Office for Manorial Court Rolls, there are the General Series (Lists and Indexes, No. 6) and those of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, part of which are at the Record Office and part at the Ecclesiastical Commissioners' Office at Millbank. One may find those of one year in one depository, and those of the next year in the other; an arrangement which is curious, to say the least. Search should be made also at the British Museum, at the Archbishop's Library at Lambeth Palace, and at the Bodleian Library. Then those of the Land Revenue Office, a separate list, are now at the Record Office, and those of the Palatinate of Durham. A large number of Manorial Court Rolls, some of which the Manorial Society has listed, are still in private hands. In the last resort recourse should be had to the present lords of manors and their stewards, and, if these fail, there is a faint chance of discovering the rolls in the hands of a dealer. Far too many of these valuable records have been destroyed and have gone astray, the only title-deeds remaining to much copyhold estate.

One other hint for those who have sought for them in vain. The "Estreats" in the Record Office consist of extracts from various rolls from all parts of the country, made for revenue purposes, and may be searched with profit.

Genealogical and Heraldic Correspondence.

Inquiries of private and personal interest only are answered by letter. The cost of pedigree searches, copies of registers of birth, etc., of looking up wills for mention of relatives, and of searches for arms and crests, can be ascertained of The Correspondence Editor, THE PEDIGREE REGISTER Office, 227 Strand (by Temple Bar), London.

H. B. (Pownall).—We agree that it is most desirable that all photographs should be marked with name, description, age of the sitter, place and date, but can suggest no definite steps towards this end, beyond reminding people of it as often as possible. Have you so marked the items in your own photograph albums? We have most of ours, but it is surprising how these things accumulate without the essential facts being noted on them. One thing, the present-day photograph often has a plain back, on which one can write in ink, those of yesterday are usually impossibly glazed and gilded.

In that case one must gum labels on them, or else scrape a smooth surface; labels come off sooner or later.

G. S. K. (Enfield).—The late Dr MARSHALL used to say, of families whose present representatives were beginning to look into their family history, that they were nearly all “dug up out of the mud” between 1800 and 1830. It is true of a considerable proportion. If we were beginning to form a general genealogical collection de novo, we should select rather the seventy years from 1760 to 1830, as the one presenting the most interesting problems, and we should confine ourselves to collecting strict evidence of relationship, with, of course, precise reference to authority in each case.

BECK.—Mr Joseph J. GREEN sends the following note on this pedigree (III. 228). From the Friends' Canterbury Monthly Meeting Books: “Nunington (Nonington) Monthly Meeting held 4. IX (November) 1735. Thomas BECK of Godalming in Surrey, shopkeeper, and Sarah SIMS, dau. of Henry SIMS, linen-draper of Canterbury, declared their intentions of marriage.” Thomas BECK's mother was Elizabeth, and surname THOMPSON, by a former marriage.

P. S. (Kinsale).—The best-known catalogues or lists of pedigrees are SIMS' Index, 1849, containing about 22,000 references; and MARSHALL'S Guide, last edition 1903, containing about 80,000. References to many others (about 3,100) will be found in the seventeen numbers of Genealogical Queries and Memoranda, 1896-1900, sets of which can be obtained for 5s. at the Office of THE PEDIGREE REGISTER, or 5s. 4d., post free.

J. L. O. (Hampstead).—We know of no satisfactory “Seize Quartier” ruled or other forms, to take particulars of all the ancestors of a person in the fourth generation back. All you want is a plain sheet of good paper of sufficient size. If you give each person, say, an inch and a half, the width of your sheet will have to be twenty-six to twenty-eight inches, to allow a little margin, and ordinary foolscap size will probably be deep enough. The insertion of the places, as well as the dates, of birth, marriage and death is most necessary, and one should never forget to put in all occupations.

A. G. L. (Hampstead).—The purchase of an original deed relating to your family is always to be advised, even if the price seems a little high. It encourages their careful preservation, their cataloguing, and induces the dealer to report documents, of which, otherwise, you might never hear, and which you would not willingly let pass.

C. A. H. (Connaught Place).—A Richard Blys is named as one of the jury in the Inquisition post mortem at Cardiff, Glamorgan, of Joan, Countess of Gloucester, on Monday in the Octave of Trinity, 35 Edward I. (1307). This would imply that Richard Blys was a man of some account in the world.

E. F. G. (Horsham).—A register has just been published which contains, amongst other details and records, a complete list of all boys who have been at Hurstpierpoint College, with addresses and biographical details where possible. Copies can be obtained from Mr H. M. PARHAM, Hurstpierpoint College, Sussex, price 6s., post free.

R. S. B. (Worthing).—No matter how many generations a title of Baronet may be dormant, the heir male of the body of the grantee can, on proof of pedigree, resume it.

G. E. K. (Esher).—Payment for genealogical articles is not general, but for really good articles on some subject of general interest, any special class of records, etc., this journal is willing to pay. As a rule, the printing of pedigrees or collections concerning particular families is paid for by the contributor.

J. J. G. (Hastings).—The descent of "Joyce," as a Christian name in certain families, was worked out in this journal in June 1911 (II. 152), and copies can still be obtained, price 2s. 6d., by post 2s. 7½d. We have one ready on the name "Philadelphia, Phillida or Phillis," and think that "Grizell," "Artemisia," and "Emma" might be worked out. We should be glad to know of any others, for it is a most interesting aspect of genealogy which is thus opened up.

COTTERELL.—Mr Howard H. COTTERELL, F.R.Hist.S., F.R.S.A., Foden Road, Walsall, writes: "For some years I have been collecting materials for a history of the COTTERELL family, and should be glad to receive copies of pedigrees, arms, wills, seals, or any other genealogical data likely to be useful or interesting in such a work. The utmost care would be taken of original documents entrusted to me for copying, and they would be quickly returned."

J. Y. S. (Philadelphia).—We can search for you lists of between three and four thousand persons sailing from various ports in England to America and the West, in the years 1773 to 1776. These give name, age, description, where from, where to, name of ship, and date. Other lists of various dates exist, but are difficult of access. No complete lists covering any lengthened period are known.

A. W. M. (Luton).—We congratulate you on having copied the inscriptions of half the churchyards and chapelyards in Bedfordshire, and note your interest in MATTHEWS of Tamworth, Warwick, 1700 to 1760, related to RUSSELL of Cardington, Salop. We may be glad to print some of your M.I., but are full up just a present.

ORPWOOD.—After some research, an inquiry has reached the following stage. The Editor would be glad of further information.

Edward ORPWOOD, the writer's grandfather's grandfather, was born in 1718. The place of his birth, and the name of his parents are unknown. Tradition says that he was born in Abingdon, Berks, and it is thought that the following entry, taken from the Register of Baptisms of St. Nicholas Church, Abingdon, refers to him: "Edward, the son of Thomas ORPWOOD, and Ann his wife, baptized Nov. 19th, 1718."

He married first, Jane, daughter of John BRAZIER, Esq., by whom he had issue one son—John Brazier ORPWOOD, born 1741. After her death in 1766, he married secondly, Elizabeth, daughter of Richard HOLDITCH, of Totnes, Devon, but of this second marriage there was no issue. There is no trace whatever among the legal and other documents extant concerning him that he followed any profession or was connected with commerce or business in any way, but is described throughout simply as "Gent." His first recorded address, taken from an Indenture of Lease, Roll 31, Michaelmas term—George III—in the Public Record Office, describes him as of Exeter: later on he is described as of St. Giles in the Fields, in the County of Middlesex, and lastly of Bath, where he died on the 10th March 1776, aged 58. He was buried in Bath Abbey Church, in the North Aisle, near to Mr WILSHER's tomb, where a stone marks his last resting place, with the following inscription thereon:—

" Here lieth the Body of | Edward ORPWOOD, Esq., | who departed
this Life | the 19th day of March | in the year of our Lord 1776.
Aged 58.

" He walked in the old paths because he thought them best."

His will, a copy of which may be seen in the P.C.C., Somerset House, was proved 3 Dec. 1776, wherein he leaves to his son, John Brazier ORPWOOD, after the death of his wife, one half of rents of his leasehold property in Bell Alley, Mulberry Court; the other half to his younger grandchildren.

To the two eldest of these he leaves, in addition, the lease of his house in Hewitt Court, in the Strand, for the payment of their education and board.

To his wife Elizabeth he gives £5,000, with all his jewels and goods, and to his son, John Brazier ORPWOOD, £1,000. The rest of his estate he leaves to his son in trust for his younger grandchildren, share and share alike.

He appoints his friend, Mr Richard WRAY, of the Strand, and Mr Charles WANSLEY, together with his wife, executors.

Edward ORPWOOD's second wife survived her husband a year, and died in 1777. She had a brother, named John HOLDITCH, who lived at Gate St., Lincoln's Inn, and a sister, Deborah, who married Challis HAYES; of which marriage there were three children, named, respectively, Samuel, Henry Brown, and Mary HAYES. Samuel, who was born in Portugal, became a surgeon, and lived in Great Marlborough St., in the County of Middlesex. He was subsequently created a Baronet, and appointed English Ambassador to Portugal. He, Sir Samuel HAYES, conjointly with a certain Sir Jacob WOLFFE, of Cam's Hall, in the County of Southampton, purchased of Edward ORPWOOD and John HOLDITCH the remainder of the lease of the City Estates in Coleman St. The above has interest inasmuch as he, Sir Samuel HAYES, was godfather to Richard Wray ORPWOOD, the writer's grandfather.

It is clear from the veiled reference to the old Church, "in the old paths, because he thought them best," on his tombstone, that Edward ORPWOOD was a Catholic. A confirmatory sign may be found in the wording "departed this life." Catholics preserved that form when the irreligion of the eighteenth century led to a more common use of the simple "died," by many not of the fold.

Again, most of the Catholic stones in Bath Abbey are in the North Aisle.

A clause in his will which runs: "I give unto my son . . . the watch and sword given by the Queen of Spain to the Duke of Ormond . . ." would suggest that Edward ORPWOOD was a Jacobite.

PAINTER.—We admired immensely the David Copperfield poster of the play, showing the immortal characters in procession: David himself as boy and man, HAM, STEERFORTH, MICAWBER, Mr. DICK, Mr. PEGGOTTY and Uriah HEAP; PEGGOTTY, Little Em'ly, Agnes WHITFIELD, Betsy TROTWOOD, ROSA DARTLE, Mrs. MICAWBER, marching in happy company, but, of course, we missed Dora. However, the point is this. If you are good at figure-drawing why not attempt a similar pageant of your own family "characters"—your immediate forbears and near kin, and their intimates—yes, their own intimate friends? What would we not give to portray ours as they pass before our mind's eye. We associate them with laburnums and chestnuts in bloom and the Spring verdure along the Kensington road. David's we associate with the Dover road, where the milestones are, high Summer, a certain amount of dust, and Janet's celebrated donkeys.

J.L.E.H. (Hoxton).—Your old lady, born in 1845, as she thinks, in Glasgow, is not to be found in Glasgow Parish Registers, and General Registration did not begin in Scotland till 1854. If you can discover just where she lived at the time any Census was taken, the schedule may possibly give her place of birth.

H.T.S. (Exeter).—We note that you are interested in BOUCHER (sometimes spelt BUTCHER) of Somerset, particularly of Yeovil, c. 1550 and before, and the marriage of John, whose son John was baptized there 17 Nov. 1754.

Lothrop WITHINGTON, we are afraid, went down with the "Lusitania" on Friday, the 7th May. He was well-known as a genealogist, searching in England the last twenty years for material concerning American emigration of 1600-1650, and had accumulated a vast collection, in succession to the labours of Henry Fitz Gilbert WATERS. A postcard was received from him almost at the same time as the news of the disaster: "Will come by the 'Lusitania,' subject to Kaiser Wilhelm's consent." Thus another good man ends sustaining a note of mingled humour and pathos.

SCOTT : CLARKSON

John SCOTT, of Rockhills, is stated to have been born at Shrewsbury, co. Salop, and to have been descended from the ancient family of SCOTT of Scott's Hall, Kent. A branch of this family settled in Shropshire in the sixteenth century, and from it the families of SCOTT of Betton Strange and SCOTT-WARING derive.

John SCOTT paid several visits to Paris, apparently on legal business, and he and his daughter Mary had the honour of being entertained by Louis XVIII, Miss SCOTT being taken to dinner by the Papal Legate. She was a lady of considerable beauty, and was the subject of some verses addressed to her by Lord BYRON. Her husband, John OTTER* of Ranby Hall, was a hunting parson of an old-fashioned type; as much, if not more, at home in the saddle as in the pulpit. Ruth LOVELACE (Mrs John SCOTT) was the daughter of an American gentleman, who, it is said, had the misfortune to be eaten by a bear. She may have belonged to the same family as Governor Francis LOVELACE, of New York.

The DYER family are the holders of an ancient baronetcy, dating from 1678. They belonged, originally, to Wiltshire.

John CLARKSON, who, by the way, was offered and refused a knighthood, used the same armorial bearings as the CLARKSONS of Kenton, co. Notts, a family largely connected with Yorkshire.† By his previous marriage to Miss FOSSE he had issue Lieut.-Colonel John Horatio CLARKSON, Major George CLARKSON, Anne, Charles CLARKSON, "lost in the Spanish War," Fanny, Henry CLARKSON, and Charlotte. The eldest daughter, Anne, married the Rev. George HAGAR, heir male and representative of the HAGARS of Bourn, co. Cambridge, and ancestor of Sir Kenneth Hagar KEMP, Baronet, of Gissing, Norfolk.

The estate of Halbeath, co. Fife, to which Mrs HUGGINS and Mrs MACK were co-heirs, was rich in coal, a fact which excited the envy of one of the trustees to such an extent that he left for foreign climes with much of the proceeds.

WANTED.—Further particulars of the ancestry of John SCOTT and Ruth LOVELACE, his wife; a pedigree of the family of HAGAR of Bourn; and any additional information regarding persons mentioned in the foregoing pedigree.

No. 38. RIDGE, ETC.

Registers of the family of RIDGE of Chichester, and the associated families of BURSTALL, GEAST, GREEN, HEWETT, LACY, MAC CARTHY, MADDEN, POULTER, ROBINSON, SANDERS, SHARPE, STEVENSON, WHEELWRIGHT and WOODS.

A folio manuscript of twelve pages, divided into months, endorsed: —“List of the Births, Marriages, and Deaths in the Families of Mr. [Thomas WHEELWRIGHT, M.D.,] and Mrs. [Elizabeth] WHEELWRIGHT, [daughter of William RIDGE of Chichester, banker, and Sarah LACY his wife], from A.D. 1750.” [Compiled by William RIDGE, tertius, born 8 November, 1808] “Scripsit 1842”  “N.B. The figures under the heads ‘Born,’ ‘M.’ & ‘Died’ refer to the pages in which the events are registered.”

The entries are placed according to date, but for convenience we have arranged them here under families, alphabetically. This manuscript was the property, after the death of Mrs WHEELWRIGHT in 1882, aged 90, of her daughter, Miss Laetitia Elizabeth WHEELWRIGHT, who died at Kensington in 1911, aged 83, and who was the schoolfellow, with her four sisters, at Brussels, of Charlotte and Emily BRONTE, and corresponded with Charlotte till her death in 1855. Mrs WHEELWRIGHT and Miss WHEELWRIGHT have added a few entries to the Manuscript.

Also a Register kept on the same plan by Frances WHEELWRIGHT of Kensington, cousin-german to the above William RIDGE, and entered in long lists, according to the months in which the births, marriages, deaths, etc., occurred. From this voluminous register we have only extracted the entries relating to the WHEELWRIGHT, RIDGE and LACY families and descendants. And

A birth-day book, the gift of Sarah Ann WHEELWRIGHT, to her eldest sister Lætitia Elizabeth WHEELWRIGHT, 2 August, 1882, in which Miss WHEELWRIGHT has made a number of entries, but few other than those in her sister's book.

* Burrator, according to D.N.B., in the parish of Sheepstor.

The entry of the death of her beloved friend and schoolfellow, Charlotte BRONTE, at Haworth, is of pathetic interest. Additions in square brackets are by J. J. GREEN.

Genealogical and Heraldic Correspondence.

Inquiries of private and personal interest only are answered by letter. The cost of pedigree searches, copies of registers of birth, etc., of looking up wills for mention of relatives, and of searches for arms and crests, can be ascertained of The Correspondence Editor, THE PEDIGREE REGISTER Office, 227 Strand (by Temple Bar), London.

E. F. K.—Manorial Court Rolls. It should be noted that in Hereford Free Library, in the Pilley Collection, No. 447, there are twelve court rolls of the Honor of Wigmore, near Leominster, of various dates, 23 Henry VIII. to 1703.

G. F.—Records of Naval Men. We found in the church safe at Ledbury, Herefordshire, a book of 45 leaves, large quarto, which, as far as we could see, had nothing to do with that place. It was a log-book, in loose covers, roughly written, beginning "29 Aprill 1814, Friday. On bord the Eurotas Man of War at Portsmouth Boond to Giberalter, Capⁿ Nox Comander and Adm^l C. E. FLEMING on bord." The writer gives an account of the trial of some kind of patent machine log—"a curant log," he calls it—speaks of his son William with him, sea-sickness in the Bay of Biscay, and the Captain's hostility to his experiments. On leaf 19 the writer is addressed as "Mr. POPE," and leaf 34 gives "Bristol" as his address. On leaf 41 is a draft of an address to the Lords of the Admiralty, signed "Wm. POPE."

ANGLO-SAXON.—We cannot emphasize too much the importance of keeping anything in the nature of address-books, or which will serve as address-books, of earlier date than the time when modern "Directories" came on the scene. The present Commission on Public Records, conscious now of foolish destruction in the past of records of certain public offices (the Treasury destroyed its duplicate copies of books in the Bank of England) seeks access for the public to certain records now only kept by the Bank, who answer with some effect, "No, you don't. You destroyed them before; you'll destroy them again." "What is the use of old lists of names and addresses?" say the indifferent, who, Gallio-like, care for none of these things. Well, we care, and a good many others like-minded. We want them because they tell us where to look for more information about the people named in them—the people who to us are realities; to you, perhaps, unmeaning names.

A. F. P. A.—School Registers. We found in the church safe at Ledbury, Herefordshire, the "National School Boys Admittance Book," 1818-1864, a folio book containing 51 leaves and 3,265 numbered entries. It gives the names of the boys, their fathers and mothers, fathers' occupations and addresses, dates of entering and leaving, and remarks.

P. J. T. (Staple Inn.) There is no such thing as "originating" the system of co-operative record-searching. It dates for the time when some intelligent person searched for twenty things at once instead of one, but it is obvious that if the method is what it purports to be, viz., definite search for a limited number of names, and not a question of indexing them all, a good deal of strain must be imposed on the searcher's memory. 'T would be unwise to rely on memory, one thinks, for more than, say, twenty surnames at a time, but one never can be sure of the capacity of brains other than one's own.

A. F. P. A.—Apprenticeship and other Registers. Another book we found in the church safe at Ledbury was a small quarto in brown paper covers containing:

- I. "An Account of the Bonds of Security that have been given to the Parish of Ledbury," 12 Jan., 1631 to 24 April 1729. Five leaves. Names of persons against whom the parish was indemnified and names of bondsmen.
- II. "Apprentices, Masters, Officers," A.D. 1634 to 1738. Five leaves. Gives names of parish apprentices, masters, churchwardens, overseers and justices.
- III. "Certificates, Churchwardens and Overseers, Justices." A.D. 1692 to 1737. Eleven leaves. Gives names of persons and where they came from; certificates of settlement or "passing" certificates.

C. E. B. (Milwaukee).—Except for the Poll Taxes and the Hearth Taxes of Restoration times, the Lay Subsidy Rolls cannot contain more than possibly a sixth of the householders' names. For a village of perhaps a couple of hundred people, one may find a dozen names in the Subsidy, and the excuse put forward for non-payment was, in many cases, that the defaulter was "noe subsidy-man." The Act of Parliament governing the collection of each Subsidy should be looked up, to see what limitations were imposed; but, as a general rule, we should not take absence from the list to imply either non-residence or extreme poverty.

C. E. S. (Hornchurch).—We record for purposes of reference your interest in the record of marriage and maiden name of Sarah, wife of John SHEFFIELD, of St George's in the East, shipwright, whose son John was bapt. there in 1757. But, there is only one method of making discoveries: persistent research. Look for "SHEFFIELD" documents anywhere and everywhere, carefully examine them and note their contents; print what you do know, and give it as wide a circulation as possible. It is sure to attract fresh contributions to your knowledge of the family history. Pursue a vigorous policy; waiting for something to turn up is no more successful in this than in other spheres of human activity.

S. G. L.—The Society of Genealogists proposes to have a series of lectures on subjects of genealogical interest, heraldry, and so on, to be given at the Society's Rooms, 5 Bloomsbury Square, which is situate but a very few doors East of Mudie's in Oxford Street. Members will be invited to bring their friends and to pass on to others interested, tickets of invitation, which will be issued in due course. We may hear something of how the Blood Royal (of Edward III) flows in most of our veins, or of the interest which attaches to Peerage Cases—a dormant peerage is a fascinating thing—or of how a knowledge of genealogy might have stopped the present War—of how it may mitigate its evil effects—of how, in short, affairs are really governed by the idealist—who sees us in a light, and not by the “practical” man, who has been called the fool of history. The idealist—who sees us in a light.

A. F. P. A.—Poll Books and Lists of Voters.—In Hereford Free Library, in the Pilley Collection, we found the following. Walter PILLEY was a baker and confectioner and sometime mayor of Hereford. He left his collection to the city in 1913.

INQUIRER.—The original and fundamental idea of our Society was to form a collection of records, and indexes, and to make one Great Index. It was not to be a printing Society. That idea is being carried out, as a visit to our Rooms will show. Write to 5 Bloomsbury Square for the new Annual Report, and for copies of the old ones, to get a general grasp of the scheme and to see how it is being carried out. The index-slips number over a million, that is, they give authority of some sort for over a million vital facts concerning people, chiefly of English blood, in all classes of society, arranged simply under the names of the people concerned. It would be ridiculous to make any general search for any family without first consulting such an Index as this: as ridiculous as to pretend to any interest in genealogy and not seek to become a Member.

E. A. L. (Morpeth).—Dr WALLACE, of Shakespearian fame, was the “discoverer” of the Town Depositions, though, of course, the poor Calendar for Henry VIIIth’s reign, on the open shelves of the Record Office, was always well-known. He was the first to have the original bundles out and the documents in them officially numbered and stamped, and now they have been so pulled about that some are withdrawn from inspection, on account of wear and tear. There are 2,508 large bundles, running from 1535 to 1867, and their contents are packed full of personal history, on the best authority: that of the speakers, the deponents, themselves, under oath. Many a deposition, made by a person in full health, is quite as interesting, and often much more so, than his last will and testament. There's fun in many of them, too. We must get our fun where we can.

A. J. C. G.—Parish Registers. In Hereford Free Library, in the Pilley Collection, No. 150, is a book of cuttings, probably from a parish magazine, giving entries from All Saints Parish Register, Hereford, 1669 to 1706.

COSTAR (I. 346).—At the above reference a little pedigree begins with William COSTAR of Benson, Oxon (1760–1820), said to have been “intended for the law, but became an innkeeper.” Here follow a few additional facts, showing that he owned the “Red Lion” at Bensington and “The Angel” in Oxford, and was part proprietor, in 1784, of a Light Stage Coach which was “worked” by himself, personally, it would appear, between Henley and Oxford.

The Revd. J. E. FIELD, M.A., vicar of Benson als. Bensington, since 1881, very kindly writes: “‘The Red Lion’ is a fine old inn, now let in three separate tenements, on the S. side of our street, with a good Queen Anne North front and an interesting 17th century East front in the lane. The present ‘Red Lion,’ on the opposite side of the street, is a small public which tradition says was the ‘tap’ of the Inn. It is the only inn mentioned in the old Registers:

“Ann, da. of Charles Woods of Amsterdā and Avis his wife baptized Jan. 30. born at ye red lion, 1686.

“Mr. James KEMP, many years Master of the Red Lion Inn, buried July 17th., 1777.

“1794. Easter Vestry. ‘Adjourned from the Churchyard to the Red Lion Inn.’ (Vestry Book.)

“It is presumably the inn referred to on the tablet of Ralphe QUELCHE, 1629, and Jane, his wife, who ‘left ye new Inn twice built at th^r owne charg’. (N.B.—Not ‘New’ Inn.)

“‘The Crown’ is dated 1709. ‘The Castle’ is probably somewhat older, and ‘The White Hart’ is ancient, but newly fronted c. 1830. Richard COSTAR (1788–1858), whose daughter married Richard POWELL, was of ‘The Crown.’ ‘The Angel’ at Oxford was at the foot of High Street, just within the East gate, occupying the site where the new University Schools were built in 1877. Some years ago I copied most of the older inscriptions in Benson churchyard, and among them I found these:

“Elizth., w. of Richard COSTAR, 1742, æt. 95.

“Mary, d^r. of R^d. & Mary COSTAR, 1744, æt. 18.

“Mary COSTAR, 1758, æt. 71.

“John COSTERD, 1768, æt. 61.

“The first three are ‘COSTARD’ in the Register. I do not see either of these now, and I think they were probably broken stones which are now covered with grass again. I uncovered and copied many such.”

This is the item concerning William COSTAR in 1785: Exchequer Bills & Answers, Oxon, Geo. III. No. 54. COSTAR v. HARDER. A.D. 1785, Trin. 25 Geo. III.

CHAMBERLAIN.—Anne FYNMORE, widow of William FYNMORE, mayor of Reading 1577 and 1586, in her will, proved Dec. 1603, mentions a daughter married to Thomas CHAMBERLAYNE.

VALZER. (III. 284).—Thomas VALZER, should be VALYER. I have a note that Thomas VALYER of Sandgate, in the parish of Cheriton, gentleman, maketh oath 3 Sep. 1830, aged 73. Born in parish of Folkestone, Cooling Farm, in occupation of his father from 1764 to 1778, and his own from 1778 to 1801.

The name has been variously spelt in Kent and Sussex. John VALYER occurs as a follower of Jack CADE in 1450, of Sussex—a William VALOIR was porter of Sandgate Castle prior to 17 May 1690 when his successor was appointed.—R. J. F.

"His sickness continueing, he thought best to change the air of the city and to repair in to Leicester, where his wife was born; to which town for her sake he was an especial benefactor, and having no child to enjoy his wealth, he gave the greatest part of his estate to her."

"He died Wednesday 23 Aug^t. at Leicester, and was buried there on St. Bartholomew's Day, the Apostle, in the year of Christ's appearing in the flesh One thousand six hundred and nine."

A History of the Adams Family of North Staffordshire, by Percy W. L. ADAMS, is announced to be issued by the St Catherine Press. This was the famous family of potters, allied to those of BURSLEM of Burslem, MURHALL, FORD, DANIELL, BOURNE, HOLLINS, MEARES, MACHIN, WARBURTON and others, about whom much unpublished information is promised, together with portraits and views in colour and other processes. A chart pedigree of WORTHINGTON of Lancashire and Worcestershire is to be included.

My Pedigree, a book of blank genealogical forms, noticed in THE PEDIGREE REGISTER, I. 335, is designed to record six generations of a family in all paternal and maternal lines, and should, if each space were filled, give data concerning sixty-three distinct persons. A prospectus designed to show an average record contains only twenty-nine persons, or less than half. But to demonstrate the value of Quaker records, Mr Joseph J. GREEN, of Hastings, whose children descend in no less than one hundred lines of Quaker ancestry, has been able to fill in no fewer than sixty out of the sixty-three spaces, giving both Christian name and surname, besides which he has filled in the Christian names of two other forbears, so that out of the whole number of possible ancestors in this particular instance only one person remains unrecorded.

In the pedigree of Mrs GREEN, whose father was a Quaker, but her mother a member of the Church of England, he has only been able to fill in fifty-two spaces out of the total number of sixty-three, but this is nearly double the average shown in the prospectus. In this record, and all in cases when the parties were not Quakers, there are eleven blanks; six with surnames only, and three with Christian names only.

BYE of Pennsylvania (III. 294).—Allow me to cite additional notes and authorities as follows: For the Barony of BAY:—Banks' Extinct Baronage, I. 25; Massingberd's "Survey of the Barony of Bayeux" in Lincolnshire Notes and Queries, vol. For BAY of Covington and Bradwell, particularly the Close Rolls 35 Edw. III, Patent Rolls for 1349, 1353, and Writs of Parliament, part II, p. 197. For BAY, BY, or BYE of Reading: Samuel Barfield's Thatcham, Register or Diary of the Mayor, etc., of Reading, p. 135, and Rolls of Parliament, VI, 278a. A Scottish Next-of-Kin Case: Deans.

The accompanying pedigree of the DEANS family illustrates a next-of-kin case recently decided in the Scottish Courts, and should be of interest to readers of THE PEDIGREE REGISTER as emphasising two points : the importance of keeping family records ; the litigation that may ensue from one careless entry in an otherwise well-kept Register.

James DEANS, a retired supervisor of excise, died in Edinburgh, intestate, on the 12 December 1908, leaving personal estate of the value of some £7,000. On the petition of the deceased's solicitor, a "judicial factor" was appointed by the Court, and steps were taken by advertisement and other means to ascertain the next of kin. In due course an action of "multiplepounding"* was entered for hearing ; the present writer was made a party to the suit as "curator and administrator" for his wife's interest and his own ; the Crown being represented by the Lord Advocate as ultima hæres. Three groups of claimants appeared,

1. Jas. DEANS and others, the pursuers.
 2. William Garrick ANDERSON and others
 3. Charlotte Howard BELL and others
- } the defenders.

The pursuers were the surviving children of Adam DEANS of Bo'ness, Linlithgow ; and the question for decision was whether the said Adam was the lawful son of James DEANS (son of Adjutant William DEANS), born in Glasgow in 1797, who afterwards became a Lieutenant in the 92nd Regiment of Foot, and died in the West Indies in 1825.

The substance of the pursuers' case as summarised by the Lord Ordinary was this : That when Lieutenant James DEANS was a young officer on half-pay he came home to reside with his father, Adjutant William DEANS, in Glasgow. He there became acquainted with and ultimately married a straw-hat maker called Hannah ANDREWS, one of the daughters of a stage-coach driver, who at the time resided at Langholm. The precise date of the marriage, which was alleged to have been regular, was not known, and there was no documentary evidence of it, but it was explained that this was probably because the records of St Andrew's Episcopal Church, Glasgow, where it was believed to have been celebrated, were destroyed by fire. No one was known to have been present at the marriage ceremony, but that was explained because it was believed to have been a secret marriage ; that a child of the marriage (the said Adam DEANS) was born on the 7 July 1820. That about that date Lieutenant James DEANS was summoned back to his regiment, which was then stationed in the Isle of Wight ; that he remained there for some time and then went to Jamaica, where he died of yellow fever at Up Park Camp, on the 2 August 1825. Up to this time the marriage had not been disclosed to Adjutant DEANS, but it was said that some time after Lieutenant DEANS's death Hannah ANDREWS and her sister Margaret called upon the Adjutant and divulged the secret ; that he received them with much kindness and thereafter paid for the child's education, and when he met him in the street gave him small sums of money. Then the pursuers produced the Baptismal Register of St Andrew's, Glasgow, which contained the following entry : " James Adam, son of James and Hannah DEANS, Langholm, 92nd Regiment, 13 September 1829," four years after the death of the alleged father and when the child was nine years old.

It was alleged that this entry had reference to the baptism of the pursuers' father and that the form in which it was made showed that he was regarded by the officiating clergyman as legitimate ; that Hannah ANDREWS continued to reside in Glasgow and to carry on her business as a straw-hat maker until the year 1831 or 1833, when she died ; that her son was then removed by his maternal grandmother to Langholm, where he lived for two years and then went to Linlithgow where he carried on business as a shoemaker ; that he married and had six children, five of whom (the pursuers) were then alive ; that he always regarded himself as the legitimate son of Lieutenant DEANS.

This case was largely founded on family tradition, and the main source of that tradition was Adam DEANS and his two Aunts Margaret and Jane ANDREWS, Hannah's sisters, all of whom were dead.

The judge expressed the opinion that Adam DEANS honestly believed himself to be the legitimate son of the Lieutenant, but it is a curious fact that in two of his family Bibles produced no reference was made to his parentage, and in his death certificate he is described as son of David DEANS, mother unknown ; information apparently given by his daughter, who was present at the death. A certain " black box " was mentioned as left to Adam DEANS by his mother, which was said to contain papers relating to the marriage, but none of the witnesses had ever seen these papers and they were destroyed after Adam's death.

Much hearsay testimony was adduced by the pursuers to prove the above marriage, but the entry in St Andrew's Register was the only documentary evidence forthcoming lending colour to the theory. This Register appears to have been carefully kept by the then incumbent, Dean ROUTLEDGE, who almost invariably gave the condition, and in the case of soldiers, the rank of the father ; but in this case, for some reason, it was omitted. If the identity of James DEENS of the Register with the Lieutenant could have been established it would perhaps have proved paternity, but legitimacy would not of necessity have followed.

Rebutting evidence was offered on the part of the defenders, that the said James DEANS in a series of letters addressed to his people at home from the West Indies, and produced in Court, never mentions a wife.

These letters are couched in such language and were written in such an open-hearted spirit, as of a young man just starting in the world, that, as one of the judges observed, "it was barely possible to conceive—at least it was not natural to believe—that he had left Glasgow with a skeleton in his cupboard."

That in the War Office Records he was always described as a bachelor in his Regimental papers ; that at his death, his father, the Adjutant, administered to his estate and made an affidavit that his son was a bachelor. He also received all his son's belongings, which, although not of intrinsic value, would have been much prized by a wife. Moreover, there was no record of the alleged widow ever applying for a pension, to which, as an officer's widow, she was entitled.

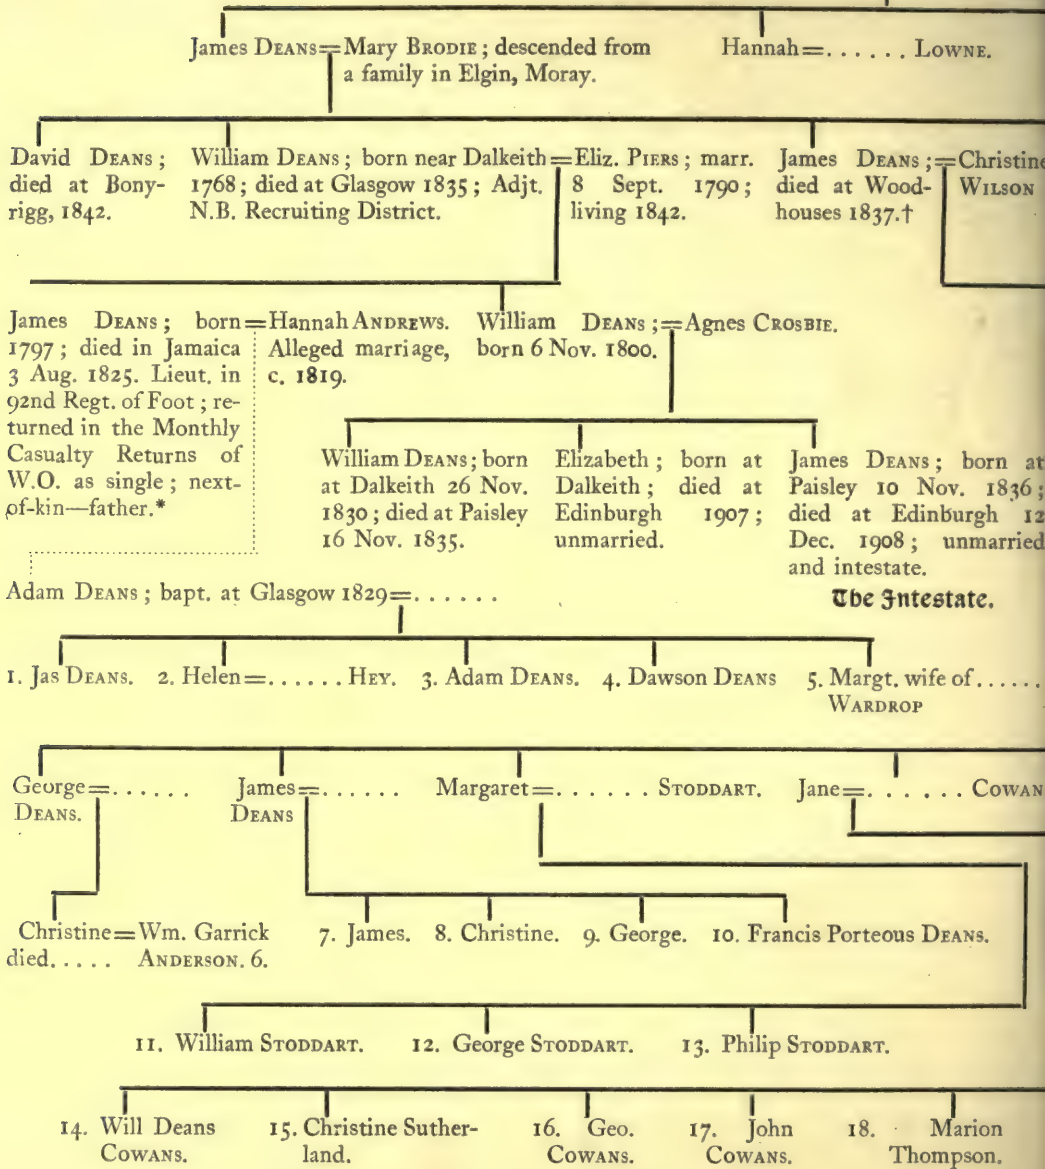

After a careful hearing before the Lord Ordinary the pursuers' claim was disallowed, but an appeal being lodged, it was re-heard before the Lord President and two other judges of the Court of Session, who affirmed the previous judgment, or "opinion," as it is termed in the Scottish Courts, of the Lord Ordinary.

The second group were unable to produce the Certificate of their grandparents' marriage, but all the children of the marriage being baptised as legitimate in the parish kirk, the third group were advised, to avoid further litigation, already in its third year, to acknowledge the propinquity of these claimants to the intestate ; they to receive at the distribution of the Fund half the share of the members of the third group, whose pedigree from the common ancestor was without a missing link.

R. T. BERTHON.

INNES TO STEWART.

Sir Kenneth MACKENZIE, 1st Bart., of Coul, is said to have been "a man of parts," and in great favour with King Charles II. Sir Kenneth was Sheriff Principal of Ross; he married before 1669, as his second wife, a daughter of The Revd Thomas MACKENZIE of Inverleal.

Traditions relating to Sir John MUNRO, 4th Bart., of Fowlis, The Revd Gilbert ROBERTSON, and members of the FORBES family, will be found in past numbers of THE PEDIGREE REGISTER.

Margaret RAINY, Mrs Charles Stewart PARKER, was from her youth distinguished for her piety, and her father used to say that, "really Margaret ought to be in the pulpit." By the great Dr CHALMERS, of the Scotch Free Church, who was intimately acquainted with her, she was held in the highest esteem, and in his speech at the Free Church General Assembly, Inverness, in August, 1845, he said of her, "that she was one of the best and truest Christian friends he ever had on earth."

Anne PARKER, sister to Mrs DARROCH of Gourrock, married Edward, Viscount CARDWELL of Ellerbeck, Secretary of State for War.

Margaret TINNE, wife of John A. TINNE, Esq., like her cousin, Mrs PARKER, ought to have been in the pulpit, for it is said she used before marriage to write the sermons for the vicar of the place in which she resided, to preach on Sundays.

Dr Harry ROBERTSON, her grandfather, published a book of Discourses in 1779, also the Scotch Minister's Assistant, 1802. In November, 1802, he was made a Doctor of Divinity by Marischal College, Aberdeen. Dr Harry ROBERTSON had three daughters who lived to grow up, known as "The Three Fair Maids of Kiltearn." Anne, the eldest, born 1778; died 1854. She did not marry; she was an interesting letter writer, and one of her letters was judged worthy of appearing in the late Charles Fraser MACKINTOSH'S Letters of Two Centuries. Christian, the second daughter, married, firstly, James WATSON of Crantil; secondly, Dr Thomas Stewart TRAILL of Tirlot. The third, Elizabeth, married Samuel SANDBACH, as above. All Dr ROBERTSON'S other children died s.p.

Margaret RAINY, Mrs PARKER, had brothers and sisters as follows: Christian, Mrs Hugh TENNENT of Well Park, Glasgow, and Errol, Perth; Isabella, wife of the Revd Angus KENNEDY, Minister of Dornoch; Gilbert RAINY, died unmarried; Anne, Mrs Robert BROWN of Fairlie; George RAINY of Raasay; and Dr Harry RAINY, father of the late Principal RAINY, and grandfather of the late Adam Rolland RAINY, M.P.

The Revd George RAINY of Creich, co. Sutherland, was a native of Aberdeenshire, and therefore unacquainted with Gaelic; he, however, acquired a fair knowledge of the language, but failed in acquiring the proper pronunciation, which is difficult to any but a native Highlander. His knowledge of the language showed great ability, for at that time no Grammar or Dictionary of the language was available. The Revd Mr SAGE of Resolis says that his congregation at Creich forgot the liberties which he took with their language, and listened with attention. The Revd John BAYNE is repeatedly stated to have been of the family of BAYNE of Tulloch, near Dingwall, but all attempts to prove this have been fruitless, up to the present time. It was during his time that the Church of Dingwall was burnt. Possibly some College record in Scotland might reveal his parentage, though the records of Edinburgh University do not do so.

There seems to have been great unrest in Church matters and dissatisfaction with those appointed as Ministers at Dingwall after 1704 (when the Revd John MACRAE, Minister of Dingwall, died; he had married Janet, daughter of Alexander BAYNE of Knockbayne) until the appointment of the Revd John BAYNE in 1716. His licensing to preach would seem to have been hurried forward. "On the 21 December 1714 a letter was presented to the Presbytery of Earlston from the Commission of the General Assembly, and read. It recommended to the Presbytery to enter Mr John BAYN, student of Divinity, having the Irish (Gaelic) language, in order to preach the Gospel as a probationer in the Synod of Ross and Sutherland. On 18 January 1715 Mr BAYN compeared and produced a testimonial from the Presbytery of Edinburgh, dated 15th inst. and another from Mr Hamilton, Professor of Theology in the University of Edinburgh, dated 12th inst. The Presbytery recommended him to bring against next meeting a testimonial for the time he resided in the Presbytery of Jedburgh. On the 15 Feb. 1715 Mr BAYN produced a testimonial from the Presbytery of 'Aukrum,' for the time he had resided in that parish, dated 29 January." He was licensed on 31 March 1715, and admitted at Dingwall 20 September 1716.

Any information as to the parentage of the Revd John BAYNE, Minister of Dingwall 1716-1737, will be most welcome to Raymond Tinne BERTHON.

The Pulleyns of Yorkshire. By Catharine PULLEIN. Demy 6to. Price 15s., post free.

This book is something more than a family history, and appeals to a wider circle of readers than those specially interested in the ancient family of PULLEYN and variants of the name. The authoress must have spent many years in its compilation. The Appendices contain extracts from original documents at the Record Office and local depositories. Parish registers, marriage licences, wills and administrations appear to have been thoroughly searched, and the abstracts from Manorial Court Rolls are especially interesting. Fifty-eight pedigrees are given, incidentally throwing much light on families other than that to which the book is devoted.

Students of heraldry will be attracted by the chapter on the PULLEYN armorial bearings, with valuable notes contributed by the Rev. Leighton PULLAN, of St John's College, Oxford. The book is a handsome volume of 812 pp., with map and 84 illustrations, mostly original.

We sincerely hope that the authoress will reap the reward of her labours in a brisk sale of the work. We gather that Miss PULLEIN is her own publisher and bookseller, her address being The Manor House, Rotherfield, Sussex.

Furber of West Chelborough, Dorset.

The following "notes" relative to the Family of FURBER of West Chelborough, Dorset, were copied by me some years ago from a memorandum book then in the possession of Mr. Robert WILLIS of Orford Road, Walthamstow, who descended from a family of WILLIS of Stratton, Dorset, with whom the FURBERS were connected by marriage.

The writer of the "notes" was evidently Margaret the wife of John FURBER, and this couple are no doubt identical with John FURBER & Margaret GILLINGHAM married at East Chelborough, 31st January, 1760.

The connection of WILLIS and FURBER is through the marriage at Stratton, on 25th October 1783, of Charles WILLIS and Elizabeth FURBER. This Charles WILLIS is no doubt the brother-in-law to whom James FURBER went to "school" 2nd March 1788. John WILLIS, a celebrated writing-master, is referred to by Hutchins, III. 552. His portrait was painted by STOKES and engraved by E. FISHER.

The entries are copied exactly as they appear in the original; some of them, it will be observed, being in duplicate.

Queries.

PINKSTAN: FYNMORE. (I. 14.)—At the above reference there is mention of a Fleming PINKSTAN, surgeon, trustee of the will of Dr Robert JAMES, proved 30 March, 1776. He is described as of St Alban's Street, Middlesex; his death, and that of his brother Hugh, are noticed in the Gentleman's Magazine, 1792, July and November. St Alban's is therein stated to be near Glasgow, but Fleming PINKSTAN was a J.P. for Middlesex, and Examiner of the Corporation of Surgeons, London, and apparently lived in St James's, Westminster.

I am desirous of tracing a Henry FYNMORE, who had a son baptized at St Paul's, Covent Garden, 21 January, 1735: Charles Pinkstan FYNMORE.

Henry FYNMORE may be identical with Henry, eighth child and third son of William and Martha FYNMORE, of North Hinksey, near Oxford; baptized there 21 October, 1713. I have particulars of him after this latter date; perhaps the name of PINKSTAN may be a clue to his identity.

R. J. FYNMORE.

Sandgate.

ORPWOOD. (III. 287, 319.)—The definite desideratum in this case is proof of the parentage of Edward ORPWOOD, born 1718, who married Jane BRAZIER. Was he the Edward baptized at St Nicholas, Abingdon, in that year, son of Thomas and Ann? Any mention of any Edward ORPWOOD, in wills of possible relations, for example, say from 1718 to 1750, would be much appreciated.

I am much indebted to the correspondent who kindly gave some notes in last quarter's issue.

M.P. for Wiltshire. wife), dau. of Other Lewis, 4th Earl of He died 28 Nov. 1794 aged 58, and was PLYMOUTH; born 1755; marr. 16 July succeeded by his son Sir James TYLNEY- 1785; died at Draycot, Wilts, 5 Jan. 1823, LONG, who died 14 Sept. 1805, aged 11, aged 67. when the baronetcy expired and the estates of £25,000 a year and nearly £300,000 devolved upon his eldest sister Catherine, born 1789, marr. 1812, the Honble William WELLESLEY-POLE, only son of William, Lord MARYBOROUGH. He was known later as William POLE-TYLNEY-LONG-WELLESLEY, fourth Earl of MORNINGTON and second Baron MARYBOROUGH; born 1788; died 1857. He, who was nephew to the first Duke of Wellington, wasted his wife's magnificent estate and reduced her to poverty. Wanstead House was demolished and the splendid furniture sold; a tragedy often described. Catherine his wife died in 1826, leaving two sons and a daughter, Victoria Catherine Mary POLE-TYLNEY-LONG-WELLESLEY; born 1818; died 1897, aged 79.

Emma TYLNEY-LONG, youngest dau., sister to the above named Catherine POLE-TYLNEY-LONG-WELLESLEY. Living 1835.

Genealogical and Heraldic Correspondence.

Inquiries of private and personal interest only are answered by letter. The cost of pedigree searches, copies of registers of birth, etc., of looking up wills for mention of relatives, and of searches for arms and crests, can be ascertained of The Correspondence Editor, THE PEDIGREE REGISTER Office, 227 Strand (by Temple Bar), London.

GENEALOGICAL DIGGING.—It may seem hackneyed to compare genealogical research to gold mining, but the parallel still holds good. In taking up a fresh case, the evidence we are looking for may be classed in three categories :

Material upon the surface.

Material just below the surface.

Material which demands deep digging, knowledge, and skill.

The first-named kind of material is open to any novice. It consists of the pedigrees and genealogies contained in printed books, easily discovered by means of MARSHALL'S Genealogists' Guide and similar works.

The material just below the surface consists, we consider, of records which are slightly more difficult of access, such as wills of testators of the same name as that of the family which the searcher is pursuing ; of lawsuits in which one of the principal parties bears that name, of Parish Registers, county and parish histories, and collections relating to the county or parish to which he knows the family belonged.

But in the third category, deep-digging demands a knowledge of how to set to work to discover the origin of a man who appears suddenly in a place but from whence he came no one knows. It requires a knowledge of migrations, of their historical and natural causes and general trend ; of the special records which deal with migrations, and under what circumstances ordinary records suggest a clue to a person's origin. A knowledge of the "lay of the land" where your man is first discovered is requisite ; and, not least of all, a certain detective instinct is called into play—an instinct which nothing but long practice with records and record searching can implant.

Calendars and lists of documents, as a rule, show nothing but the surnames of the principal parties. The documents themselves teem with casual genealogical facts, subsidiary information, to which the calendars give no clue.

ROSE (I. 173).—From The Scots' Magazine, 1806, page 564 : "April 28. At Chateau Margo, Philip Frederick TINNE, Esq., Secretary for the Colony of Demerara, to Miss ROSE, daughter of William ROSE, Esq., of Mountcoffer."

FRENCH REFUGEES.—In the Audit Office Records, under "Accounts, Various," Vols. 1209 and 1211, will be found matter relating to French Refugees, A.D. 1696-1838.

PROBATES.—In the same office, the Audit Office, under "Accounts, Various," will be found about 150 vols. of enrolments of probates, running in two series, from A.D. 1563 to 1845.

"I have soe runne the Ragged Race of my sinful life in the Wildernesse of this wicked World," says one testator, that he is not sorry the time has come to

"Seperate my sinfull soule from the fetters of my flesh . . . my Body being a Rotten Ragg of mortality."

When a sailor made his will, one can picture the scene: the attorney's shabby office, say, down at "Limmus," or Wapping or Deptford Strond, the expectant relatives, or the crimp, or the local innkeeper's wife in poor Jack's company—many such will be found to have been beneficiaries. Then the portentous language of the document (often a printed form), when perhaps the whole estate came to less than five pounds. He makes his executor or executrix his "lawful attorney," and gives him or her power "for me and in my name to doe say, pursue, arrest, attach, implead, imprison, prosecute, follow, condempne, to prison commit and out of prison again to deliver . . . as fully and effectually as the Law will permit," pays the attorney a handsome fee for being the vehicle of powers so tremendously impressive, and the little procession adjourns to the nearest alehouse to celebrate the generous and solemn occasion.

AGAR (III. 307).—The following note of an inscription, from an upright headstone on the north side of Fulham churchyard, in the plot adjoining the almshouses, adds a little to the Bible entries given at the above reference :

Maria Theresa AGAR, born 10 March 1838 ; died 26 June 1850. [? June. Jan. in Bible entry.]

Mr Charles AGAR, father of the above, born 5 Dec. 1790 ; died 28 Sept. 1857.

Mrs Margaret AGAR, wife and mother of the above, died 19 August 1863, aged 61.

Frederick William AGAR, died 17 March 1893, aged 64.

The last lettering, to F. W. AGAR, though of much more recent date than the other, is almost gone, through flaking of the stone. I think he was landlord of "The Cock," opposite St John's Church, Walham Green.

Walham Green, which Mr Gilbert CHESTERTON thinks of as lying in an emerald mist, as indeed it might do, far beyond the "World's End."

G.B.L.—Graduati Cantabrigienses 1659-1823, and its continuation to 1884 by LUARD, gives a complete list of Cambridge graduates, names only, with dates and colleges. To ascertain parentage and other details it is necessary to address an inquiry to the Secretary of the college concerned ; there is no complete list with parentage like that for Oxford.

ENGLEFIELD GREEN.—Will the subscriber who sent a Postal Order on 16 June and omitted to enclose his name and address, kindly send word so that a proper receipt may be sent him ?

PHILADELPHIA (III. 289).—There are the following instances of the name of Philadelphia in connection with FRY families, which, as far as can be traced, have no relationship with the FRYS of Edmondsham, Dorset, referred to at page 289. It is possible that Philadelphia Fry AUSTEN may have been a god-child of Philadelphia HUSSEY, afterwards FRY, or connected with her in some way which has not yet been discovered :

1763. May 23. Philadelphia Fry AUSTEN daughter of Mr William AUSTEN, baptized. (Wimborne Minster.)

1790. Aug. 25. Mr Isaac HARRISON to Miss Philadelphia FRY both of Fenchurch Street. (Marriage—Gent. Mag.)

- 1785. Dec. 19. Philadelphia, wife of Robert FRY and daughter of Nicholas and Mary CHRISTMAS. (Inscription in Wrotham Churchyard, Kent.) [Admⁿ. to this Philadelphia FRY granted 5 Sep. 1800. P.C.C.]
- 1796. Sep. 25. William STRANGE and Philadelphia FRY. (Marriage. St George, Hanover Square.)
- 1800. Sep. 3. Ann, daughter of Robert and Philadelphia FRY baptized. (Frant, Sussex.) George S. FRY.

Lady Philadelphia WENTWORTH made her will 2 April 1696. There are depositions as to the circumstances, witnesses, etc., in Chancery, Town Depositions, Bundle 1208. No. 40, FAIRFAX v. JOHNSON.—G.S.

AFFIDAVITS.—A specimen follows, to show their value as a source of genealogy.

Such as the following, however, are not to be expected as frequently occurring in the ordinary series (calendared in the Public Record Office) of Chancery Affidavits, but are rather to be looked for amongst the Chancery Masters' Papers.

“Ann ROOKE of Newport, within the Parish of Bishopstawton, in the County of Devon, Widow, maketh Oath and saith that she is the Mother of Ann GLAZE, of the said Parish, Widow, formerly the Wife of Thomas WEAVER, Esquire, a Captain in the Royal Marines, who died at Halifax, in Nova Scotia, on or about the twenty-first day of October in the Year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and thirteen as this Deponent has been informed and believes.

“And this Deponent further saith that there was issue of the said Marriage between the said Thomas WEAVER and his said then Wife, now Ann GLAZE, only one Child, namely, Anne Catherine WEAVER, who was born at Tiverton in the said County of Devon on the twenty-eighth day of June one thousand eight hundred and seven and was privately baptized by the Reverend John PITMAN, a Clergyman residing in the said Parish of Tiverton, in the Month of July one thousand eight hundred and seven. And this Deponent further saith that the said Anne Catherine WEAVER was not publicly baptized until the fifteenth day of March one thousand eight hundred and thirteen at Brixham Church in the said County of Devon.

“And this Deponent further saith that her said Daughter intermarried with Mark Robinson GLAZE, Esquire, on or about the tenth day of June one thousand eight hundred and twenty-six, and that the said Mark Robinson GLAZE died on or about the seventeenth day of June one thousand eight hundred and twenty-eight, and was buried at Bishopstawton aforesaid as will appear by the Certificate hereto annexed lettered (A) which is a true Extract from the Register Book of Burials for the said Parish, this Deponent having carefully compared such Extract therewith. Ann ROOKE.

one thousand eight hundred and twenty- } ordinary in Chancery.”

Sir Lionel CARDEN, K.C.M.G.—The death of Sir Lionel CARDEN, at the comparatively early age of 64, comes upon me as a heavy personal misfortune. His unvarying kindness, interest in this publication, and in the work it is attempting to do, were uplifting and encouraging, and I mourn his loss. To me he seemed, throughout the sixteen years I knew him, to embody the characteristics of an English gentleman. In response to a charmingly-worded note I called upon him a fortnight before his death, when he, though ill and weak, was still keen as ever on genealogical inquiry, and thanked goodness his interest was unabated. He had formed a good collection of evidence concerning 16th and 17th century CARDENS and CAWARDENS, one of whom, a particularly interesting personage, was Sir Thomas CAWARDEN, Master of the Revels, and one of Henry VIIIth's favourite ministers, who gathered the nucleus of the well-known Loseley MSS., and thus might be said to have been almost associated with SHAKESPEARE.

Sir Lionel Edward Gresley CARDEN, who was born in 1851, was of the family of CARDEN of Barnane, co. Tipperary. He had been British Minister to Brazil since last year, and was formerly Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary in Central America, and British Minister resident at Guatemala and at Havana. He was twice acting Chargé d'Affaires at Mexico.

At the height of the turmoil in Mexico in 1914, when British lives and British property were being ruthlessly sacrificed as the outcome of the hesitating policy of President WILSON, it was realized that the one man who might influence the various warring factions was Sir Lionel CARDEN.

He rendered invaluable aid; through his efforts many hundreds of British and American lives were saved. But the strong policy he advocated, and the retention of General HUERTA, encountered the stubborn opposition of Dr WILSON. As a consequence he was recalled—sacrificed by the Home Government—one of the most able, active, and accomplished public servants, still in the heyday of his physical and mental vigour, and almost juvenile in his enthusiasm for his work. The loss to this country by his untimely death is irreparable.—G.S.

THE SOCIETY OF GENEALOGISTS OF LONDON.—On the 22 October a most successful meeting was held at the Society's Rooms, 5 Bloomsbury Square, when the Revd Dr MOOR read a paper on "The Modern Uses of Armorial Bearings," and a discussion followed. Dr MOOR's treatment of the subject was surprisingly interesting; much more so than the title would lead one to expect; the lecture, while learned and instructive, was enlivened by humour and a lightness of touch, all of which evoked high praise from competent authorities present, amongst them Sir Henry HOWORTH and the Bluemantle Pursuivant of Arms. Proper regulation of Armorial bearings, registration, the interest attached to honourable augmentations, and the use of the badge, where the crest is unsuitable, were discussed. It is hoped that the meetings will be continued. Another plan now being carried out is the formation of a Committee of Amateur Genealogists to advise beginners how to set to work. Most genealogists are, of course, amateur, while many have acquired considerable collections. The idea is to throw open these stores of knowledge and to put the novice on the right track if they can.

Accessions to the Library: Mr SNELL's valuable collection of MSS. has now been received and catalogued. The catalogue will be printed in the next issue of THE PEDIGREE REGISTER, and in future numbers of this publication it is proposed to enumerate the more important accessions of printed books, manuscripts and index-slips as they are acquired by the Society.

The Law's Lumber Room.

These things really happened ; these people really lived ; their real names are given, and the places and the dates. Many of us can trace descent from them ; others can "join them on" to their own family histories. To those who can't, but who know the venue of the tale, an added interest will be given to the places where these scenes were enacted.

PIECES OF EIGHT AND A BARREL OF PLATE.

A tale of a Mediterranean cruise ; the year 1680. Michaelmas.

John BODDING of Stepney, mariner, of the age of 45, who had lived for the best part of 25 years in Stepney, but was born at Barnstaple, very well knew the late Captain Lawrence BROWNING, who was Master of the ship "Samuel and Anne," when he was boatswain ; the captain died about five years since. Stephen SAMPSON, who lived in good repute, was also dead. SAMPSON had been a mate in one of His Majesty's ships, and afterwards was Master of the same, an able seaman, a very sober and discreet person, not addicted to drunkenness, profaneness, or any kind of debauchery ; one who made a conscience of an oath and would not forswear himself.

Although SAMPSON had received a wound or shot in his back before he came on board the "Samuel and Anne" in June 1671, when the cask of pretended plate and pieces of eight was lost, he was so well recovered that he walked about on deck.

BODDING has known Mary BROWNING by sight since the beginning of this suit, but knows not the parties in this suit ; nor did he know Stephen SAMPSON before his coming home with him in the said ship from Cadiz in the year 1671 ; was never in the said SAMPSON's company within six months after their arrival in the river of Thames.

When the "Barquo Longo" came to the side of the "Samuel and Anne" with the barrel it was fastened to the ship by a rope.

Walter ELDEN came on board the "Samuel and Anne" when she was lying in the Bay of Cadiz in June or July 1671. He had been master of a ketch, which had been taken from him by a Sallee man-of-war, had been rescued by a French man-of-war, and brought to Cadiz. Two days after the loss of the barrel, Mr. Jacob LINN, a merchant or factor, came on board and had discourse about it. ELDEN came on board almost naked and Captain BROWNING gave him a coat ; neither he nor SAMPSON paid anything for their passage home or diet. When the barrel was slung to come aboard, the men in the boat with their boat-hook snatched the tackle from the mate unawares.

Deponent and his wife now keep the "Ship," an alehouse at Ratcliff

Highway, and have lived there about a year and a half. He pays to the church and poor. (Signs his deposition.)

Lucy, wife of George CARKETT of Stepney, mariner, is 63 years of age, and has been married to CARKETT for 17 years. Her husband went on a voyage in the "Samuel and Anne," about nine years since, from the port of London to Cadiz in Spain, when the cask of plate and the pieces of eight were lost. She has lived in Ropemaker's Field in Limehouse, in the same house these forty years. Her husband received £6 for the voyage, at the rate of thirty shillings a month, and was paid at Exeter House in the Strand; she went with him to get it. The voyage lasted four months. She never saw her husband drunk.

Walter ELDEN, mariner, has lived in St. Paul's, Shadwell, these twenty years; is of the age of 50 or more. Captain BROWNING, on his return from Sallee, took Thomas PERCIVAL on board as cook. After he was sworn to be a witness about the loss of the cask or barrel of money, Captain BAWD came and said he was well acquainted with the owner of the ship "Galesia Merchant" of which deponent was the master, and desired him not to do any hurt to the interests of Anne BROWNING, for whom he solicited.

Joan FREEMAN of Wapping, nursekeeper, aged 24, a witness, says that she was born in Bristol. When she was nurse to one of Mary BROWNING's children Mathew CHALLENGOR, an old servant of Mrs. BROWNING's, came to her house in Ratcliff and said he had been with the ship's cook, who was cook when the plate was lost, at an alehouse in Lower Shadwell, and the cook called for beer and brandy and asked CHALLENGOR if he would have a bowl of punch. Captain BAWD came in, and, sitting down, began to talk about the plate that was lost, and asked him if it were not so and so; but CHALLENGOR said, "No, it was not so," and told BAWD he perceived he had a mind to make him fuddled.

Deponent now lives at one Mr. EBBS at Wapping, and nurses his child.

Walter ELDEN says he was born at Kingston-upon-Hull and has known Mary BRUNING thirty years; was last in company with Thomas PERCIVALL at a coffee-house near Billingsgate with Captain BAWD about four or five months since; spoke to Captain BAWD at a coffee-house upon Smart's Key.

Thomas AINGIER of St. Andrew Undershaft, London, apothecary, aged 35, has lived there twenty years or more, has known Thomas PERCIVALL seven or eight years as a person of honest life and conversation, and often employed by several merchants and the most substantial men in the parish.

Thomas PEER of Wrotham in Kent, husbandman, aged 33, has been there about seven years and is a turner by trade ; knows Thomas PERCIVALL, Peter FELKIN and George CARKETT, persons of good life and conversation. George CARKETT served as a mariner in the "Samuel and Anne," which was about half or more laden with salt, silver and other commodities. Captain BROWNING was very morose or froward during the whole voyage to all the mariners and, after the loss of the barrel with the plate, said he would pay none of them their wages.

Thomas PERCIVALL of St. Botolph, Bishopsgate, London, porter, aged 40, has lived there ten years or more, was born at Didlington in Norfolk, is a baker by trade ; saw Matthew CHALLENGOR at Mr. WHITE's at the "Green Dragon" in Lower Shadwell and drank together one pot of beer, one quarter of brandy and one pint of Rhenish wine, for which Captain BAWD paid. He received his wages at the Savoy in the Strand. When they were anchored in Cales Bay the "Barquo Longo" came to the said ship on the larboard side. The "Samuel and Anne" then went to Sallee, the Algerines being then at war with England.

George SAYER of Doctor's Commons, London, gentleman, aged 23, born at Croft, co. York, says that he very well knew James ALFORD, late husband of Mary ALFORD alias BROWNING, one of the parties to this suit.

THE COURTSHIP AND MARRIAGE OF SABINA JERVIS.

The year 1680. November 11.

Joan FREMANTLE wife of Daniel, of St. Mary Whitechapel, merchant, aged 30, has been married about five years, and was born in Exeter ; has known Sabina JERVIS, now JONES, for seven years past ; was present at her wedding last Lent, before which time she passed as a single person or unmarried, or maid, but this deponent and several others knew she had a former husband who died about six years before her marriage to Robert JONES. About a fortnight or three weeks before the marriage one Mr. John FITCH made court to the said Sabina, and some words or promises passed between them intimating a kind of contract, but this deponent did not account them to be real but only intended for iocularity and mirth sake. Robert JONES, fearing FITCH would marry Sabina, became more importunate with her to marry him, and upon a Friday evening in February or March, Sabina sent over to this deponent at Lambeth by Mrs. COSHAM, at whose house Sabina then was, and Sabina then said that she had agreed to marry JONES. Deponent stayed at Mrs. COSHAM's all that night and the next morning went with Mrs. BLACKBURN, Mrs. COSHAM and Mr. NASH and his now wife, with Sabina and Robert JONES, to Lincoln's Inn chapel, and being come thither Sabina at first showed and expressed dislike to the marriage and said there was a promise betwixt her and another person and did cry and take on very much. Whereupon Dr. BURNETT, the minister, asked her what promise she had made, to which she made no audible reply, and Dr. BURNETT then said that that promise was of no value or effect. After which this deponent and her relations speaking to her did persuade her to marry Mr. JONES, and so she was married by the minister.

Afterwards Sabina told this deponent that when they were going up together to the Communion table JONES told her he would stab himself if she did not marry him. No licence was taken out until the afternoon after they were married, at which time Mrs. COSHAM went and procured a licence. JONES told her that he might have married the daughter of Mr. Edmund LEE, but he had had a kindness for Sabina for two or three years and more. She knew Edmund and John LEE by going to the house of Mr. John SMITH, deceased, and became acquainted with Mr. JONES, having been his neighbour in Lambeth. Before John LEE and Robert JONES took upon them to meddle in the estate of John SMITH they were accounted honest men. Hath heard John SMITH, deceased, and Edward SMITH his father, say they had no kindness for Edmund LEE, but heard them several times commend Robert JONES. Sabina borrowed most of the clothes in which she was married and witness helped to dress her therein as a bride. John SMITH, the testator, and Robert JONES could both of them speak the Danish language. Believes Captain Peter RICH assists Mrs. HALLAM in this cause because if the heir, John SMITH, who is a minor, shall not have the deceased's estate it will come to the HALLAMS. Sabina showed great love and kindness to FITCH, who presented her with a golden tooth-pick during the time he was a suitor to her. FITCH, in a jocose way, declared they were contracted together and Sabina did not deny it; they called each other husband and wife in a jesting way some days before the marriage. Sabina went over to Mrs. BLACKBURNE's house, and Mrs. BLACKBURNE, Mrs. HUNT and Mrs. COSHAM, told her what a plentiful estate Mr. JONES had and how bravely she might live, and Sabina was troubled when she went to bed the night before she was married. Mr. FITCH said Sabina had given him her promise to marry him and he would not resign his right. JONES desired Mrs. Jane COSHAM to carry her into the country that it might not be known where she was, to prevent Mr. FITCH's coming to her, and offered Mrs. COSHAM a hundred guineas, or some other considerable sum. When JONES threatened to stab himself Sabina said that to save his life she would ruin her own. Mrs. HUNT, her mother, as they were going to Lincoln's Inn, said to her, "Child, it might be deferred a little longer," or to that effect; and Mr. JONES did reprove Mrs. HUNT and bid her hold her peace. John SMITH, deceased, declared that he had left his estate to the heir John SMITH, son of Edward, and that he must be bred a scholar, and all things were to be kept until the said heir came into England. JONES and his wife said that nobody sought to wrong the minor, but if the law gave it to them then the estate was theirs.

Jane BLACKBURNE of St. Clement Danes, widow, aged 42, has lived there seven years ; was born in the city of London, has known Sabina seven years, went to see her married ; believes Mr. WYMONDESOLD is a very substantial, honest person ; believes Sabina JONES is a person of such conscience and integrity that she would not forswear herself to gain the whole world ; she had linen and other things before the marriage from this deponent's shop and this deponent helped to dress her as a bride. She and Sabina and Sabina's mother met FITCH accidentally in the street and they all went into a tavern together where Mr. FITCH professed more love to Sabina than she had before observed him to do, and said to Sabina's mother that he intended to have her daughter and presented Sabina with a gold toothpick. Then he said he would acquit her of any promise rather than disoblige either of them. Sabina's mother's name is now NASH. This deponent, of her own accord, did desire Mr. FITCH not to make a fool of Sabina. On the morning they were married Mr. JONES gave this deponent a guinea to buy anything that was necessary towards a collation or a bottle of wine for any of their friends that should come. At the chapel Sabina began to cry and take on, saying it was a business of great weight and concern, she having had a bad husband before.

Jane COSHAM, wife of John, of St. Clement Danes, gentleman, aged 28, has been married about nine years ; met Mr. FITCH at Mr. JONES's house over the water, and asked him to desist from his suit to Mrs. Sabina, whereupon he said she might do what she pleased or marry who she would but she could not marry any other man without being unjust to him, and he reckoned her to be his wife before God, to which Sabina made little or no reply, seeming to be in a kind of confusion, more than to say "For God's sake, say no more of it!" She stayed at Mrs. BLACKBURNE's this deponent's mother's house in the Strand the night before she was married. Sabina told the minister, Dr. BURNETT, there was nothing of gold broke between them, but that she had been abroad and merry with the other gentleman and had promised to marry him. Mr. FITCH presented Sabina with a gold toothpick, a parrot, and a canary bird. Not many days before the marriage he fell down upon his knees and solemnly protested that before God, Sabina was his wife. About a week before the marriage she went with Sabina to her mother's house and there they found an Astrologer or fortune-teller, and when Sabina came into the room she wept and sat down and said to her mother that she must have Mr. FITCH and that she was mightily troubled and knew not what to do. The fortune-teller thereupon advised her to have the Black man and she would live happily and wallow in gold, but if she had the other she would want bread. Believes that by the Black man was meant Mr. JONES.

John James BENARD, notary public, of St. Gregory's, London, aged 34, born at Cadomunn in the province of Neustriae in the kingdom of France, deposes that a licence was taken out in the Vicar-General's office on 28th. February last, about six o'clock in the evening, for the marriage of Robert JONES and Sabina JERVAIS, widow.

THE REAL SIR THOMAS HYDE.

The year 1680. December 8.

George HOLLEY of Whethampstead, Herts., husbandman, aged about 60, has lived there about ten years past; Sir Thomas HYDE, father of Bridget HYDE, one of the parties to this suit, and Sarah WHITCHURCH alias EMERTON, did, many years before Sarah was married to William EMERTON, and before the birth of John EMERTON, who was born about 22 years since, live together in the same house at Albury Place in Hertfordshire, the said Sarah for several years as servant and housekeeper to Sir Thomas HYDE. It was commonly reported that Sir Thomas was too familiar with Sarah WHITCHURCH. Deponent came up on foot from Whethamsted to give evidence and lodged at the "Bell" Inn in Walbrook. Saw Mrs. Bridget HYDE last night at Alderman BACKWELL's house in Lombard Street, where he drank a glass of wine and part of a pot of ale. He used to frequent the house of Mr. SMITH of Annables in Hertfordshire, father of Christopher SMITH. Deponent maintains himself by husbandry and by selling linen cloth about the country; is worth £20 his debts paid and pays 6d. a year to the poor; pays taxes and hath not received the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper these twenty years past; has no expectation from Mrs. Bridget HYDE if she can free herself or estate from John EMERTON. Deponent lived at Tring within two miles of Albury for many years while the said Sir Thomas dwelt at Albury, and knew him before the beginning of the late Civil Wars. Sarah and Will EMERTON after their marriage lived very lovingly and peaceably together and in a kind of religious or godly manner, he being an Anabaptist and a teacher in that church, until the death of William. John EMERTON was born ten years or more after the marriage; never heard that he was son of Sir Thomas HYDE.

John MIDGLEY of St. Nicholas Olave, London, scrivener, aged 46, has lived there about twenty-four years: was born at Heptonstall, co. York. On the night before John BRANDLEY was to be examined at Doctors' Commons as a witness on behalf of John EMERTON, this deponent was sent for to the "Feathers" Tavern in Old Fish Street, by Jeremy IVES, junr., his opposite neighbour, at which place he found John BRANDLEY and his wife, Jeremy IVES the elder, Jeremy IVES the younger, and his wife, and two young men, John EMERTON and his brother. Mr. IVES the elder then told this deponent that he was sent for to draw some articles for one person to pay another £90 to procure him the next presentation or perpetual advowson of a living after the death of the present incumbent. This deponent told him he could not draw such articles without the names of the parties concerned and the considerations upon which the said money was to be paid, upon which they consulting awhile together, the minister, Mr. BRANDLEY, said he was to be suspended for three years from a living worth £30 a year and unless he were secured the sum of £90 in lieu of his suspension he would not be sworn as a witness on behalf of EMERTON (the said EMERTON walking up and down the room and seeming to take no notice of what passed). All of a sudden BRANDLEY appeared to fall into a great passion, and his wife fell upon his neck and desired him to do nothing that was against his conscience or it would bring a curse upon her and her children. This deponent judging that BRANDLEY's disturbance was on account of his going to swear something concerning the marriage of Mr. EMERTON to Mrs. HYDE he exhorted him to consider what he was about, but let alone entering into the articles for that night end thereupon left them and heard no more concerning the business.

Margaret MORRIS of Newington Butts, Surrey, widow, aged 43, has lived there the best part of four years; was born at Dublin in Ireland. Sir Thomas HYDE expressed himself very passionately and with great affection towards Sarah WHITCHURCH; hath seen him weep when he thought she was in danger of death. When Sir Thomas was going to be buried, some of his neighbours seeing the funeral go by, said that there went Sir Thomas HYDE, meaning John EMERTON, who, with his brother, attended the funeral, which Mrs. Bridget HYDE having since heard became so dissatisfied that she several times declared she would never have John EMERTON for her husband. Deponent lives at her brother's house in Newington and has her victuals there; came by coach from Newington. Dined with Mrs. Bridget HYDE at Alderman BACKWELL's, her brother's wife living at Alderman BACKWELL's and being related to him. This deponent and Sir Thomas HYDE called cousins, and being at the house of her brother Nicholas SMITH, a goldsmith in Lombard Street, about six weeks since, this deponent declared that to her knowledge Sir Thomas did show a great affection to Mrs. EMERTON the said John's mother; she declared it in a room in Nicholas SMITH's house, whose wife then lay in, in the presence of several persons. Sir Thomas often came to deponent's father's, Mr. Edmund SMITH's house, at Harding in Hertfordshire, and afterwards to her husband's house (after she was married) in Cornhill, London. Her father was something related to Sir Thomas HYDE, who, she believes, made a settlement of some of his estate upon William EMERTON, father of John EMERTON, and Colonel ATKINS, in case Madam HYDE, his daughter, should die without issue. Deponent is sister to Mr. Christopher SMITH, solicitor in this cause.

Mary, wife of James READING of St. Mary Newington, Surrey, brewer, aged 45, married about twenty years, says that her father Edmund SMITH lived in Hertfordshire, when, about twenty-three years ago, Sir Thomas offered to have her for his wife and she refused because of his general bad repute with Sarah WHITCHURCH. Within the last half year she heard Mrs. Bridget HYDE declare her averseness to live with or have John EMERTON for her husband, because of her mother's reputation and that Sir Thomas was really his father.

Dame Elizabeth KNYVETON, wife of Sir Thomas, knight and baronet, aged 40, and married about twenty-two years, says that some years since William EMERTON, father of John, came down into Shropshire and bought some land of Mr. COLE, which lay next to some of this deponent's. He said he had been steward to Sir Thomas HYDE and had married Sir Thomas's housekeeper, with whom Sir Thomas had given £1,500 as a marriage portion, and she put her sister as housekeeper in her place, though she might herself have been his lady. William EMERTON and his wife built upon the land they bought of Mr. COLE.

Edward BACKWELL of St. Mary Woolnoth, London, Esquire, aged 60 and more, says that Mrs. Bridget HYDE declared that rather than have John EMERTON for a husband she would drown herself. He hath lived in Lombard Street for many years. Saw Mrs. Bridget HYDE at Sir Thomas BOND's house at Peckham in Surrey, and when she heard the sentence that was given against her fell into a swoon and knew not what to do or where to go. Has known Sir Thomas HYDE since 1640, as his father was Sir Thomas's tenant. Knew Sarah EMERTON after the marriage of Sir Robert VYNOR with her sister.

Philip FROWDE of St. Mary Woolnoth, London, Esquire aged 36, says he has lived there three years at his house at the Post Office in Lombard Street. Saw Mrs. Bridget HYDE, at Sir Francis LAWLY's house in Surrey, with his lady, Sir Joseph SHELDEN, and this deponent's wife. Hath heard Mr. Nathaniel CASTLETON say that John EMERTON was Mrs. Bridget HYDE's brother and was very like her.

Ursula, wife of William BOWTELL of St. Mary le Bow, London stationer, aged 30, has lived there about six months. Is daughter of Ursula HOBSON, keeps a shop in the Exchange and has sold several things to Mrs. Bridget HYDE.

Dorothy ROBINS of St. Gregory, London, widow, aged 44, had lived there about three years and before that at North Hall in Herts. for about eleven years. Has lived in Paul's Chain about three years, keeps a coffee-house; her husband was a woollen-draper in Paul's Churchyard; has received the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper at St. Mary Magdalen's tabernacle at the hands of Mr. LEWIS.

Robert MUNDY of Aston Rowant, Oxon, yeoman, aged 56, was born there and has lived there fifty years or thereabouts; he married Sarah EMERTON's brother's daughter; saw Mrs. Bridget HYDE at his daughter's house, who is married in town. Has lived upon his means these seven years past and pays 20s. a year to Church and poor.

Elizabeth, wife of John BRANDLEY, clerk, aged 26, has been married about seven years, saith that a little after the marriage was publicly talked of to have been solemnised her husband was turned out of his curacy at Albury by Mr. GILPIN, the rector thereof, and threatened with being suspended for solemnising the said marriage between Bridget HYDE and John EMERTON. Deponent was born at Aylesbury in Buckinghamshire. Mrs. Bridget HYDE's mother was this deponent's grandfather's sister-in-law.

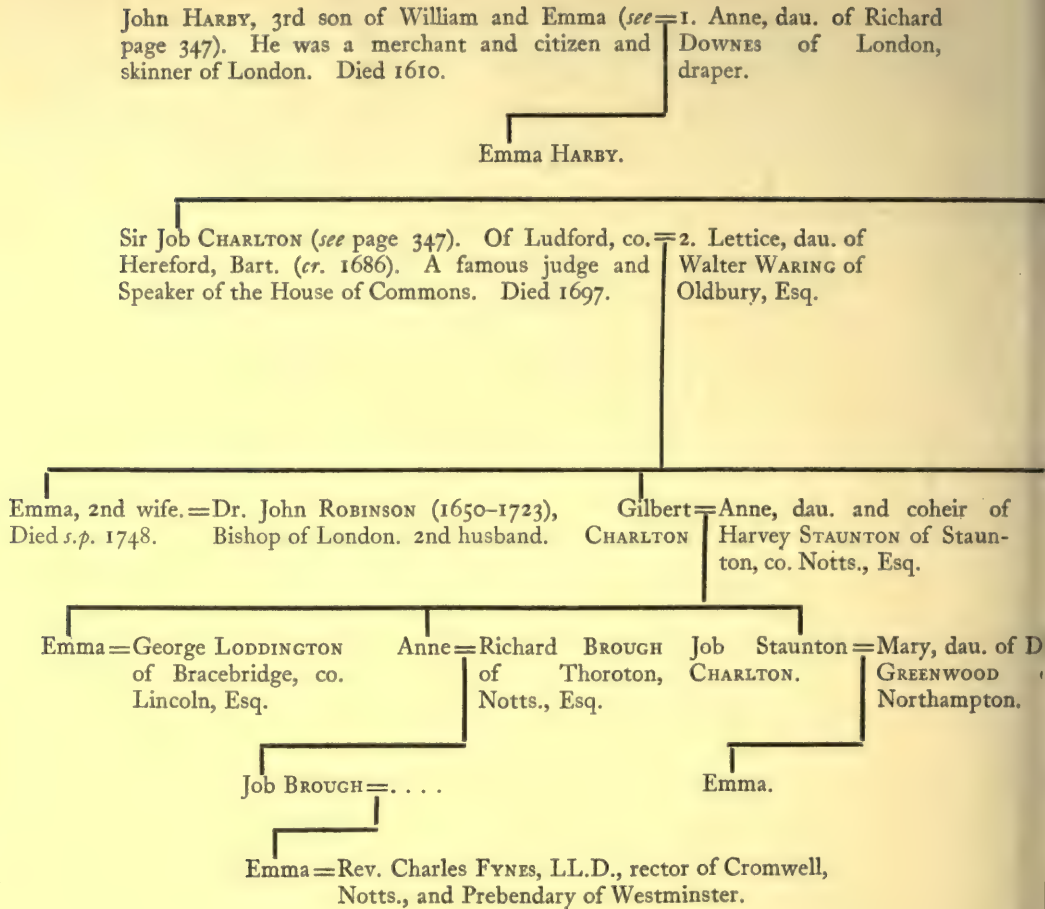

Jeremy IVES of St. Nicholas Olave, London, cheesemonger, aged 39, has lived there about seven years, was born in the parish of St. Botolph Bishopsgate, son of Jeremy IVES, deposes.

Mary, wife of Jeremy Ives of St. Nicholas Olave, cheesemonger, aged 40, and married about eighteen years, born at Harrow-on-the-Hill, deposes.

Sarah EBBLETHWAITE of Albury, Herts., widow, aged 40, has lived there about twenty years, says that William EMERTON and Sarah WHITCHURCH had seven children of which John was the fourth. That she farms about £40 a year by which she gets her living.

Frances HUMPHREY of Albury, widow, aged 50, has lived there thirty years, gets her living by knitting and spinning, etc.

[End of Family Register]

Pedigrees from 1558 of the RIDGE family appear in Horsfield's Lewes, Berry's Sussex Pedigrees, and Sussex Archæological Transactions, also in a privately lithographed pedigree by Lacy W. RIDGE. Joseph J. GREEN of Hastings possesses an early MS. pedigree of this family about 1765, and a quantity of MS. Pedigrees and early family papers dating from the 17th century. A Memoir of Michael Stephen Joseph MacCarthy, etc., with a pedigree showing his descendants, was privately printed in 1885, by Constance A. MACCARTHY, wife of Albert HARTSHORNE, F.S.A., now of Worthing (1915) the antiquarian author. The Pedigree is a very full and interesting one, and a copy is in J. J. GREEN's possession. A printed pedigree of the MADDEN family is also in J. J. GREEN's possession, annotated by the late F. W. MADDEN, and by him sent to J. J. G. J. J. GREEN also possesses elaborate pedigrees and original MSS. re POULTER of co. Huntingdon, from the 14th century; vide also a pedigree of POULTER in Camden's Visitation of Hunts. 1619. Several members of the LACY family are buried in the Paradise, Chichester Cathedral, and J. J. G. possesses a pedigree of the family, compiled partly by the late Canon Charles Augustus HULBERT, M.A., Vicar of Almondbury, near Huddersfield, whose wife, Mary LACY, was of this family. J. J. G. also possesses pedigrees of the families of HEWETT and WOODS; also SHARPE (sent him by Reginald R. SHARPE, D.C.L., of the Guildhall, London) and WHEELWRIGHT.

PHILADELPHIA AS A CHRISTIAN NAME (III. 289, 319, 350).—In the year 1659 died Mr. Benjamin SCARLETT of Eastbourne in Sussex, and of Thames Street, London; a lawyer and Commissioner in Chancery, and a man of considerable wealth and property in land in Sussex.

He disinherited his eldest son, Francis, who was then abroad and who on his return to England, finding the Sussex property in the hands of his brothers, began a Chancery suit, whence we get a good deal of family history.

Benjamin SCARLETT's eldest daughter was named Philadelphia, and as we do not find this name in her mother's family, but as a family name in that of Sir Thomas WILSON of near Eastbourne (now Spencer MARYON-WILSON, Bart.), who was a connection and friend of Benjamin SCARLETT, we suppose Philadelphia may have been a goddaughter of Sir Thomas WILSON, or of Lady WILSON—at any rate this is the only reason we can now suggest for the name.

Philadelphia SCARLETT married William CRISPE, of the well-known CRISPE family, son of James CRISPE of Northfleet, Kent, a "man of large property." William CRISPE managed the sale of iron in Thames Street, London, for his father-in-law, Benjamin SCARLETT, who worked several forges in Sussex, together with his wife's uncle, the Reverend John GILES, Vicar of Ninfield before the Commonwealth. (The CRISPES both died and all their (? three) children within a week of one another, and we believe are buried in Allhallows Barking. The time being so short they probably died of the Plague.)

Francis SCARLETT, formerly a law student, went abroad, trading to India and Persia, after family disputes with his father. He then joined in the Jamaica Expedition under PENN and VENABLES, and was granted a large estate in Jamaica for his services on the taking of the Island. He appears as Captain Francis SCARLETT in the Returns of owners and in other records, and was Captain of a Militia Regiment, but he returned to England and died there unmarried about 1686, leaving all his estates in Jamaica to his next brother, Thomas, and his nephew William SCARLETT, eldest son of Thomas, whence our family is descended. Of the estates in Sussex not a penny nor an acre was kept; probably the Chancery lawyers finished this. The name is frequent in the deeds of Eastbourne and other Sussex places belonging formerly to the GILDRIDGES (now Davies GILBERT) and the Duke of Devonshire, who now owns "the Meads" which Benjamin SCARLETT had as a Manor, together with other lands.

Now, some time in the seventies I (Mrs. SCARLETT, wife of Colonel, then Captain Leopold J. Y. C. SCARLETT, Scots Guards, of Parkhurst, Surrey) was staying on a visit with friends in Buckinghamshire during the shooting season. My hostess was writing some notes, and said to me, "Now I am writing to ask a newly-arrived neighbour to come and shoot, and am sure you do not know anyone of the name of his sister to whom I am writing—her name is Philadelphia." I replied it was true I knew of no one now of the name, but was glad to have an opportunity of meeting one of the name, as it was a name formerly in the SCARLETT family, though as long ago as 1627 or 1630.

Miss Philadelphia L—— and her brother came some days after, and in speaking of her name, I mentioned the fact of its being in our family and said that we believed it to have been given on account of the WILSON family of Sussex, who had that name constantly in their line at that period. Miss L—— exclaimed, "That is why I have it; my mother is descended from that family of WILSON of Sussex!"

Another connection of our family with the WILSONS of that time is recorded in the Sussex Archæological Collections.

This same Captain Francis SCARLETT of course knew the WILSONS well. Since he had left England the eldest son and heir had disappeared whilst in London, and it was supposed had been "crimped" or "spirited away," as it was called then, i.e. knocked down or drugged in London, and carried on a vessel to be sold as a slave.

This really was the case, and on going over an estate in Jamaica, Captain Francis SCARLETT saw young WILSON as a white overseer on the place, but finding he was a slave, and knowing the difficulty of getting him away if his owner found out who he was, and his prospects in England, SCARLETT kidnapped him and got him off home in a ship; hence the present direct descent from him of Sir Spencer MARYON-WILSON. The "slave" succeeded his father as the next Baronet, thanks to neighbour Frances SCARLETT.—B. F. SCARLETT.

A newspaper of April 5 last gives the death of Mrs. Rosa Philadelphia LYNE, widow of John LIDDELL, Chief Registration Examiner for Scotland, Pinkiehill House, Inveresk, aged 79.—A. H. W. FYNMORE.

ARTEMISIA.—I shall be glad of references to the woman's name of Artemisia. I have several notes of the name in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, which mostly arrange themselves in two groups: one descending from Artimisia SMITH of Greenwich, who married Daniel PAMPHLET at Lee, Kent, on March 20, 1724-5, and the other from Artemisia, daughter of Hopewell PARSONS of Bermondsey, who married Edward Robotham CLOUDER at St. George's Chapel, Hyde Park Corner, on August 6, 1749.—George S. FRY.

W. T. T. E. (Calcutta).—The British Garrison under General ELLIOTT, defending "the Rock" in a siege of over 3½ years ending in 1783, consisted of regiments Nos. 12, 30, 56, 58 and 78 : about 5,500 men, British and Hanoverian. In recognition of their eminent services the King granted to all non-commissioned officers and privates a special pension, two-thirds higher than the ordinary allowance. Hanover is a country still hostile to Prussian rule. An examination of the pay-lists and muster rolls is advised for the name of your ancestor, who helped, as family tradition states, in this heroic defence.

BYE OF PENNSYLVANIA (III. 294).—Anne BYE married Thomas KENDRICK, mayor of Reading 1580, parents of John KENDRICK of London, mercer, a Benefactor to Reading.

Thomas KENDRICK witnessed the will of Walter BYE of Reading June 1, 1579.

STRAY (I. 355).—While searching the Davy Manuscripts in the British Museum Library, I came across the following notes in connection with the family of WATTS.

13 Feb. 1781. Will of Robt. WATTS. Gives all his farms, etc., in Suffolk, and farm in Cuckfield, Essex, lately purchased with the money of his friend Mary STRAY, of Bridge House, Cuckfield, to Mary STRAY for life if she remain single and unmarried.

Francis STRAY of Horley, Surrey, living in 1801, is an executor.

15 Dec. 1796. Indenture between Elizth WATTS, widow of Robt. WATTS, and Mary STRAY, then of Mile End, Middlesex, relating to lands in possession of Thomas WALKER, to hold for said Mary STRAY for the life of Elizth WATTS.

3 Feb. 1797. Indenture between — BADDELEY and another and John STRAY of Stratford Grove, Middlesex. (He died aged 70 on 10 June 1807.)

11 Feb. 1800. Mary STRAY bequeaths in her will all property to John STRAY, for the benefit of Anne and Sarah STRAY, soon to arrive at age.

21 Nov. 1800. Indenture between Francis STRAY Esq., John STRAY, and the Revd. Bence SPARROW and John DRESSER, wherein the former sells to the Revd. Bence SPARROW messuages in Thorrington, wherein Thomas WALKER doth now dwell ; Wenhaston and Bramfield properties mentioned.

BIRTH-RANK.—An American writer, Mr. Casper L. REDFIELD, has made a discovery which should do much to turn the ordinary man's attention to genealogy. In The Dynamics of Evolution Mr. REDFIELD puts forward the theory, and supports it with figures, that it is impossible for anyone born within a century of his great-grandfather's birth to become a distinguished man. And he backs his convictions with money. Anyone who can prove that a single one of the two or three thousand intellectually eminent men known to history was the latest of four generations born within a century takes one hundred dollars of Mr. REDFIELD's money. Moreover, anyone who shows that a single very great man was born within a century of his grandfather's birth takes another hundred dollars. It follows that the men who marry after forty may be the greatest assets of their country and of civilisation in general.

In some tables based on the single generation Mr. REDFIELD shows that fathers of less age than thirty-one had soldier sons, e.g. Alexander, Charlemagne, Frederick the Great, Hannibal, Scipio; fathers of between thirty-one and forty, musicians and literary men—Bach, Mendelssohn, Goethe, Schiller, Shakespeare, Michael Angelo, Carlyle; fathers of forty-one to fifty, statesmen—Bismarck, Gladstone, Machiavelli, Peter the Great; and older fathers, philosophers—Aristotle, Bacon, Buddha, Confucius, Moses, Seneca, Solomon. Have there been no great kings descended from other great ones like Peter, who married at eighteen, Solomon, who was a father at seventeen, Alfred, or Louis of France, whose descendants, except the last to reign, all married under the age of thirty?

Mr. REDFIELD gives a list of 571 eminent men of all times, each with his "birth-rank" (age of his father when he was born), and with as much as is known of his father's and grandfather's birth-rank. There are none below the age of thirty, except a few generals. Bonaparte's is 23, Grant's 28, Lee's 27, but Gustavus Adolphus' is 44 and Wellington's 34. Francis Bacon's birth-rank according to this computation is 52, for he was the youngest son of Sir Nicholas, Goethe's 39, his father's 53, and his mother's 38. Humboldt's is 49, his father's 47; Herschell's 31, Darwin's 43, his father's 35, and the three generations before Erasmus Darwin occupied 111 years. He takes 1,800 typical ordinary lives from New England records of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, and finds that scarcely a third of these have a birth-rank of more than 34, whereas of 860 eminent men nearly three-fourths have the birth-rank of 35 and upwards. Only seven of these ordinary people had fathers older than 60, whereas 31 of the far smaller number of eminent men have that high birth-rank. Thus the child of a man of 60 has more than fifty-one times as good a chance of becoming eminent as the child of a man under 24.

There must be many other factors, of course, than slow breeding in the production of superior men, but in spite of them all the long generations almost or quite always precede greatness according to this showing. The recipe is not to marry early and marry often, in the same manner as electors of old used to be invited to poll, but to marry late and the later the better.

SOCIETY OF GENEALOGISTS.—The second lecture of the recently inaugurated series was given at the Society's Rooms, 5 Bloomsbury Square, on January 21, by Mr. H. J. T. WOOD, on "Elementary Welsh Genealogy," and was well attended. The lecturer convinced his audience that, on the whole, the long strings of bare names of which many Welsh pedigrees are composed were reliable statements of fact, down from a certain point, which could not very easily be determined; and Colonel THOMAS, who also spoke, gave interesting instances of verbal tradition of descent, related to himself personally, and going back to the time of Elizabeth, which were found to stand the test of record-evidence: a circumstance sufficiently remarkable. Mr. WOOD pointed out that the complicated land-system of inheritance of the Welsh was one of the causes of their careful preservation of a knowledge of relationship; another was their criminal law, which charged the kindred of a murderer, to a quite remote degree, with an assessment for the material damage suffered by the dead man's kindred. Another was that the coroner could be objected to if he were, within certain limits, akin to the parties concerned.

The lecturer seemed rather to suggest that there must have been some official pedigree-recording body, distinct from the bards attached to different families, to which reference could be made for proof of pedigree, but we doubt this in the absence of any known allusion by name to the title or constitution of any such office.

The reproach that Welsh genealogies consist so often of mere strings of names, like strings of onions, lies not so much in the fact that they are not true enough, but that they are dry and uninteresting because of their bareness—they do not stir the imagination, awaken the intelligence, or raise any picture in the mind. They are phantom and elusive: they neither raise a blush to the cheek nor a tear to the eye. The value of a pedigree in these days depends upon what it tells us of the people who figure in it. To say that David was the son of Jevan, and he the son of Evan, and he the son of John, is nothing; a genealogist is something more than a mere stringer together of names. What we want to know is what these people were, where they were, and what they did. It interests a descendant to know, for example, that "Davy Gam" was squint of eye and ended his life after a career of violence and rapine, or that Jevan Goch was red of hair and straight of limb—even for such small mercies we are grateful, and there is always the possibility of adding to them.

Criticism is useless if not constructive. What we should like our Welsh friends in the Society to do would be to take the most reliable Welsh MSS. and pedigree books; say, for a beginning, the Golden Grove book, make a fair copy of the strings of names and scraps of other detail contained in them, with plenty of space between each, and present it to the Society. Then, as contributory evidence turned up from time to time, such facts could be added, quoting authorities, and a living record would gradually be formed, invaluable for future reference and really interesting.
